Bill to Sift Deferments Passed, 69-0, By Senate

Ban on Calling Fathers Fails; Child Benefit Boosts Voted

By Robert C. Albright
Post Staff Writer

The Senate last night voted a shakedown of dispensable non-fathers in Government and industry and more generous provision for service children, but refused flatly to halt father inductions.

By a vote of 69 to 0 the Senate passed this substitute for the Wheeler bill, after gutting the ban on drafting of parents.

Substituted were a long series of amendments designed to ease the father draft by combing occupational deferments and 4-F lists for able-bodied childless males.

Allowances Increased

To cushion family hardships, the new bill raised the allowance for the first child of each enlisted man from $12 to $70, with $20 (instead of $10) for each additional child. The present $50 allowance was continued for the wife.

Senator Burton K. Wheeler, (Democrat) of Montana, whose attempt to stop father inductions started the fortnight's Senate controversy and drew high command warnings against interference with manpower timetables, made an unsuccessful last stand.

Wheeler offered an amendment to "defer" the drafting of parents until all but indispensable military age men in industry and Government had been steered into the armed services and the lists of 4-F's had been sifted.

Wheeler Beaten 48 to 26

Wheeler's last move was defeated, 48 to 26, after Senator Josiah W. Bailey (Democrat), of North Carolina, told the Senate it would postpone father inductions beyond January 1 and force the armed services to take in their belts.

The substitute bill, which would induct fathers as needed concurrently with the plugging of non-father draft loopholes, was then sent to the House, which is expected to act swiftly.

The Administration measure had one close call, a move by Senator Robert A. Taft (Republican) of Ohio, to force induction of fathers by age groups, vigorously opposed by Gen. George C. Marshall, Army Chief of Staff.

The Taft substitute was defeated 45 to 31. Destroyed with it were provisions for inductions on a National rather than a State quota basis, and the so-called Revercomb amendment, deferring only irreplaceable workers with special skills or professional training.

The Senate adopted practically every other amendment that was sent to the desk, leading off with the leadership's own Bailey-Clark substitute.

U. S. Deferment Ban

This specified that only physically fit military age Federal workers certified to Congress as "indispensable," and industrial workers whose occupational deferments had been double-checked by two draft boards and the Selective Service director, be allowed to remain out of the service; and that so far as administratively practicable, all eligible non fathers be called up first.

This was tightened on motion of Senator Wheeler, whose move to apply the Government rule of "indispensability" to all occupational deferments was adopted viva voce.

Other amendments.

Must Change Bylaws

AP Membership's Right Upheld To Pass on Entry of Applicants

By the Associated Press

New York, Oct. 6.—The right of the Associated Press membership to pass upon the admission of applicants was upheld today by a decision of the Federal District Court here. The court, however, directed that the bylaws of the Associated Press shall be changed to prevent a member in the same field (morning, evening or Sunday in the same city) from presenting any bar to the election in such field.

Other points in the decision:

1. Purchase by the Associated Press of Wide World Photos from the New York Times does not violate the antitrust laws as charged by the Government.

2. The exclusive news exchange contract with the Canadian Press, provided the bylaws are changed as directed, would not be in violation of law.

3. Also if the bylaws are changed, as ordered, the exclusivity of local news of spontaneous origin which members now furnish the Associated Press as an obligation of membership would be within the law.

The majority opinion said at one point:

"We conclude . . . that the present bylaws of AP unlawfully restrict the admission of members, and that further enforcement of them should be enjoined. We shall not attempt to say what conditions may be imposed; we hold no more than that members in the same 'field' as the applicant shall not have the power to impose, or dispense with, any conditions upon his admission, and that the bylaws shall affirmatively declare that the effect of admission upon the ability of an applicant to compete with members in the same 'field' shall not be taken into consideration in passing upon his application. It is, of course, true that the members may disre-

Black Market In Oranges Thrives Here

Two Congressmen Stress Middle Men's Profits, OPA Levels

By Christine Sadler
Post Staff Writer

Oranges from California—source of the only ripe supply at present—are disappearing from retail trade channels into a "tremendous black market" because of OPA's failure to limit the profits of middlemen handling them, two Congressmen from the West Coast State charged yesterday.

"Growers are tied to a price of $3.99 a crate, while middlemen are granted markups four and five times greater than normal. Operators who formerly received $75 for handling a car of oranges now are getting from $500 to $1000 per car," declared Representative Voorhis (Democrat).

Voorhis did not claim these excessive profits were legal under OPA, but presented them as illustrative of what farmers see happening to food prices "when they are not permitted enough to cover their costs of production."

Representative Phillips (Republican) termed the orange black market "one of the worst the Nation has undergone."

OPA officials declared last night while their regulations covering orange prices do not limit the number of middlemen operating between producer and retail channels, they do specify that the total aggregate of markups charged a retailer cannot be more than 31½ per cent above the base price to the producer. The retailer's price of

Dedication Set Today for War Fund Drive

Joint Service Clubs Committee to Hold Campaign Luncheon

Dedication of the 1944 Community War Fund theme, ". . . Crown Thy Good with Brotherhood," will be led by members of more than fifty Washington's men's organizations today, when the Joint Service Clubs Committee of the fund will hold a luncheon in the Mayflower Hotel.

Meanwhile, the metropolitan division, which will launch its part in the fund's campaign for $4,800,000 at a dinner meeting on October 19, initiated plans at a luncheon in the Willard Hotel yesterday. Division workers in District A will meet again tomorrow at 2400 16th st. nw.

E. K. Morris, chairman of the metropolitan division, predicted the division would "have no trouble" meeting its quota.

Ned Lewis, fund staff representative, urged "People all over this country are going to be watching how Washington is doing in its campaign this year—Washington must be at the top."

Clapper to Speak

Some thousand volunteer workers, as well as men and women of all branches of the armed forces, will hear an address by Raymond Clapper, columnist who participated in the first U. S. bomber expedition over Rome on the dedicatory program today.

Two soldiers from Bolling Field will also participate in the program: Corpl. Glenn Darwin, Metropolitan Opera singer, and Sergt. Virgil Fox, former organ instructor at Peabody Institute. The Rev. John M. Rustin, president of the Washington Federation of Churches and minister at Mount Vernon Methodist Southern Church, will give the invocation.

Among the fund officials to be present will be Coleman Jennings, Washington's campaign chairman; Herbert L. Willett, jr., executive director; Raymond F. Garrity, president of the Kiwanis Club, who is chairman of the Service Clubs Committee, and Floyd Akers of the

Cooper Wins For Cards, 4-3, in Second

News of Father's Death Precedes Six-Hit Pitching; Sanders Hits Homer

By Shirley Povich
Post Staff Writer

New York, Oct. 6.—Big Morton Cooper, sadness in his heart, tight-lipped and grim in his every motion, "pitched one for Dad today," the Dad who had died in the morning hours of his boy's World Series start.

Morton pitched a beaut. With most of the howling mob of 68,578 fans in Yankee Stadium unaware of the tragedy that had struck the Cooper home in Kansas City, the massive, 29-year-old pitcher unreeled a game that Dad would have liked. He held the Yankees to six hits. He beat them 4 to 3, and he evened the World Series for the Cardinals.

There was a home run by Marty Marion that lifted the Cardinals into a 1-to-0 lead against Yankee pitcher Ernie Bonham, and there was another homer by rookie Ray Sanders with a man on base that sealed the Cardinals' victory, but the greater drama was taking place at either end of the 60-foot pitching lane.

Not Definite Selection

Robert J. Cooper, sr., had two boys in this ball game today. On the mound was Morton. Wearing the catcher's mitt for the Cardinals was his brother, Walker Cooper. Theirs was a common cause today. It was compelling. They wanted to win this game more than any in their life—Morton and Walker. It was their Dad who had taught them how to play ball in the Missouri countryside. This was not the day to let him down.

Morton Cooper was not the definite pitching choice of Manager Billy Southworth this morning. He had planned to warm up both Cooper and Rookie Alpha Brazle before the game and then decided on his pitching selection. In his hotel room, shortly before noon, Southworth flicked on the radio. He gasped. A news announcer was telling of the death of Robert J. Cooper, sr., 58, father of the Cooper boys. The elder Cooper was victim of an attack of heart disease.

And They Did a Job

Southworth rushed into the room of the Coopers, there to find the brothers, heavy-hearted and scarcely consolable. An elder brother had telephoned them the news a few minutes before. Out of his hands, Morton Cooper brought his head and said: "I want to pitch today, Bill. You understand why."

Southworth understood. "Sure, you're pitching, Mort," he said.

Why Hitler Failed to Get French Fleet

By Edward T. Folliard
Post Staff Writer

The dramatic story of the United States Government's efforts to keep the French fleet out of Germany's hands, a diplomatic campaign that ended triumphantly when the French scuttled most of their warships in Toulon Harbor on November 27, 1942, was made public yesterday by the State Department.

The Department gave out the texts of six heretofore unpublished documents, which are to appear in the forthcoming documented edition of the White Book—"Peace and War: United States Foreign Policy, 1931-1941."

These show that President Roosevelt and Secretary of State Hull began their efforts to keep

Vinson Urges 'Courageous' Tax Program

Stabilization Chief Believes New Plan Will Check Inflation

By Edward Ryan
Post Staff Writer

Economic Stabilization Director Vinson yesterday called on Congress to enact a "courageous and comprehensive" "pay-as-we-fight" revenue program aimed alike at financing half the war's cost currently, and at staving off what he termed "almost irresistible" inflationary pressures.

Vinson was on his feet for three hours before the House Ways and Means Committee, testifying in support of the Administration's 10.5 billion dollar new revenue program presented Monday by Treasury Secretary Morgenthau. He termed the proposals "modest" in the measure of sacrifice they would place on the taxpayers, and called for adoption of the program as a "minimum requirement."

As its one-time tax subcommittee chairman, Vinson received a warm welcome from the committee. A spot check of members later, however, showed no lessening in the hostility with which committee members of both parties had received the Administration proposals.

During questioning by members, Vinson attacked proposals for a 10 per cent retail sales tax as threatening an 8 per cent rise in the cost of living, and defended the Administration's program for rolling back food costs through subsidies as being far preferable to

Steadily Forward

By Edward Kennedy

Allied Headquarters, Algiers, Oct. 6.—The Allied Fifth and Eighth Armies have crossed two rivers on which the fiercely resisting Germans are making a stand to impede the British-American drive up the Italian peninsula—the Volturno, flowing into Tyrrhenian Sea 20 miles from Naples, and the Fiferno, which runs into the Adriatic.

The Fifth Army, bringing up reserves to smash at increased enemy opposition along the route to Rome, crossed the Volturno at one point after occupying Aversa and Maddaloni, north and northeast of Naples, and reaching Lago di Patria, a marshy lake 12 miles northwest of the port, headquarters announced today.

The exact spot where the Volturno was crossed was not disclosed. The nearest point on the river to the latest reported Allied advance is seven miles north of Maddaloni. This is in the mountains, and from there the river winds some 15 miles before reaching the coastal plain, where it widens and forms a good natural barrier.

In the British Eighth Army's area along the Adriatic, Termoli, which had been in Allied hands since it was stormed by a landing party Sunday night, is itself on the northern side of the Biferno's mouth, but farther inland the Germans had established themselves along the river.

The British have forced crossings at several places in that region, and heavy fighting is in progress with

Boat-Totin' Fish Turns Out to Be Yank Submarine

By the Associated Press

In the office of the Coordinator of Fisheries yesterday they were laughing over the story of the fishing crew that caught the biggest one in all history—and were glad to see it get away.

A trawler, the Adelaide T. (so the story runs), was operating off the eastern end of Long Island, N. Y. Suddenly the vessel started going backward. That continued at some speed for 40 minutes.

The crew was staring open mouthed into the sea trying to guess what sort of monster their net had snagged when a smoke bomb emerged from the water and exploded in air. That was enough. The crew cut loose the net, containing the day's catch. The trawler's backward movement stopped.

Twenty minutes later a United States submarine surfaced.

British, Italians Still Hold Out On Coo Isle

Area Is Becoming Vast Aerial Battlefield, Turkish Reports Say

By Stephen Barber
Associated Press Staff Writer

Cairo, Oct 6.—British and Italian defenders of the Island of Coo in the Dodecanese held out against the German invaders today, an Allied communique said, despite the Nazi claim to have occupied all military installations and to have forced the British into the hills.

(Dispatches from Ankara said, not only that the entire Dodecanese group and neighboring Aegean Islands had become a vast aerial battlefield but the Turkish residents on the coast opposite the Dodecanese declared the British had occupied the entire group except for Coo and the largest island, Rhodes.

Rhodes, Crete Bombed

(Ankara said these coastal residents arrived in Istanbul today after leaving their homes September 29, when the Germans were seen bombing every one of the 12 islands, except Rhodes, and meeting heavy antiaircraft fire from the ground. They added that the British were evidently preparing an assault on the Germans, strongly entrenched on Rhodes.)

RAF Hudsons and Beaufighters from the Middle East command carried on their supporting role in the Coo operations Monday night, bombing German airfields at Maritza and Calato on Rhodes and Kastelli and Periada on Crete from which the Nazi air force was attacking the British and Italian forces.

From intelligence reports assembled in Cairo, it has been possible to gather a clearer picture of the three-week cycle of the British operation on Coo, which was divided into four phases:

The landing of small parties of shock troops, including commandos, parachutists and an RAF regiment.

The enemy reaction in the form of air assaults which briefly cut the island's airwise communications with the Middle East bases.

The halting of the enemy's air onslaught with the arrival of a South African Spitfire squadron and reinforcements of British ground troops with antiaircraft equipment to supplement the

Attack No. 9

By Richard Haller
International News Service Staff Writer

Pearl Harbor, Oct. 6.—A mighty task force of the United States Pacific Fleet was revealed today to have opened a heavy attack with shellfire and carrier-borne bombers on the Japanese-held American island of Wake at dawn yesterday.

Official announcement of what may prove to be the strongest American naval foray against the foe in the central Pacific hinted that the operation may still be in progress.

It was even considered possible that landings may have been effected with a view to recapturing strategic Wake, though it was not officially stated whether amphibious troops accompanied the naval task force.

News of the great offensive blow at Wake, 1185 miles west of the nearest American base at Midway, was contained in a communique issued by Admiral Chester W. Nimitz, commander in chief of the Pacific Fleet.

"A strong Pacific Fleet task force commanded by Rear Admiral Alfred E. Montgomery, USN," said the communique, "heavily attacked enemy-held positions on Wake Island with carrier aircraft and ship bombardment, commencing at dawn on October 5, west longitude date. Further details are not now available."

May Be Still On

It was considered significant that the communique said the attack was executed "commencing" Tuesday morning. This phraseology intimated the assault might still be under way.

Observers at Pacific Fleet headquarters were unable to judge the exact nature of the attack, but they pointed to the significance of the fact that the American warships, including at least one carrier, must have sailed fairly close inshore to turn their guns against the Japanese positions on Wake.

Accordingly, it was not deemed beyond the realm of possibility that the long-awaited thrust to recapture Wake may have been launched, although further details subsequently might not bear out such a conjecture.

The attack on Wake, 1800 miles from Tokyo and the scene of a memorable 14-day fight by a gallant band of Marines early in the war, was the third major offensive operation by the American Pacific Fleet since August 31.

Pacific Drive Started

Task forces previously had attacked Japan's Marcus Island and the Gilbert group within the last 35 days.

Thus, it appeared certain that the predicted U. S. central Pacific offensive to encircle and cave in the eastern half of Japan's island defense perimeter has been inaugurated.

The blow at Wake was announced only 24 hours following disclosure that Admiral Ernest J. King, commander in chief of the United

Wallace Addresses 500 Presenting Petition for Help

By Kurt Kelman

Bishop James H. Cannon, jr., retired Methodist leader, yesterday urged congressional action to save the Jews, who "wrote the Scriptures we read every Sunday, but whom we allow to be murdered by the diabolical wretches of Nazism."

Echoing the bishop's call for "prompt action," Vice President Henry A. Wallace told a delegation of some 500 orthodox rabbis on the Capitol steps that "the efforts to destroy the Jews are only part of the war to crush the spirit of the common man all over the world."

Pilgrimage to Capitol

The pilgrimage, called "unique in the history of American Jewry" by the Emergency Committee to Save the Jewish People of Europe, was supposed to be "the opening phase of a mass petition campaign to enlist the support of millions of Americans for immediate creation of a special intergovernmental agency with powers to act without delay and on a large scale to save the Jewish people of Europe."

The voices of the rabbis were joined in a message of compassion by Henry St. George Tucker, presiding bishop, Protestant Episcopal Church, Francis J. McConnell, resident bishop, Methodist Church, and Henry Sloane Coffin, moderator, Presbyterian Church, who have set aside this Sunday as a Day of Intercession to pray for "our Jewish brethren in Hitler's

Declaration Tells Peace Hopes of Religious Groups

By the Associated Press

New York, Oct. 6.—Three great religious faiths of America—Catholic, Protestant and Jewish—stood united before the world today in a common declaration, calling upon nations to preserve the rights of man and the dignity of the human spirit in the terms of the peace to come.

For the first time in the Nation's history, the three faiths have spoken in an identical statement on peace aims.

The declaration was result of months of study, negotiation and revision.

It was issued jointly by the Federal Council of Churches of Christ in America, the Social Action Department of the National Catholic Welfare Conference and the Synagogue Council of America.

Three Preambles to Declaration

The declaration delineated only the moral bases of such a peace, an accompanying statement said. The three faiths still might differ, it added, on what further factors might be required for an enduring peace, or in the theological approach to practical measures to be taken.

Three preambles introduced the declaration. The Protestant preamble set forth that "beyond these proposals we hold that the ultimate foundations of peace require spiritual regeneration as emphasized in the Christian gospel."

The Catholic introduction said that to their mind the postulates

D. C. Naval Officer Develops Speedy Typewriter Keyboard

By Hanson H. Hathaway
Post Staff Writer

The breaking of existing world records for speed in typewriting is, or could be, a daily routine in offices of the Navy Department, it was revealed yesterday in a preview of the Dvorak keyboard in action under the nimbly flying fingers of a girl who looked bored as she pounded out 180 words per minute just to prove it.

The keyboard is a simple departure from the usual typewriter keyboard, standard since Christopher Sholes invented the machine in 1873.

The world's record is 149 words per minute, but speeds of 165 to 180 words are maintained at the Navy Department with effortless ease, according to the keyboard's designer, Lieut. Comdr. August Dvorak, University of Washington director of educational research and the Navy's outstanding expert of time and motion studies.

The Navy has 40 of the machines now in use and is planning to get more in view of the results obtained, measured in terms of speed, efficiency, minimization of stenographer fatigue and sharp reduction of typing error.

Work output is increased more than 35 per cent with the keyboard. On standard keyboards the left hand does 57 per of the work, with 43 per cent for the right hand.

Dvorak's keyboard puts 44 per cent of the work on the left hand and 56 per cent on the right.

It does other things. It reduces the number of words that can be written on the left-hand side of the keyboard from 3300 plus to only 61, thus lowering finger strain and increasing speed by making the right hand take some interest in the

Yugoslav Partisans Fight Nazis Without One Tank or Plane

(The following presents the first eyewitness account of conditions in fighting Yugoslavia by the first American correspondent to return to that country since the German invasion two and a half years ago. A Partisan Brigade Headquarters in Yugoslavia, Oct. 2 (Delayed)—Fiery young Yugoslav patriots with home made red stars sewn on their caps are waging today a desperate campaign of liberation from the Adriatic coast to the banks of the Danube against a crushingly superior concentration of German armored forces.

Since the collapse of Italy, the Yugoslav Partisan army has grown by tens of thousands.

By sheer daring, Partisans commanders have won notable temporary victories and have withstood heavy reverses.

As the Germans well know, the Partisans are fighting today without a single tank or plane. Rifle and machine-gun companies are led by veterans who for 29 months have excelled in what they call "war in the woods."

The commander in chief of the far flung Partisan army is a revered figure, Josip Broz, who is known as Drug Tito. (Pronounced Droog Teeto. Drug in Serbo-Croat means "comrade." Tito is an uncommon name among the southern Slavs, although frequently encountered in Italy.)

War Sidelights

Hitler Calls Men of 59 For War Duty

London, Oct. 6 (AP).—The Germans now are registering 59-year-old men for military service—a stage they never reached in the last war—a spokesman for the Ministry of Economic Warfare said today.

Men of this class will not be called up at present, he added, but their registration gives plain evidence Adolf Hitler now is scraping the bottom of his manpower reserve.

Expects Early Peace

Seattle, Oct. 6 (AP).—Emil Ludwig, German-born historian and biographer, predicts Germany will sue for peace within six months, and "that will be the most dangerous period of the whole war."

He told newsmen that "if we make the same mistake we did a quarter of a century ago, we simply will be laying the foundation for a third world war. The only way of insuring peace will be to establish a military protectorate over Germany."

Nazis Sure of Victory

Benton Harbor, Mich., Oct. 6 (INS).—Ninety-five per cent of the 874 German prisoners working in Benton Harbor fruit-processing plants still believe in Nazi invincibility and are certain of victory, Lieut. Patrick Whelan, who is in charge of them, revealed tonight.

The former proud soldiers of Marshal Rommel, Whelan said, still regard Russian successes against the Germans as "strategic defeat" and declare that "no enemy can get into Germany."

Autos Requisitioned

Lisbon, Oct. 6 (AP).—The ministry of war requisitioned private automobiles, trucks and buses for military service during army maneuvers which start Sunday. Persons driving such automobiles also will be mobilized if they are less than 48 years old, but they can be replaced by others who may volunteer. Those failing to deliver cars when requisitined are liable to court-martial.

Fleet Bombs Shells Wake

States Fleet, recently had conferred at Pearl Harbor with Admiral Nimitz and Admiral William F. Halsey, jr., Allied commander in the South Pacific.

It was stated that that conference concerned itself with "plans for the Pacific campaign" and the expedition to Wake was regarded as the first of a series of naval offensive smashes mapped at the meeting.

The possibility was not overlooked that the United States Navy has embarked on a concerted campaign to bite off chunks of the swollen Japanese empire's defensive system until the main Japanese battle fleet can be drawn out for decisive battle.

Authoritative sources, supplementing the communique's characterization of the task force dispatched against Wake as "strong," declared that this was believed to be the strongest American naval force yet hurled against the foe in the central Pacific.

This was the ninth attack on Wake since the little American island was captured by the Japanese on December 24, 1941.

It was the second combined sea and air assault on the Japanese overrun island. On February 24, 1942, a naval task force under Admiral Halsey sailed boldly up to Wake and hammered the Japanese installations with shells and bombs dropped by carrier-based planes. American long-range Army bombers have raided Wake seven times.

Trieste-Austria Route Clipped, Yugoslav Force Announces

By The Associated Press

London, Oct. 6.—The Yugoslav National Army of Liberation announced today that, reinforced by Croatian units, it had cut the Trieste-Austria rail line used by the Germans to pour troops and equipment into the Italian battlefront.

The National Army's daily communique, broadcast by the Free Yugoslav radio, also reported the spread of bloody fighting to many parts of Yugoslavia, and the German-controlled Rome radio acknowledged heavy losses to German forces attempting to overcome resistance along the Dalmatian coast of the Adriatic. Rome said Yugoslav losses also were heavy.

Severance of the Trieste-Austria rail line "offers direct assistance to Allied troops in southern Italy," said the Yugoslav communique. The heaviest fighting in this operation was said to be at the Italian-Yugoslav frontier between the towns of Rakek on the Yugoslav side and Postumia a few miles inside Italy.

Strategic Hill Taken

This is in the extreme northwestern part of Yugoslavia approximately 40 miles south of the border of Austria which now is a part of Germany proper. The severed rail line connected Austria with the Italian Adriatic city of Trieste via the Yugoslav city of Ljubljana.

The communique announced that Patriot forces captured a hill overlooking Rakek, but had evacuated the town itself after the Germans brought up heavy reinforcements including 30 tanks, some of the Tiger type. The Germans also employed a large amount of heavy artillery and aircraft.

In the bitter street fighting that ensude one German Tiger tank and two armored cars were destroyed and 150 Germans were killed or wounded. The Rakek railway station was demolished. The communique specified that the actual cut in the rail line was made 14 miles from Postumia.

A newly-formed Croatian brigade derailed a train, destroyed a station and interrupted traffic on the Zagrab-Varazdin rail line. Varazdin is 20 miles from the Hungarian border, and as fighting swirled closer to that country the German news agency DNB broadcast a Budapest dispatch saying the Hungarian Nationalist Party had attacked those attempting to undermine the "internal front."

Still Fighting at Split

Reporting that fighting was continuing in the vicinity of the north Yugoslav port of Susak and the port of Split 160 miles to the south, the Yugoslav National Army's communique said an attempted German penetration into central Bosnia had been repelled.

One of the Croat groups which has thrown in its lot with the Yugoslav National Army is commanded by former officers of the forces of Dr. Ante Pavelic, puppet premier of Croatia.

The liberation army communique gave Croat units credit, in fact, for completing the occupation of the former Italian Island of Lussino, strategically important because of its commanding position in relation to the Italian Adriatic naval base of Pola.

Croat units involved were attached to the forces of Josip Broz, the legendary Partisan leader known as "Tito." Complete occupation followed the surprise naval assault on the island announced yesterday, the Yugoslavs said.

Blue Ridge Buses Seek 7 Routes For Airplanes

The Blue Ridge Bus Lines filed with the Civil Aeronautics Board yesterday an application for permission to operate air service on routes generally served by bus at present.

Nine routes mentioned in the application would connect Cumberland, Baltimore and Hagerstown, in Maryland; Washington, D. C.; Winchester, Va.; Gettysburg, Harrisburg, Uniontown, Washington and Pittsburgh, Pa.; Clarksburg and Wheeling, in W. Va.; and Steubenville, Canton and Cleveland in Ohio.

Officials said abandonment of bus service was not contemplated although the air lines would duplicate much of the present service.

(The Cairo radio declared that all German defensive positions along the Volturno had been rendered useless and that "the bulk of the German force is retreating well beyond the river and only a screen for rearguard cover has been behind.)

Aversa, captured in the steady Allied thrust northward from the Mediterranean, is an important rail junction 8 miles north of Naples. Maddaloni is 14 miles northeast of Naples. The two towns are each about 10 miles from Capua, where rail and highway bridges cross the Volturno. Capua originally was the southern terminus of the famous Appian Way to Rome.

The occupation of all territory up the coast northwest of Naples to Lago di Patria, which is about 8 miles from the mouth of the Volturno, straightened out the Allied line in this section to one running almost due west from Aversa. Among the smaller towns to fall before the Allied advance were Pozzuolo, Qualiano, Villaricca, Arzano and Marano.

German resistance was reported also to have stiffened in the mountainous central sector of the twisting 100-mile front across Italy. For the time being the Nazis are relying principally on units armed with mortars, machineguns and some artillery in orchards and behind rock walls and along water courses.

Some Nazi tanks also are participating in the delaying actions, but there was no indication that the four to five divisions of German troops estimated to be available for the defense of Rome had yet joined fully in the battle.

(Today's German communique said, "fighting against the enemy force landed at Termoli is still going on. German fast bombers effectively attacked enemy tank and vehicle concentrations and sank three large landing craft totaling more than 5000 gross tons.")

The Germans were leaving a black trail of destruction behind them in their retreat along the Adriatic.

4 Jap Divisions Moved From Manchuria

By the Associated Press

Chungking, Oct. 6.—Chinese officials reported today that the Japanese were moving four divisions into China proper from Manchuria and interpreted the present Japanese offensive in the Hangchow and Nanking area as principally an effort to save the Nipponese mainland from China-based air attacks.

The Chinese said the four Japanese divisions from Manchuria might be employed in China, or be scheduled to go ultimately to some theater outside of China.

One official said that the Japanese were trying to extend their occupation in the vital eastern area of China, which is within 150 miles of Shanghai, by "grabbing some of those points to prevent his own territory from being bombed. The enemy also intends to do a little plundering, seizing resources and materials in that area."

The Chinese high command reported heavy fighting along the east China front as Chinese forces slowly pushed back Japanese troops looting the rich countryside between Hangchow and the former capital at Nanking.

The communique said that Japanese troops who had moved beyond Siaofeng, 35 miles northwest of Hangchow, were thrown back and Chinese units were storming Siaofeng.

In the Hsuancheng sector, the Chinese consolidated their gains made yesterday and were sweeping on to the suburbs of that town, 80 miles south of Nanking and but 10 miles from the Yangtze River.

Chinese guerilla units behind the front lines were reported to have started an offensive which has already achieved substantial results.

Reds Repulse Strong Nazi Counterblows

James M. Long
Associated Press Staff Writer

London (Thursday), Oct. 7.—Strong German counterattacks pounded Soviet spearheads in White Russia, but made no gains and lost 1800 men, Moscow announced today in a communique which claimed no important Russian advances and ignored all but the north central front.

The German radio, meanwhile, spoke of new Russian drives developing around the long inactive Leningrad front, and said there was increased Soviet pressure both east of Vitebsk and midway between Gomel and Kiev.

The Moscow communique, recorded by the Soviet monitor here, said there were "no serious changes at the front." A supplement at midnight told of fighting around Vitebsk, Mogilev and Gomel in White Russia.

The communique and Moscow dispatches indicated the major part of the Russian summer offensive had reached a halt, perhips only temporary, at the Dnieper River. The Moscow reports indicated the offensive may start up again after weather conditions improve.

In the Vitebsk fighting the Germans, supported by tanks and low-flying planes, launched four counterattacks, but the Russians said they were repulsed and several populated places were captured. The Russians last were reported 25 miles east of Vitebsk.

Red army positions were reported improved near Gomel. Russian lines last were said to form a semi-circle around Gomel from an anchor position about 13 miles east of the city.

A Geman counterattack was declared beaten back with heavy German losses in the Mogilev area, and the Germans were said to have been dislodged from a strongly fortified point on another sector. The Russians have reported taking towns about 45 miles east of Mogilev.

New York, Oct. 6 (AP).—The Chinese central news agency said in a Mandarin language broadcast today it had received a "reliable report" that Japanese troops in Shansi Province had executed a Catholic prfest at Tai Yuan September 12, arrested two others at Fengcheng and burned several chiurches following the surrender of Italy.

Italian defenses.

The all-out German air offensive which preceded parachute and seaborne landings October 2 and 3.

Following their first arrival September 10, the British force on the island did not reach sizable proportions until well into the second week of operations.

The first week was marked by a half dozen enemy raids on the vital airdrome of Antimachia which did some damage to the field.

The South African fliers of the squadron that had landed there had chalked up a good score against enemy formations, and since then the same pilots have shot down at least two more Stukas to bring their score to 13.

By that time, reinforcements of small units of British veterans had arrived with their usual supporting forces to help in the defense of the islands.

Further landing strips were quickly leveled out and soon transport planes were able to make flights bringing in important supplies and personnel. Construction of these landings grounds was completed with amazing sped.

One runway was ready in 24 hours. A flare path was formed by British Tommies standing by with buckets of gasoline and piles of sand which were fired at a given signal as the squadron leader sped down the field in a jeep with the headlights blazing to lead the ships in.

Along these lines and by sheer hard work and diplomacy with the Italians, who have been described as still in "the trial stages of cobelligerency," the British got ready for the fourth phase which they knew must come.

London Paper Reports Nazis Looting Rome

By the Associated Press

London (Thursday), Oct. 7.—The Daily Herald said today the Germans were looting Rome on a wholesale scale, tearing down pictures, confiscating old manuscripts and art treasures and carrying valuables to their headquarters.

Quoting a Madrid dispatch, the Daily Herald said Pope Pius XII has sent secret documents to his papal nuncios, to be opened only if the Germans imprisoned him.

The German radio quoted a transocean dispatch which declared that Rome had a food supply sufficient for 10 to 16 days.

Maj. Gen. Reiner Stahl, German commander of Rome, was quoted in the Nazi broadcast as saying: "Rome is not occupied by the Germans. Rome is a city befriending the Germans."

The dispatch further declared that at present the city was being occupied "by comparatively weak German forces so that Rome's character as an open city was being maintained." (This declaration is inaccurate, since a leading principle in the maintenance of an open city is the removal of all troops.) The government of Marshal Pietro Badoglio declared Rome an open city before the Italian armistice, but the Allies never announced recognition of this status.

The British Ministry of Information quoted the German radio as declaring that Vatican authorities have given orders to construct modern barracks for German troops so that parachute troops which the radio said were "protecting the Vatican," would no longer be required to sleep in their open cars. The broadcast added that a "hospital for our (German) sick and wounded has been set up in the Vatican."

Aussies Push Nearer Madang In New Guinea

By the Associated Press

Allied Headquarters in the Southwest Pacific (Thursday), Oct. 7.—Australian forces moving down the Ramu Valley have reached the village of Dumpu, 50 miles south of Madang, New Guinea, today's communique reported.

This represented an advance of 7 miles from Kaigulin, whose capture was announced yesterday. The inland drive posed a menace at the next enemy coastal base above captured Finschhafen.

Madang's defense outpost of Bogadjim, 20 miles below it, were raided by four-engined bombers which dropped 39 tons of explosives.

Across Vitiaz Strait from Finschhafen, P-40s set fires in the dump areas of Gasmata, New Britain, an enemy air base.

North of New Britain in the vicinity of Kavieng, New Ireland, a light Japanese cruiser was the target of an air attack.

In the Solomons, fighter planes went after Japanese shipping off Bougainville and Choiseul Islands, the two points to which the enemy is reported evacuating his garrison from Vila, on Kolombangara.

The Ramu Valley force encounted only slight opposition in occupying Dumpu on Monday. The village is approximately 42-miles northwest of Kaiapit which was seized by airborne troops in the Markham Valley September 18, to start the present drive.

Other Allied air activity reported included a fighter attack on Garove Island in the Vitu group near New Britain in which a harbor fire was set which burned for an hour and a quarter.

General MacArthur's New Guinea successes, which include the capture of the air bases of Finschhafen, Lae, and Salamaua since September 12, drew congratulations from Gen. George C. Marshall, army chief of staff, who commended the coordination, tactics and celerity in the New Guinea campaign.

Tokyo Radio Denies Beheading of Captive

New York, Oct. 6 (AP).—The Tokyo radio beamed a propaganda broadcast to Latin America today denying that Japanese soldiers had beheaded a captive allied airman, but United States Government monitors said the transmitters have not been heard making reference to the case for Japanese audiences.

There was no reference to the fact that the beheading was described in the diary of a Japanese battle casualty released by Gen. Douglas MacArthur.

seen since I met Maj. Gen. Vasile Novikov's Caucasus army during the British-Russian occupation of Iran.

His followers are divided into two groups. One is the Narodna Oslobodilacka Voiska — National Liberation army. The other is the Partizanski Odredi Jugoslavije—Yugoslav Partisan detachments. The army endeavors to fight as an army while the Partisan detachments operate where there is no real front. But every soldier of the Voiska proudly refers to himself as a Partisan.

Businessmen Help

The Partisans put red stars on their uniforms and paint the red hammer and sickle insignia on the walls of their headquarters. They exchanged the clenched fist salute. Some belong to the Yugoslav Communist Party, but not all of the Partisans are fervent Communists. The Communists and non-Communists are united by a common aim—resistance to Germany and the restoration of Yugoslav freedom.

Today I saw blackrobed Catholic priests raise clenched right fists to the side of their heads in greeting Partisan officers. I heard prosperous town businessmen vouch for the sincerity of the purpose of the Partisan forces and pledge their own cooperation.

I listened as a Partisan brigade commander declared "there are no barriers of religion or politics. We embrace all patriots who love and fight for Yugoslavia."

The red-starred Partisan army looks not to the red army of Russia for immediate support. It looks to American and British forces which breached the southern defenses of Hitler's Europe.

"Long live the American Nation, long live the British nation," shouted Partisan Tommy-gunners around headquarters at their first glimpse of my khaki uniform.

Their commander summed up the situation in clear-cut phraseology: "We wait for help from our American and British Allies. It cannot come too soon. We are fighting hard, as we've always fought, while we wait for this help and the sooner it arrives the sooner will there be complete victory in Yugoslavia."

Not Downhearted

Enmeshed in the Battle of Italy the Allied Command has not yet been able to send an expeditionary force across the Adriatic to occupy strategic points at the foot of the naked, gray heights of the Dinaric Alps.

Today not one major city or harbor on the Dalmatian coast remains in partisan control, although in mid-September the Red Star flag floated over two of the greatest, Fiume and Split.

But the partisans are not downhearted. "We may lose a town, but we never lose the country around it," they say.

Nor are they downhearted at fighting German tanks without a single modern antitank gun in their arsenal or being bombed by German dive-bombers without a single antiaircraft gun to answer back.

They have seized most of the equipment of five Italian divisions that were caught in Yugoslavia by Premier Peitro Badoglio's armistice, but it is poor sort of stuff.

Rely on Guerilla Skill

The partisans until now have relied for success on their own guerilla skill and the passive support of a majority of the civilian population in the areas where they are active.

Their movement now, however, is assuming such proportions that it is military big business. There are more new soldiers than rifles—even counting the long-barreled old squirrel shooters of Balkan War vintage, and there is a job to finish that only planes and armored vehicles can do.

Some Italian troops, including specialists such as engineers and gunners, joined the partisan ranks. Hundreds of central European Jews suddenly released from Axis concentration camps in Dalmatia voluntarily enlisted in the partisan army.

It is a people's army and presumably susceptible to most of the mistakes that newly expanded militia and former civilians usually make. But it's spirit is amazing and exhiliarating.

It knows how to shoot straight.

Special Dispatch to The Post

London, Oct. 6.—Britain's new night-fighter ace is John R. D. Braham, a 23-year-old RAF wing commander who hold the Distinguished Service Order and bar and the Distinguished Flying Cross with two bars.

Braham bagged Nazi number 19—the plane which upped his mark over the previous high of 18 set by Wing Commander John "Catseye" Cunningham—when he was returning from a recent intruder patrol. Encountering a Meserschmitt 110 at 18,000 feet, he got on his tail and shot him down into the Zuyder Zee.

Described by the Air Ministry as a "brilliant leader whose exceptional skill, gallantry and unswerving devotion to duty has been reflected in the fine fighting qualities of his squadron," Braham enlisted in the AF before the war, and fought all through the blitz.

He was on leave in Canterbury when that city was raided, and—getting permission from the commanding officer there—he borrowed a Beaufighter and blew up a fleeing Dornier.

Falero Hangars, Planes Destroyed

Madrid, Oct. 6 (AP).—A dispatch from Sofia said today American Liberator bombers had destroyed Nazi underground hangars and planes at the Falero Airdrome, 7 miles from Athens, and killed about 250 persons, presumably Germans.

oranges is $3.99 per crate, plus transportation, plus up to 31½ per cent, they said.

Retailers, however, must sell to reflect these prices plus their usual markup, and at least two Washington chains of stores have quit handling oranges during the past week because they could not buy them at prices "anywhere in the neighborhood of that 31½ per cent markup." As they understood the OPA pricing, middlemen could keep adding to their markups "as long as they don't sell to retailers." Consequently, it appears, some of the middlemen have become their own retailers.

OPA is now working on prices for the new winter crop of oranges, which begins to be harvested in Florida this month. There was no indication as to whether a straight retail ceiling would be set and attempts made to "curb middlemen," but officials pointed out OPA's enforcement machinery is not large enough "for us to have a man watching every car of oranges." Curbing black markets during periods of scarcity can never be successful without "real cooperation," they said, declaring this means the person who complains must be willing to turn in specific names and prices.

The California Congressmen made their black market charges to War Food Administrator Marvin Jones during his appearance before the House Agriculture Committee to explain his 1944 food production program and ask for support of his plan to place price supports under numerous farm crops "high enough to get production."

Representative Pace (Democrat) of Georgia declared the supports should be placed higher than parity as now computed, since "parity does not begin to cover the farmer's cost of production, leaving out entirely the cost of his labor."

Jones said price supports tried out this year averaged 117 per cent of parity and that "the farmers themselves are being consulted on the prices for 1944."

"Don't you really think it would be better to let them get cost of production for their products, such as milk, than to hold the prices down and then subsidize," Voorhis asked. "Wouldn't a food stamp plan to aid the needy consumer really be better?"

The WFA chief declared he was strongly in favor of the food stamp plan "as a principle" but that he considered the food pricing program already had been established. "We are working under directives issued pursuant to a price control law passed by Congress. Whatever we think about methods, I think it is more important now to talk about production. Also, I am told the amount of money saved by the Government alone on its food purchases under the subsidies proposed will more than pay for the subsidies," he said.

OPA Reduces Prices Of Cut Up Chickens

An OPA ruling yesterday reduced the retail price of poultry sold in cut-up pieces smaller than halves and quarters. The order, effective Monday, stipulated prices on these pieces could be no higher than "if the dressed bird were sold whole." They have generally been sold considerably higher. The ruling also declared poultry which has been killed, but not bled and plucked, must be sold at live—rather than dressed—poultry prices.

The OPA also set maximum prices for apples for home consumption at a national retail average of between 10 and 11 cents per pound. The seasonal average maxima are higher by about 2 cents, however, than the rollback goal announced earlier by OPA General Manager Bowles.

Naval Officer Develops Speedy Typewriter Keyboard

It cuts to zero from 500 plus the number of words that can be written on the right side of standard boards.

Explaining "hurdles" and "reaches," which mean finger jumping from lower or guide bar to top key bar, and moving fingers to next adjacent upper or lower key bars and left to right to letters, Commander Dvorak said:

"Motion studies stretched over 38 million 'hurdles' and 'reaches' in two-letter typing sequences showed that the number of sequences thus written on a standard keyboard can be written with but 10,450,000 such reaches and hurdles."

Less Motion

Which, in less technical language, means you can write your letter with three fewer motions on the new as against the old board.

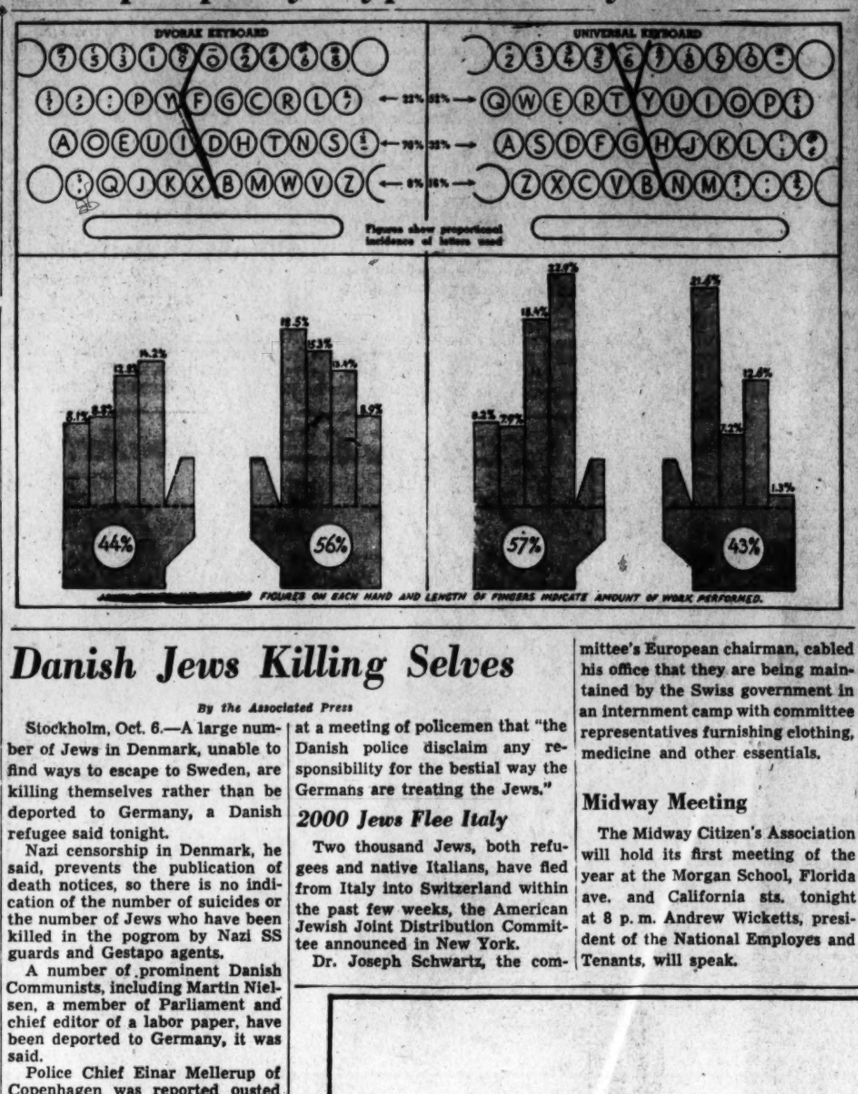
Sholes' invention was based on the assumption that only two fingers could or would, naturally, be used in typing, Dvorak contended.

The new keyboard nearly balances the finger loads for both hands, nearly equalizes hurdling and reaching for all fingers and both hands, increases speed, typing tempo and reduces stenographic fatigue.

"About all it doesn't do," said one girl, "is reduce stenographic hips."

Dvorak's typing interest stems from work in 1925 at the University of Washington.

As a motion expert he recently concluded a series of studies of antiaircraft fire, results of which measurably increase the firepower of American antiaircraft weapons.



Danish Jews Killing Selves

By the Associated Press

Stockholm, Oct. 6.—A large number of Jews in Denmark, unable to find ways to escape to Sweden, are killing themselves rather than be deported to Germany, a Danish refugee said tonight.

Nazi censorship in Denmark, he said, prevents the publication of death notices, so there is no indication of the number of suicides or the number of Jews who have been killed in the pogrom by Nazi SS guards and Gestapo agents.

A number of prominent Danish Communists, including Martin Nielsen, a member of Parliament and chief editor of a labor paper, have been deported to Germany, it was said.

Police Chief Einar Mellerup of Copenhagen was reported ousted from office by the Nazis for stating at a meeting of policemen that "the Danish police disclaim any responsibility for the bestial way the Germans are treating the Jews."

2000 Jews Flee Italy

Two thousand Jews, both refugees and native Italians, have fled from Italy into Switzerland within the past few weeks, the American Jewish Joint Distribution Committee announced in New York.

Dr. Joseph Schwartz, the committee's European chairman, cabled his office that they are being maintained by the Swiss government in an internment camp with committee representatives furnishing clothing, medicine and other essentials.

Vinson Urges 'Courageous' Tax Bill as Inflation Check

allowing price increases.

In declaring his support of Morgenthau's program, Vinson warned that "I do not believe we can prevent inflation in this country without a stronger fiscal policy."

"Congress has provided effective machinery for controlling prices and stabilizing wages and salaries," he said. "The additional tool of increased taxation is essential if we are to maintain stability in the wartime economy."

Congress, he said, was faced with this choice: "Whether the danger of inflation will be minimized by a war revenue bill, or whether the Nation will be left to assume the grave risks inherent in the existing situation."

Failure to stabilize the wartime economy, he said, would increase the war's cost, and would grind down the standards of living of the millions of white collar workers, persons dependent upon fixed incomes, and others whose economic status has not been affected by the high level of wartime activity.

He said that the American people would be willing to accept the added burdens of the Treasury tax program, and he added:

"The American people do not want luxury and ease while their sons are dying."

Vinson predicted that the Victory tax was on the way out, and he estimated that it would require a 5½-per-cent increase in the surtax rates to make up the difference.

At the same time he said it was "delusionary" to talk about surtax rates in the same breath with actual burden on the taxpayer. On this point he submitted tables to show that the actual tax burden, calculated as a percentage of gross income was much lower than indicated by the customary tax tables, calculating rates as a percentage of net income after exemptions.

As an example, he said the tax rate on a married person with two dependents and $2000 gross income was 2 per cent of gross but 27 per cent of net after exemptions; for $5000 the comparison would be 21 per cent and 35 per cent.

Representative Knutson (Republican) of Minnesota, said he was at a loss to understand how inflation would be controlled "if you don't reach down and tax those receiving the bulk of the national income." The Treasury program calls for freeing nine million persons from income levy by lifting the victory tax.

"Put it this way," Vinson replied," I think that $10,500,000,000 is a minimum program."

Representative Robertson (Democrat) of Virginia, who has indicated strong interest in a sales tax, declared that besides letting out nine million payers, all individuals receiving below $2000 would get back in postwar refunds under the Treasury proposals more than their increase in taxes. These individuals, he said, get 35 per cent of the national income.

"Below $2000 there would be no new contribution to the war effort," said Robertson.

"But we think," Vinson replied, "that there would be a real contribution to the anti-inflation effort."

He said that a 10 per cent sales tax would "automatically" increase the cost of living 8 per cent.

Fortresses Blast Bologna Railway Hub

By Noland Norgaard
Associated Press Staff Writer

Allied Headquarters, Algiers, Oct. 6.—Aiming hundreds of heavy bombs so accurately that "hardly one of them fell outside the target area," Flying Fortresses yesterday wrecked the rail yards at Bologna, hub in northern Italy for traffic to the Brenner Pass, Rome and other cities.

The big bombers struck in four waves, and headquarters, in announcing the attack today, said it was "one of the most accurate and successful" ever dealt by Northwest African Air Force.

Bologna is about 180 miles south of Brenner Pass on the main line, a crutch the Germans depend upon heavily for reinforcing and supplying their armies in Italy.

All Bombs in Target Area

Headquarters announced, "although hundreds of large bombs were dropped, hardly one of them fell outside the target area," headquarters said.

The assault followed a Fortress blast Monday at Bolzano, junction town just 35 miles below Brenner Pass.

Hundreds of tons of explosives were dumped on the freight yards, sheds, workshops, buildings, warehouses, oil tanks, and sugar factory, and great fires were left roaring in the whole area.

Opposition was stern, and Fortress gunners knocked down 8 out of 30 to 35 Nazi fighters. The freight yards "were blown sky high," in one flier's words, despite the fierce air defense.

Taking advantage of improved weather, fighter-bombers had one of their most successful days in Italy against enemy motor convoys, destroying about 150 vehicles in low-level attacks.

15 Nazi Planes Downed

In all the day's widespread attacks, 15 German planes were downed and 6 Allied aircraft were lost.

American medium bombers struck at road juctions and freight yards at and near Formia, Magnano, and Isernia, all communications points from Rome to the German front lines.

B-26 Marauders severed one of the two main Naples-Rome highways at Magnano. A coastal road was cut by B-25 Mitchell bombers on the outskirts of Formia, 45 miles above Naples.

RAF and RCAF Wellingtons the previous night made a deadly raid on the Grosseto Airfield, 80 miles northwest of Rome, blowing up a hangar and firing more than 12 enemy planes. Oil dumps, runways, and other hangars were hit squarely.

United States pilots shot up two trains on the Naples-Rome line, one carrying troops. Ten cars of another train were set afire.

Allied officials said the airfields at Foggia in eastern Italy were rapidly being made "effective bases" for Allied bombers, although only one of the 13 fields there has all-weather concrete runways.

Leary, now commandant of the Fifth Naval District with headquarters in Norfolk, formerly was commander of battleships, Pacific Fleet.

Andrews, 64, is commander of the Eastern sea frontier. Brainard, 57, served with the Atlantic Fleet as a task force commander with the rank of vice admiral.

Return to School Cuts 1,600,000 From Work Force

Students returning to school resulted in a 1,600,000 decline in the Nation's labor force between August and September, the Census Bureau reported yesterday, adding that unemployment during the same period fell to the lowest level on record.

The statistics were based on reports compiled for the week of September 5-11.

Only 800,000 persons were listed by the bureau as jobless, a 200,000 decline from the corresponding week in August, and a drop of 900,000 from September, 1942.

Total employment was placed at 52,500,000, a 1,400,000 decrease from the previous month, but a gain of 100,000 from a year ago.

The bureau said the August to September drop in the labor force was 500,000 smaller than in the same period last year.

Owner Collects Rent of Store In Big Garage Under U.S. Lease

By Linton Burkett
Post Staff Writer

FWA's Capital Garage is losing the rent of a barber shop in the building, due to failure to take advantage of the contract by which the building was leased from the National Mortgage and Investment Co., it was learned yesterday. Meanwhile Ernest E. Hall, executive director of the FWA, said that if they could not store cars there for $11.20 a month the project would be abandoned.

When the contract with the investment company was signed August 9, there was inserted a clause describing the property to be leased in this way:

"The entire Capital Garage building, located at 1320 New York ave. nw., Washington D. C. and situated on Lot 70, Square 252, in the District of Columbia, with the exception of that part of the building identified at 1312 and 1314 New York ave., said leased space containing approximately 235,269 net square feet of floor space."

There is in the entire contract no mention of the store located within at 1316 New York ave.

A check with FWA officers here revealed that the "rent on that property (which is occupied by Seaton's barber shop), was collected by the owners of building."

The only other time the contract mentions the store properties is in the latter part, when it is provided that $75 a year shall be deducted from the contract to defray the cost of the Government providing heat and hot water to the office of the investment company.

This development followed a charge made yesterday morning by Senator William Langer (Republican, North Dakota) that the FWA had paid a lawyer $6500 to draw the contract. He said further that each year the contract is renewed the same lawyer would draw a fee of $300. This, he said, was done while there already were a number of lawyers on the FWA pay roll.

Hall, in estimating the cost of garaging the cars in the place, said it was expected the FWA would realize $63,555 from other agencies for repairs and services to their cars. Should this fail to materialize, he said, it would be impossible to house the cars at $11.20 a month, and plan would have to be abandoned.

A representative of the Joint Economy Committee, headed by Senator Harry F. Byrd (Democrat) of Virginia, was present when the wording of the contract was disclosed. He checked through the instrument to be assured that in no other place had there been inserted any mention of 1316 New York ave.

James O'Donnell, secretary of the investment company, said that the barber shop and the office of the investment company were still under the control of the company, but that a space which was formerly used as an office by the garage, separating the company and the barber shop, had been taken over by the Government.

Rackets Bred by War Scarcity of Radio Tubes

By Helene Champlain
Post Staff Writer

The warborn radio racket doesn't hurt the ears of Washington listeners—but it does hurt their pocketbooks.

Unscrupulous dealers, unable to obtain the most widely used types of radio tubes to service worn-out sets, because of diversion of such equipment to the military, have turned to less legal methods of tube replacement, it was learned yesterday.

And consumers, who are using their radios an estimated five hours daily, are paying the extra costs involved rather than lose program service, especially war news.

In the District, it was learned that three practices of this type are in operation:

1. There is a black market in the more popular types of tubes (50-L-6, 35-Z-5, 12-SA-7, 12-SQ-7 and 12-SK-7), which bring prices as high as $4 for a single tube.

2. Dealers are rewiring radios to accommodate other types of tubes less in demand, wasting, as one put it, "time and money." Should the tubes normally used for these radios be placed in large quantities on the market again, there will be further expense in reconversion.

3. So-called "second emission" tubes, allegedly released from the Army, are being sold. These are merely old tubes through which the dealer sends a high voltage to mend the broken filament and they last only two or three weeks.

In all instances, treble costs are passed on to the consumer.

The dealers who prefer to stay on this side of the legality line and condemn these practices must, on the other hand, let radios pile up on their repair shelves while they await the necessary parts, or turn down orders. This has resulted in thousands of useless radios in Washington alone, while the listening public is unable to purchase new sets, no longer manufactured for a year and a half.

Meanwhile, officials in the radio division of the War Labor Board are working out a shifted production program to divert more tubes of the popular type to civilian channels. Although the number of tubes available for civilian replacement use is only 6 per cent of the 1941 quota, requirements for new tubes have skyrocketed, one official said.

"A man can no longer buy a new set, so he has to buy a new tube," he explained, adding that increased demands in radio listening have aggravated the situation.

The official estimated that generally sets are about 5 per cent out of commission.

"The replacement age of tubes is going up, but supplies are down a little more every day," he added.

commission of five qualified physicians, including one each for the Army and Navy, to review physical standards now set by the armed services with a view to possible lowering of standards to reach more 4-Fs. Approved viva voce.

By Senator Edwin C. Johnson, (Democrat) of Colorado—Raised allowances of service wives with one child from $62 to $80 a month; service wives with two children from $72 to $100; with $20 more allowed for each additional child. This was more generous than the Johnson bill previously passed by the Senate and approved by a House Military subcommittee Tuesday. The House bill's scale: service wife with one child, $72; with two children, $90; each additional child, $16 more. Johnson amendment approved 78 to one. Senator Joseph H. Ball (Republican) of Minnesota cast the dissenting vote.

By Senator Bushfield (Republican), South Dakota—Permitting men whose induction is imminent, on request, to take a preinduction physical examination at any regularly established induction center. Registrants would be furnished by examining officers with a certificate of physical condition which would be binding on local darft boards. Adopted, vice vose.

The Bushfield amendment was opposed by Senate Majority Whip Lister Hill, who argued the examinations would overtax Army physicians, and would not satisfy draft doubts since the armed forces have the right to re-examine 4-Fs. The amendment carried after several Senators took the floor to urge Bushfield's argument that pre-examinations would enable men threatened with induction better to make their plans ahead.

Before the final vote, Wheeler clashed angrily wtih Bailey, when the North Carolinian attacked his ninth-inning move to hold up the fathers' draft until the bill's provisions for sifting occupational deferments of childless men, and review of physical standards, had been met.

Bailey said the amendment "would seriously interfere with the plans of the chief of staff. He accused the Montanan of trying to undo the substitute for his bill, of trying to lead the Senate back down the hill with the skill "of a Rommel."

Wheeler snapped: "I'm not going to take that from you or anybody else." Wheeler said he resented implications by some columnists and on the Senate floor "that anybody who opposed the Administration was a Nazi."

Bailey said he meant no such implication, and offered to withdraw his statement. Wheeler did not insist, and Bailey went ahead with his speech.

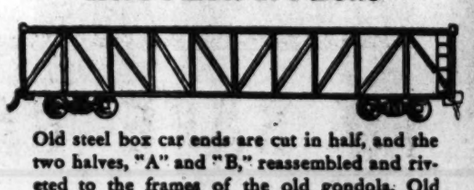
Making new ones out of old ones
Old gondolas rebuilt from used materials in Santa Fe Shops
Many a veteran Santa Fe gondola, already marked for retirement, has had to take a new lease on life these days.
Battered, broken and ready to quit, these hard-worked cars no longer had the strength to hold their loads.
Somehow, these "old boys" had to be kept rolling!
So Santa Fe shopmen got busy. They took old steel ends from broken-down box cars, and rebuilt the old gondolas with steel sides, and a new, steel-reinforced floor—all made from old, used materials.
Now, these rebuilt old gondolas are proudly hauling coal and ore today to the mills, war material to Army camps, tanks and guns to waiting ships—and doing their part in binding an entire nation together into one unified war effort.
Here's How It's Done


Old steel box car ends are cut in half, and the two halves, "A" and "B," reassembled and riveted to the frames of the old gondola. Old steel beams are used to reinforce new floors in place of the original wooden beams. The running gear is completely overhauled.

President Asks for Authority to Proclaim Philippine Independence

President Roosevelt told Congress yesterday that the Filipinos, by their heroism and loyalty, had won the right to "complete freedom and nationhood" and asked authority to proclaim the independence of the islands as soon as feasible.

In a special message to the legislators, the President also asked that Congress provide for economic rehabilitation of the Philippines once the Japanese are driven from them, and made these two other requests:

1. That he be empowered to enter into immediate negotiations with President Manuel Quezon of the Philippine Commonwealth to "provide for full security for the Philippines, for the mutual protection of the islands and of the United States, and for the future maintenance of peace in the Pacific."

Adjustment in Laws

2. That Congress provide for "determining the adjustment necessary in the existing provisions of law which govern economic relations between the United States and the Philippines, so as to assist in making the Philippines, as an independent nation, economically secure wherever possible."

The first of these requests suggested the possibility of a treaty of mutual assistance whereby the United States might maintain military and naval bases in the Philippines.

The second would open for revision the economic provisions of existing legislation providing for independence of the Philippines on July 4, 1946. This legislation calls for gradual imposition of tariffs on Philippine exports to the United States until finally the islands would be on the same basis, so far as trade with the United States is concerned, as all other countries. Some Filipinos have questioned whether this would not cause economic hardships making independence undesirable.

Resolutions Introduced

On September 24, Senator Tydings (Democrat), Maryland, and Representative Bell (Democrat), Missouri, who head Senate and House committees dealing with territorial matters, introduced identical resolutions for immediate recognition of the islands as a self-governing nation.

Tydings told the Senate at the time that the Japanese intended to offer the Philippines "independence through a puppet government," but expressed belief few Filipinos "will be deluded by that plan." He added that he had conferred with President Roosevelt, Secretary of State Hull, and President Quezon, and all agreed immediate independence would be "salutary."

Teext of Message

The text of the President's message follows:

"Since the Japanese launched their attack on the Philippine Islands, I have on several occasions addressed messages on behalf of the American people to the courageous people of the Philippines—expressing our admiration of their heroism and loyalty. I have assured them that the Government of the United States of America will see to it that their independence will be promptly established and—still more important—that it will be protected.

"The resources of the United States, in men and material, stand behind that pledge to the people of the Philippines. We shall keep that promise just as we have kept every promise which the United States has made to the Filipino people.

"The Philippine government, now in the United States, has been collaborating with the rest of the United Nations in the united task of destroying our common enemies in the East and in the West.

Independent Status

"As I stated on August 12, 1943, the United States, in practice, regards the Philippines as having now the same status as the governments of other independent nations—in fact, all the attributes of complete and respected nationhood.

"I am sure that the American people believe the the Filipino people have earned the right juridically to be free and independent.

"The date now set by statute and by the vote of the people and the Legislature of the Philippine Islands for independence is July 4, 1946. It is possible, however, that the fortunes of war will permit an earlier consummation of this joint will of the American and Filipino peoples.

"I, therefore, recommend legislation by the Congress giving the President the authority, after consultation with the President of the Commonwealth of the Philippine Islands, to advance the date provided in existing law and to proclaim the legal independence of the Pilippines, as a separate and self-governing nation, as soon as feasible.

"If the Congress takes this action, there are several steps which, in my opinion, are necessary to make good our pledge that the independence of the Philippines will be protected in the future and to give them the opportunity of economic rehabilitation which is their due.

Various Steps Urged

"I, therefore, also recommend:

"1. That the Congress make provision, authorizing the President of the United States and the President of the Commonwealth of the Philippine Islands to enter into immediate negotiations and take the necessary steps to provide for full security for the Philippines, for the mutual protection of the islands and of the United States, and for the future maintenance of peace in the Pacific.

"2. That the Congress make provisions for determining the adjustment necessary in the existing provisions of law which govern the economic relations between the United States and the Philippines, so as to assist in making the Philippines, as an independent nation, economically secure wherever possible.

"3. That the Congress make provision for the physical and economic rehabilitation of the Philippines made necessary by the ravages of war which the invaders have inflicted upon them.

"All of this is due to the Filipino people in recognition of their heroic role in this war, the political ties which have bound us together, and the bonds of friendship which will join us together in the future.

"Such action on the part of the Congress would assure the Philippine people again of our sincerity of purpose and of our resolution to accord them as soon as feasible the legal status of complete freedom, independence and nationhood to which, as a member of the United Nations, they are entitled.

In its two-fold job of supplying fuel for manufacturing processes in war plants and for vital household purposes in the homes of war workers, gas is one of our most critical war materials.

This applies to natural gas as well as to the coal and oil from which manufactured gas is produced.

To save material, to save transportation facilities, to save manpower the Government asks the voluntary cooperation of every gas user toward reducing—in every way possible—the consumption of gas.

The Washington Gas Light Co. and its affiliated companies in nearby Maryland & Virginia are solidly back of your Government in this conservation effort.

WHAT You CAN DO TO SAVE GAS

Gas Range

- Do not use oven—or any other range burner—for room heating.
- Prepare entire meal either on top burners or in oven, not using both at one time.
- Never boil a quart of water when you can do with a cupful. Reduce flame immediately when liquid has come to a boil.
- Do not turn on the gas until cooking utensils and food are placed over the burner, ready for cooking. Do not prolong preheating of oven or broiler needlessly. Turn gas off immediately when cooking operation is completed.

Gas Furnace

- Set thermostat at not over 65 degrees during the day; 60 or lower at night.

Gas Refrigerator

- Allow ample time for cooked foods to cool before putting in refrigerator.
- During the day shut off bedrooms and other portions of the house not in use. Where practicable arrange to live in one or two rooms for most of the day.
- Check all openings for hidden drafts—apply weatherstripping and caulking. Where obtainable, provide storm doors and storm windows. Improve insulation wherever possible.
- Keep heating system and electrical controls in good operating condition.
- Avoid overcrowding, leaving ample room for air to circulate on every shelf.
- Refrain from opening door more often than necessary.
- Set control to provide moderate, instead of extremely cold temperature.

Gas Water Heater

- Reduce the consumption of hot water in baths and showers.
- Keep faucets tightly closed; replace washers and repair other leaks.
- Avoid a continuous stream of hot water for hand washing and dish washing.
- Postpone or reduce heavy laundry work on extremely cold days.

Nash, Famed Political Chief, Dies in Chicago

By the Associated Press

Chicago, Oct. 6.—Patrick A. Nash, 80, coleader of the Kelly-Nash Democratic organization of Chicago, died tonight in Columbus Hospital of pneumonia after a short illness.

He was chairman of the Cook County (Chicago) Democratic Committee and had been a political chieftain for many years.

Nash shared the leadership of Chicago Democrats with Mayor Edward J. Kelly for 10 years. Their organization held political control of the city. The pluralities it amassed frequently decided Statewide elections. It was a formidable factor nationally. It operated so efficiently that critics dubbed it the "Kelly-Nash machine."

The Kelly-Nash vote-pulling team was formed in 1933 after the death of the party chief, Mayor Anton Cermak. Nash, who had been chairman of the Cook County Democratic Committee since 1931, took Cermak's place as the party's national committeeman for Illinois. Kelly succeeded Cermak as mayor. Together they assumed Cermak's rule over the rank and file.

Board Orders Heating Repair In D. C. Schools

New boiler room doors ordered by the fire marshal and heat in teachers' rooms and a principal's office that "are freezing cold," were included in a 12-page report of major repairs needed in District schools acknowledged by the Board of Education yesterday. The board recommended that the District repair shop give first attention to the listed items.

The report was submitted by Acting Superintendent of Schools Robert L. Haycock, who obtained the information from school principals at the board's request when it was learned repairs were far behind schedule.

Other Requests

The doors are needed at Gales School. More heat is asked at Bunker Hill.

Requests also were included to:

1. Repair broken holders on three stair handrails at Wheatley School. This was listed as an emergency, "as these rails may give way at any time and injure many children."

2. Add washbowls in girls' and boys toilet rooms at Jefferson. There is only one washbowl in each of the two rooms.

3. Change the wood wall in the coal bin at Paul Junior High to brick and the cutting through of a door, as ordered by the fire marshal.

Some requests are for repairs that have been asked before—playground surfacing at Chamberlain, requested for three years; repair and replacement of tile roof at Jefferson Junior High, and general painting at Roosevelt High.

To Study Standards

Adelbert Lee, real estate man and new board member, said the District repair shop has recently instituted a six-day working week and that steps are under way to speed up efficiency by more adequately supervising workers.

Initial steps to give future graduates of the District's six vocational sections high school diplomas were taken in approval of a recommendation to study changes for raising the vocational schools to the status of vocational high schools.

Other recommendations approved:

To ask deficiency appropriations to buy a site for permanent Patterson School, and to place an additional temporary building there.

To cooperate with District Selective Service headquarters in teaching literacy to draftees not having a fourth grade knowledge of reading and writing, to be handled through the night schools and the Americanization school.

To adopt the textbook, "Infantry Drill and Elementary Training," for use in cadet training.

To appoint four night school teachers under suspension of the board rules permitting teachers from serving more than six consecutive years or being carried on more than two payrolls during any fiscal year.

To add two attendance officers and to study legislative changes involving salaries in the department of school attendance and work permits.

Jury Convicts 3 of Giving U.S. Bad Castings

By the Associated Press

Cleveland, Oct. 6.—A Federal District Court jury tonight convicted John L. Schmeller, former president of the National Bronze & Aluminum Foundry Co., and his two brothers, Frank, former general manager, and Edward, former chief metallurgist, of having furnished the Government with defective castings for warplane engines.

The company and four lesser officials, James C. Helm, Robert W. Chrysler, Otto M. St. John and Benjamin Prudenza, were found innocent.

The three Schmellers were found guilty under count three of the indictment, which charged they had provided a defective casting for a Rolls-Royce engine to the Packard Motor Car Co. of Detroit, which had a contract with the United States and Great Britain to assemble warplanes.

They were found innocent on the eight other counts in the indictment, the first charging conspiracy to defraud the Government, the second with conspiring to produce defective war material, and the six which noted specific charges equaling the charge made in count 3.

Immediately after the jury returned its verdict, attorneys for the defendants filed motions for a new trial. Judge Emerich B. Freed set next Monday for a hearing on the motions and raised bail for the three convicted defendants from $5000 to $10,000.

Claudio Arrau Carries Off Music Guild Honors

By Ray C. B. Brown

Chamber Music Guild opens its fourth season on Monday night in Memorial Continental Hall, presenting the Guild String Quartet (Mishel Piastro, Harold Kohon, Jack Frost and Marcel Ancher) with Claudio Arrau, pianist, and Shannon Bolin, contralto, as guest artists. Program of compositions by Shostakovich, Grechaninov, Ravel, Villa-Lobos, Santa Cruz, Lecuna, Castro and Dvorak.

With a reorganized and greatly improved string quartet and the prestige of Claudio Arrau as guest artist, the Chamber Music Guild opened its fourth season last evening in the first adequate concert home that it has enjoyed — Memorial Continental Hall. Attendance was most satisfactory and indicative of the following which the organization had gained while pursuing consistently its policy of presenting unusual programs and publicizing contemporary composers, as well as aiding worthy young artists. Shannon Bolin, resident contralto, was accorded this time a place on the program.

Claudio Arrau completely carried off the honors of the evening with his group of solos and his admirable playing in the Dvorak piano quintet. He has everything that a great pianist should have in the way of equipment, and his command of his resources is artistic in the extreme. His technical prowess is prodigious, and his power is ever held in control by consideration for clarity and beauty of tone.

Shannon Bolin, whose voice has a warm and sympathetic quality and an endearing sweetness of tone, was heard in two songs from Grechaniov's "Winds of Autumn" with string quartet. These lyrics have atmospheric charm and convincing poesy.

Coolidge Presentation

Elizabeth Sprague Coolidge Foundation in the Library of Congress presents on Wednesday night the seventh in a series of eight concerts devoted to the instrumental chamber music of Johannes Brahms. Artists: Frank Sheridan, piano; William Kroll, violin; Jashe Veissi, viola; Nacum Benditski, violoncello. Program, Violin, Violoncello and Piano Trio in C major, Op. 87; Violin and Piano Sonata in D minor, Op. 108; Violin, Viola, Violoncello and Piano Quartet in C minor, Op. 60.

The seventh in the series of eight Brahms instrumental chamber music concerts was performed last evening in the Coolidge Auditorium of the Library of Congress by Frank Sheridan, pianist, and three members of the Coolidge Quartet, William Kroll, Jashe Veissi and Naoum Benditski.

Three works of the mature Brahms, written within a span of 11 years were played. The Violin, Viola, Violoncello and Piano Quartet in C minor written when Brahms was 42, the Violin, Violoncello and Piano Sonata in C major when he was 47, and the Violin and Piano Sonata in D minor when he was 53 were all read with warmth and intellectual sympathy. Their alsmto flawless playing was quick to catch and project the music's varied moods—the lilting utterance of the C major trio's opening theme disturbed only long enough for vigor, the patterned thoughtfulness of its andante, the bright spirit of its scherzo and finale.

Frank Sheridan and William Kroll collaborated in the D minor sonata ably following the fluidity, the un-Brahmsian sweetness and longing of the adagio, the strange rythms of the third movement and the vigor of the fourth.

With the C minor quartet the group, joined by Jashe Veissi, ended the concert, enriched throughout by the backdrop of Frank Sheridan's piano playing.

Organizations of Three Faiths Promulgate Joint Declaration of Hopes for Mankind's Welfare When the Peace Is Written

"express the minimum requirements of a peace which Christians can indorse as fair to all men."

The Jewish preamble called upon Jews to "seek after the implementation of these principles" because "they will thereby act in faithful conformity with the moral values of the Jewish religion and at the same time serve the best interests of the country and mankind."

The seven broad principles agreed upon called for:

1. Organization of a just peace dependent upon practical recognition "that not only individuals but nations, states and international society are subject to the sovereignty of God and the moral law which comes from God."

2. An international declaration of human rights and vindication of human dignity "by the positive action of national governments and international organization. States as well as individuals must repudiate racial, religious or other discrimination in violation of those rights."

3. Safeguards and guarantees within the framework of collective security for all peoples, large and small, subject to the good of the organized world community; "the progress of undeveloped, colonial or oppressed peoples toward political responsibility must be the object of international concern."

4. Guarantee of the rights of "ethnic, religious and cultural minorities to economic livelihood, to equal opportunity for educational and cultural development and to political equality."

5. Organization of international institutionas "which will (a) develop a body of international law; (b) guarantee faithful fulfillment of international obligations and revise them when necessary; (c) assure collective security by drastic limitation and continuing control of armaments, compulsory arbitration and adjudication of controversies, and the use when necessary of adequate sanctions to enforce the law."

Economic Collaboration

6. International economic collaboration "to assist all states to provide an adequate standard of living for their citizens" which "must replace the present economic monopoly and exploitation of natural resources by privileged groups and states."

7. "Steps must be taken to provide for the security of the family, the collaboration of all groups and classes in the interest of the common good, a standard of living adequate for self-development and family life, decent conditions of work and participation by labor in decisions affecting its welfare."

Studies had indicated large areas of agreement in some 100 pronouncements by religious bodies on world peace, and caused leaders of the three faiths to undertake preparation of the identical statement.

Distinctive feature of the American declaration is the focusing of public attention on the agreements on broad principles stated explicitly by United States religious leaders. Outstanding leaders from all parts of the country signed it.

To Dispel Confusion

An accompanying statement said the purpose of the declaration was to dispel confusion in the public mind and the minds of official policy makers that might have arisen from the multiplicity of peace statements by religious groups, to convince the country that an immense number of citizens of all faiths was united in a demand for organization of a righteous peace, and to present emphatically principles upon which religious people would insist in guiding their elected representatives.

Among the signers were:

The Rt. Rev. Henry St. George Tucker, president, Federal Council of Churches of Christ in America and presiding bishop, Protestant Episcopal Church; Dr. Israel Goldstein, president, Synagogue Council of America; the Most Rev. '43 'Windfall' Of Ships Seen As Victory Aid

United States war shipping facilities are three million tons above 1943 expectations, the Kilgore Subcommittee of the Senate disclosed yesterday in an optimistic report asserting that "our shipping windfall can deliver the decisive blow in Europe this year."

Mixing praise of shipbuilding achievements with criticism of what it reported as failure in some cases to utilize all available cargo space for war purposes, the subcommittee in an interim report urged that all shipping operations be placed under the control of the War Shipping Administration.

At present, the report explained, less than half of the 16 million tons of dry-cargo shipping tonnage is administered by the War Shipping Administration, with the remainder under control of the Army, Navy and several other agencies. It added that in some instances ships have sailed from United States ports with 50 per cent of their cargo space empty.

Three Million More Tons

The record-breaking ship output, combined with a sharp cut in submarine sinkings, is responsible for placing at our command now 3,000,000 more tons of shipping than "entered into our military planning for 1943," the report said.

"Your committee is of the opinion that, if these 3,000,000 tons are fully mobilized for military use rather than dissipated on peacetime commerce, and, second, if plans are executed to pack every ship to the last pound and the last cubic foot, our shipping windfall can deliver the decisive blow in Europe this year," it continued.

In the report submitted to the Senate Military Affairs Committee after a study of the Nation's mobilization of its shipping resources, the subcommittee headed by Senator Kilgore (Democrat, West Virginia) also struck at demands that more shipping be allocated to supplying the Pacific war theaters.

Against Pacific Increase

"To divert ships from the European theater now would choke off our greatest offensive in midstream," it declared. "Today, with our military shipping divided almost evenly between the Pacific and Atlantic, we can conduct only limited operations against the Japanese while mounting a major offensive in Europe."

It also would be "suicidal," the subcommittee asserted, to divert any shipping facilities to civilian trade, although demands have been growing for moving of such items as gold mine machinery and luxury goods for the South American and South African trade.

The report said "ships allocated to the Army on the North Africa run have averaged between 20 and 30 per cent of unused weight capacity and have frequently run from 30 to 50 per cent of unused space capacity."

Unified control of all military shipping, including movement of cargoes from factories to piers, would result in a 15 to 25 per cent space saving, the report concluded.

Air Accidents Reported Lower

Chicago, Oct. 6 (AP).—The rate of aircraft accidents for the year ended June 30 "was lower than the average rate for the 10 peacetime years 1931-40," Robert A. Lovett, Assistant Secretary of War for Air, told the National Safety Congress tonight.

"Despite the tremendous expansion of Army Air Forces flying," he said, "the rate of aircraft accidents per 1000 hours flown (in the United States) did not increase, but was reduced fractionally from .739 to .716, although over three times more miles were flown last year than in the whole preceding period."

Nancy Oakes Gets Full Share of Father's Fortune

Nassau, Bahamas, Oct. 6 (AP).—Sir Harry Oakes' will, awaiting probate here, gives a full share of his private fortune to his daughter, Nancy Oakes de Marigny, whose husband is soon to be tried on a charge of murdering the American-born baronet.

The will was filed for probate by Lady Eunice Oakes and disposes of 3,671,700 pounds sterling, or approximately $14,686,000. This represents Sir Harry's Nassau holdings, on which a 2 per cent tax must be paid, and does not touch a vast fortune in gold mines and real estate outside this British colony. His total fortune has been estimated as high as 200 million dollars.

It had been widely reported that Oakes had disinherited Nancy because her marriage to Alfred de Marigny was disapproved by him. De Marigny is scheduled to appear before the Supreme Court for trial October 18.

Sforza En Route For Talks With British Leaders

Copyright, International News Service

New York, Oct. 6.—Count Carlo Sforza, former Italian foreign minister and anti-Fascist leader, is en route tonight to London where he will confer with Prime Minister Churchill and other British officials before proceeding to Allied-occupied Italian soil.

The famous statesman, who led the parliamentary opposition in Italy against Mussolini until 15 years ago when he went into exile rather than submit to Fascist domination, plans to sponsor a coalition of Italian political parties to support an all-out Italian war effort against the Germans.

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

By Drew Pearson

IT WAS SECRETARY of War Stimson personally who reversed his Army subordinates and ruled that major league baseball teams could not visit the war fronts to entertain the troops.

Stimson felt that the troops would resent the sight of apparently healthy ball stars not in service uniform; would not realize that each ball player of military age had been exempted from the draft because of some physical infirmity which does not handicap him as a baseball star, but apparently prevents him from meeting the requirements of the Army—such as half an ear gone, a toe off, or a finger missing.

This was the second veto of such a project by Stimson, the other having been his refusal to let Joe Louis box with Billy Conn for the entertainment of troops. Stimson also thought this would have a bad morale effect.

In both cases, Stimson overruled his press chief, Maj. Gen. Alexander Surles, who was irked. Subsequently Surles came to one of Stimson's advisers, said:

"I've given a lot of thought to the protection of Secretary Stimson and Underscretary Patterson."

"Protection from what?" was the reply.

"From the baseball people," answered Surles.

Prohibition Move

WHAT LOOKS LIKE an ingenious scheme to increase prohibition areas, while the soldier vote is hamstrung, has been unearthed in New York by Democratic leader Bill Morgan.

Morgan, remembering how prohibition was put across during the last war when soldiers could not vote, is testing a Women's Christian Temperance Union move in the New York courts. The WCTU had inserted a local option law on the ballot in Cortland County, N. Y. Significantly, the proposal was inserted on September 22, despite the fact that ballots were mailed to the soldiers on September 20.

In other words, the troops will not get the ballot with the local option law written on it, therefore will be unable to vote on it.

Judge Coon of the Supreme Court in Cortland County ruled the WCTU-sponsored move unconstitutional, since it deprives soldiers of their right to vote.

It is reported that the WCTU is planning similar moves in other areas.

General Clark Cables

Congressman Henry M. Jackson of Everett, Wash., has just received a cable from Gen. Mark Clark from the Salerno-Naples battlefield.

Representative Jackson recently enlisted in the Army as a buck private, and just before doing so, sent cables to General MacArthur, General Eisenhower, and other field commanders stating that he would like to see active service and was at their command.

General Clark cabled from the thick of the bloody Naples battle: "Wish you could be with me as soon as possible."

Capital Chaff

Phil Reed, former General Electric chairman who slid gracefully out of the War Production Board in Washington, is slated to take Averell Harriman's place as lend-lease administrator in England . . . The Army and Navy both have given belated but vigorous assurances to the Truman Committee that from now on when the committee turns up inefficiency, the armed services will root it out immediately—if the Truman Committee will refrain from a public airing. . . . Certain Senators still have their fingers crossed. . . . It remains an unfortunate fact that WAC recruiting is suffering as a result of John O'Donnell's contraceptive story. . . . Also it is felt in high Army circles that Colonel Hobby has slightly over-organized the WACS. The WACS themselves would prefer male officers to women. They say the men aren't so tough.

Postwar Industry

The President has just had a significant conference with Representative Wright Patman of Texas on postwar domestic economy.

The President expressed himself forcefully on the necessity of greater decentralization of industry after the war, said every section of the country should, as far as possible, be made "economically self-sufficient." Our vast program of war production has been instrumental in the spread of industry to many sections in the South and West that previously had no factories to speak of, the President said.

But he added that there was still much to be done. For example, steel had to be shipped all the way across the country to aircraft plants and shipyards on the West Coast, though the West and Northwest are rich in iron ore deposits which haven't been developed because the steel trust has concentrated its mills and blast furnaces in the East.

Out of Patman's talk at the White House evolved the meeting of 50 Congressmen from 26 States to demand that the Administration take steps now to insure greater decentralization of industry.

Senator Pat McCarren of Nevada, Representative John Coffee of Washington, Clinton Anderson of New Mexico and Cecil King of California were the main movers.

Merry-Go-Round

Top men in the War Department were boiling mad over the treatment Selfridge Field court-martial which merely reduced Col. William T. Coleman to the rank of captain for shooting a Negro private. Generally it is difficult to increase the penalties of courts-martial, but this time Army chiefs are so incensed they will try to do it. . . . Without any fanfare, Attorney General Biddle has been quietly reorganizing his Justice Department. In addition to Congressman Jim McGranery of Philadelphia, who becomes Assistant to the Attorney General, Ed Ennis takes over the Registration of Foreign Agents. . . . Herbert Bayard Swope, genius of the old New York World and a director of the Columbia Broadcasting System, has determined that CBS directors get to the bottom of censorship charges against Columbia. . . . Congressman Ramspeck of Georgia has declared war against the civil service requirement of a college degree for any man holding most Government jobs which pay over $1800. Ramspeck declares that anyone serving in the armed forces has better qualifications than a college education and that war service will be equivalent to a college degree when the boys come home.

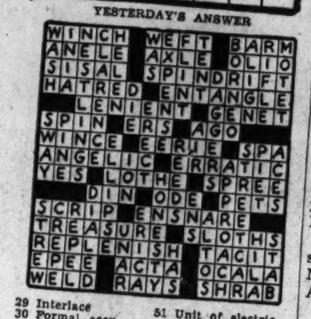
YESTERDAY'S ANSWER



WAC Dies in Leap In Hotel Blaze, Another Burned

Phoenix, Ariz., Oct. 6 (AP).—A terrified Women's Army Corps member, identified as Esther M. Clearwater, 23, New Paltz, N. Y., leaped from a burning sixth-floor hotel room today to her death.

Her clothing ablaze, the girl disregarded shouts from horrified witnesses and jumped.

Another WAC, identified as Maude D. Stewart, 28, Relfs Bluffs, Ark., suffered first and second-degree burns. She was rescued from the burning room by Lewis Sachse, a veteran, who was attracted by the screaming women.

Both were stationed at Williams Field, twin-engine training field, about 35 miles from Phoenix. Firemen said the fire started from a burning cigarette.

Major Dodge Put On Inactive Duty

Indianapolis, Oct. 6 (AP).—Maj. Horace E. Dodge, member of the Detroit automotive family, who was commissioned in the Army Reserve in July, 1942, has been placed on inactive duty by an Army Medical Board at Fort Benjamin Harrison.

Fort Harrison officers said the board had reviewed the case at Major Dodge's own request, but disclosed no further details. Answering criticism of Dodge's commission last year, Secretary of War Stimson said it was granted because of Dodge's knowledge of small speed boats.

Detroit Voters Nominate Jeffries And FitzGerald

Detroit, Oct. 6 (AP).—Edward J. Jeffries, jr., incumbent, and Frank FitzGerald, the latter indorsed by the United Automobile Workers (CIO) and the American Federation of Labor in Detroit, were nominated as mayoralty condidates in yesterday's nonpartisan primary, with Fitzgerald polling almost half the total vote cast.

The complete tabulation gave FitzGerald 97,548 and Jeffries 59,945. The total vote cast for 14 aspirants for the nominations was 198,984, of which Charles Bowles, recalled as mayor in 1930, received 17,878, and Frank Murphy, a former Michigan Lieutenant Governor, 8334.

The size of FitzGerald's vote surprised even the labor-indorsed candidate himself.

"This is only the first heat—and I have just begun to fight," Jeffries commented.

Publisher Withdraws Libel Counts Against 3

New York, Oct. 6 (AP).—Victor F. Ridder, editor and publisher of the New York Staats-Zeitung, with drew in Essex Market Court today his complaints charging criminal libel against Rex Stout, author; Dr. Frederick W. Foerster, German scholar, and Theodore H. Tetens.

Magistrate Morris Rothenberg dismissed the charges after Ridder's counsel, Charles W. Newmark, told the court Ridder was unable to prove the defendants published a 32-page pamphlet involved in the case.

7 Naturalized Citizens of U. S. Indicted as Spies for Germany

A sealed indictment, charging seven naturalized American citizens with prewar conspiracy to transmit military information to Germany in violation of the Espionage Act, was opened yesterday in the Federal District Court at Newark, N. J., Attorney General Biddle announced.

The indictment, returned by a Newark grand jury Tuesday, alleged the seven German-Americans conspired between April 1, 1939, and December 6, 1941, to send to Germany documents, code, maps, photographs and other information relating to the national defense. The Justice Department said two of the seven have been serving in the Army.

Three of those named in the indictment were among 29 defendants charged in an indictment returned in the same court Tuesday with conspiring to act as Nazi agents without proper notification to the Government.

Individuals Indicted

The Justice Department said those named in the sealed indictment were:

Fritz Schroeder, 43, former national leader of the German-American Vocational League, New York.

Felix Gusta" Adolph Jahnke, 41, New York, and Gustav Wilhelm Kaercher, 47, Westwood, N. J., both of whom recently completed two-year sentences for violations of the Foreign Agents Registration Act.

Hans Philip Koenig, 41, and Joseph Benedict Lieblein, 29, both of New York and both now in the Army.

Carl Kranz, 43, Rochester, N. Y.

Eric Heinrich Wilhelm Wedemeyer, 41, Floral Park, N. Y.

The maximum penalty for violation of the prewar espionage statute is 20 years' imprisonment.

Basis of Operation

While the conspiracy allegedly was directed from overseas by German government agents, the indictment charged that officers of the German-American Vocational League, New York, served as a clearing house and arranged for meetings and the exchange of information.

Three methods were used in transmitting information to Germany, the indictment charged. They included a secret short-wave radio station for direct communication between the defendants and Nazi headquarters in Hamburg and maintenance of mail drops in such cities as Buenos Aires, Lisbon, Madrid, Hamburg and Shanghai for handling letters written in code or invisible ink.

The indictment also charged that plans, documents and mechanical devices were microphotographed and the small negatives given to couriers working on ships.

The Justice Department said the case, climaxing an intensive investigation started by the FBI in 1938, is closely related to the famous Duquesne and Ludwig cases of 1941 and 1942 in which 41 persons were convicted for acting as German spies.

Food for Army Burns

Penn Yan, N. Y., Oct. 6 (AP).—More than 150,000 cases of canned goods, largely destined for use by the armed forces, were destroyed today by fire of undetermined origin at Comstock Canning Co. plant. The loss was estimated at $500,000 by Plant Superintendent Morris Johnson.

gard the last provision in practice; but that is not to be assumed. . . ."

The Associated Press announced there would be no statement on the decision of the court at this time. There will, however, be a meeting of the board of directors, starting October 19, to consider the matter.

The Government in its suit sought to force the Associated Press to abandon its membership structure and make available its news reports to all applicants without restrictions.

A stay of 120 days was granted to the Associated Press by the court to give the cooperative news-gathering organization time in which to make the directed changes in the bylaws.

The court concluded:

"Finally, because the interests involved are so important and so large; because the injury done may be so great, if we turn out to be wrong; and because we are not agreed, the whole judgment will be stayed for a period of 60 days after it is entered and subsequently for the pendency of any appeal to the Supreme Court, if one is taken within that period."

The three-judge court was composed of Judges Learned Hand, Augustus N. Hand, and Thomas W. Swan.

Dissenting Opinion

Judge Swan, in a dissenting opinion, held that the motion for summary judgment—decision of the court without trial—should be denied, and added:

"Clearly the provisions of AP's bylaws as to admission of members have had no tendency to create a monopoly in news gathering. Witness the growth of United Press, International News Service, and other news-gathering agencies. Nor is there proof that they, by bylaws, have stifled competition between newspapers and other newspaper owners or prospective publishers."

The court held that if the bylaw changes were made as it directed the exclusivity of local news of spontaneous origin furnished the Associated Press by members would be within the law, but held that such operations under present bylaws was unlawful.

In its civil suit filed against the Associated Press in Federal District Court on August 28, 1942, the Government asked that the world's largest news gathering organization open its membership rolls to any newspaper willing to pay its proportionate share of the cost of gathering news.

Claimed Illegal Restraint

Named as defendants were the association, a non-profit cooperative corporation under the laws of New York State since 1900; the 18 member board of directors, the publishers of the newspapers with which the directors are identified and the approximately 1400 other members in the United States as a group.

The Government claimed that provisions of the AP by-laws which exclude competitors of existing members from membership and the AP News Report, illegally restrain and monopolize interstate commerce in news and illegally restrain the interstate commerce of newspapers which are prevented from obtaining AP news.

Further the petitioner contended that the provision of the AP bylaws requiring each member to furnish local news gathered by its own staff excusively to the AP illegally restrains and monopolizes interstate commerce in news.

"Without the AP service a newspaper suffers competitive disadvantages," the Government asserted.

In its answer filed last October 27, the Associated Press denied the Government's charge of monopoly and stated that if it was deprived of its right to choose its members the assurance of an impartial and unbiased news report no longer would exist.

Referring to the rejected membership application of Marshall Field's Chicago Sun, the Associated Press said the vote of the members denying the application was due largely, if not entirely to three obstacles erected by Field and representatives of the antitrust division of the Department of Justice.

The AP said Field, coincident with his application for membership, charged that the AP was engaged in a conspiracy to violate the antitrust laws. The news service declared that Field's action in substance was a "threat of litigation and not a bona fide application for membership."

The AP said that since Field had not acquired any newspaper plant there was no assurance that he intended to continue "with reasonable permanence the publication of a newspaper after the exigencies of a particular political controversy should have ceased to exist."

How U. S. State Department Worked to Keep French Fleet Out of German Hands

the French fleet away from Hitler even before the Franco-German armistice was signed at Compiegne on June 22, 1940.

They show that President Roosevelt warned the French Government that if it surrendered the fleet it "would permanently lose the friendship and good will of the Government of the United States," not to mention France's overseas possessions.

But the documents also show that the French leaders—Marshal Petain, the late Admiral Darlan, and others—solemnly promised that their fleet would never be surrendered. They show, moreover, that French ship captains were told at the very outset to scuttle their vessels if the Germans grabbed for them.

On June 17, 1940, five days before the Franco-German armistice and while German bombs were still falling on French cities, Secretary Hull sent an urgent message to Ambassador Anthony J. Drexel Biddle, who was with the fugitive French government at Bordeaux. William Bullitt, who was the regular Ambassador to France, was in Paris at this time, having agreed to remain behind for the entry of the German army.

Secretary Hull told Biddle that President Roosevelt wanted him to obtain "immediately" an interview with Admiral Darlan and Foreign Minister Paul Baudoin. Biddle was to make clear to them this Government's views with regard to the French fleet—views which had been made "very clear to the French government on previous occasions."

"The President desires you to say," Hull told Biddle, "that . . . should the French government, before concluding any armistice with the Germans, fail to see that the fleet is kept out of the hands of her opponents, the French government . . . will fatally impair the preservation of the French empire and the eventual restoration of French independence and autonomy.

"Furthermore, should the French government fail to take these steps and permit the French fleet to be surrendered to Germany, the French government will permanently lose the friendship and goodwill of the Government of the United States."

Darlan's Assurance

Biddle wired back next day that the President's message had been delivered to Darlan, that Darlan had placed it before the government, and that he had given assurances in the most solemn manner that "the French fleet would never be surrendered to the enemy: 'La question ne se pose pas.'"

The French, Darlan told Biddle, were "deeply pained" that President Roosevelt had seen fit to issue his warning about the loss of America's friendship.

Despite Admiral Darlan's assurances, President Roosevelt and Secretary Hull kept after the French. Apparently, they were fearful that Pierre Laval and other pro-German elements might try to hand over the fleet. Laval earlier had joined in promising that the Germans would not get the ships.

Message to Petain

On October 25, 1940, by which time the French Government had moved to Vichy, Secretary Hull gave French Ambassador Henry-Haye a message from President Roosevelt to forward to Marshal Petain. This was in answer to a claim by the French government that it was under duress and could not act as a free agent.

President Roosevelt, after again warning the French against surrender of their fleet, said that nothing in France's position would justify her in giving any assistance to Germany in her war with Great Britain.

Anything like that, the President told the aged French leader, would "definitely wreck" Franco-American friendship, would kill all chances of this country giving assistance to the French in their distress, and would create a "wave of bitter indignation" against the French in this country.

U. S. Not Yet in War

If France helped Germany against the British, Mr. Roosevelt went on to say, "the United States could make no effort when the appropriate time came to exercise its influence to insure to France the retention of her overseas possessions."

The United States was not then in the war, and would not get into it for more than a year, but President Roosevelt appeared to be quite sure that Hitler, then at the height of his military glory, would be a loser.

Marshal Petain replied to this message on November 1, 1940, reiterating that France would never surrender her fleet and displaying irritation that her solemn promise should be questioned. He also pointed out that the British had attacked the French at Oran and Dakar, and had given support to General De Gaulle and other "rebels."

On November 4 Secretary Hull made a memorandum of a talk he had just had with Ambassador Henry-Haye. Apparently the conference was a lively one. Hull complained about Vichy's lack of frankness with the United States Government, and warned him that it would not "get 2 inches" by this kind of conduct. He told him that "we propose to be on our guard" with respect to acts by the Vichy government, inspired by Laval, who intended to give Hitler help in the form of French naval and air bases and other support.

Ships at Martinique

In this conference, Hull proposed that the French warships at Martinique be demilitarized by removing some of their parts. Henry-Haye agreed that this was reasonable and later on it was done.

The sixth document made public by the State Department was the letter President Roosevelt wrote to Admiral William Leahy on December 20, 1940, when he was sending him to Vichy as United States Ambassador. In this the President told Admiral Leahy to "cultivate as close relations with Marshal Petain as may be possible." He then gave him detailed instructions as to what he was to tell Petain about this Government's views, but always emphasizing the importance of keeping the French fleet away from German hands.

On December 12, eight days before the President wrote to Admiral Leahy, Marshal Petain made this statement to Charge d'Affaires Robert Murphy: "I hope your President understands that I have kept and will continue to keep the solemn promise I made that the French fleet will be scuttled before it is allowed to fall into German hands."

Eleven months later that promise was redeemed by the suicide of the French fleet at Toulon.

THE VICTOR PLITTS

are one of the good American families who are right in the thick of the battle for a future not only secure, but full of the good things of life. Are you with them in this battle?

Start Today to build your Personal Post War World

—Here are 7 Practical Things you can do

VICTOR PLITT, like many of us, is busier than ever at a war job. He finds himself in position to spend more money than he used to . . . but he's thinking about the future. He wants, for himself and his family, those personal benefits that mean so much to every American—and he's willing to work and save for them today.

You can do what he is doing . . . we all can. We can follow the seven-point program suggested by our Government . . .

1. Buy and hold war bonds—to lend our country the money it needs now to fight the war to victory.
2. Pay willingly your share of taxes—including increased taxes—that our country needs.
3. Provide for your own and your family's future by adequate life insurance and savings.
4. Reduce your debts as much as possible and avoid making needless new ones.
5. Buy only what you need and make what you have last longer.
6. Live faithfully by the rationing rules to conserve goods of which there are shortages.
7. Cooperate with our Government's price and wage stabilization program.

THESE things are typically American—hard work and thrift are part of the American tradition. They have won us freedom and made us great.

So if today the necessary self-denial seems hard, keep in mind that you are working for what you want in your post war world.

Keep in mind, too, that by spending less and saving more you are helping to put a brake on the cost of living. An uncontrolled rise in prices is the worst thing that could happen to us on the home front now.

Why not join Victor Plitt and millions of other Americans in their fight for a better tomorrow? Follow the simple budget form here. Follow it to help win your own Post War World.

AMERICA'S LIFE INSURANCE COMPANIES bring you this plan of action not only to help you to win the kind of future you want, but to urge you to join wholeheartedly with all loyal Americans to keep down living costs during these critical war days.

One of the effective ways to hold down living costs, as our Government suggests, is to buy and hold life insurance—a way which 67 million policyholders have already taken with the guidance of their life insurance agents.

Remember that the premiums you pay for your life insurance are also helping to pay for the war—for a large part of them are invested in Government bonds.

Japanese Savagery

After 22 months of war the American people do not need convincing that in fighting Japan they are fighting a ruthless and savage foe. There have been too many instances of the flouting of even the most elementary decencies of civilized life to leave any doubts on that score. The beheading of that Allied aviator at Salamaua is the latest of these instances. The story is told in grim and gory detail in a diary captured from a Japanese soldier. And it is of a piece with the execution of some of the Doolittle fliers who were unfortunate enough to have been captured by the enemy, the treatment of war prisoners, and other acts of barbarism perpetrated by the would-be masters of the Far East.

As the President told his press conference Tuesday, the Japanese are a people who lack civilization. Over a period of 80 years they acquired the veneer. But it has only been to them a borrowed cloak which they doff the first moment it suits them. The aviator, in this instance, was beheaded because he had been engaged in a bombing raid on what was clearly a military objective. But while the Japanese never thought the worst of themselves for bombing Chungking and other undefended Chinese cities repeatedly and mercilessly, they deemed it an affront tantamount to a crime to be bombed in turn.

In their own warped minds, perhaps, they thought they were doing their unfortunate victim an honor by executing him in the manner befitting a samurai. But they were only revealing their own inward fears of the wrath to come and their basic savagery. This crime, together with the other crimes they have perpetrated, will not be forgotten by the American people.

Government Factories

Representative Martin, minority leader of the House, called attention in a recent public address to the Government's enormous investment in war industries. Because so many of the plants built with public funds and owned by the Government are leased to private managements and operated as part of already going private concerns, the extent of the Government's interest is not fully realized by the public. Yet, as Mr. Martin pointed out, in some of the Nation's strategic war industries the Government actually owns an overwhelming proportion of existing productive plant capacity. Synthetic rubber and high octane gasoline top the list, with the Government controlling 100 per cent of the plants engaged in manufacture of these products. Ninety per cent of aircraft construction capacity and more than 50 per cent of aluminum productive capacity is Government-owned.

The industrial expansion of the past three years covering the period of defense preparations and most of the war period provides especially startling proof of the dominant position of the Government as a provider of industrial capital. The Index, a quarterly publication of the New York Trust Co., in a special article on "America's New Industrial Empire," notes that out of more than 19 billion dollars spent between June 30, 1940, and the end of last March on new war plant facilities the Government furnished over 15 billion dollars, or 78 per cent of the whole. When the construction program for the aircraft industry is complete, the Government's investment in that industry will, according to the Index, amount to well over 10 times the value of privately owned investments.

It would be foolish and futile to deplore the fact that the war has brought about what Mr. Martin calls "bureaucratic encroachment in the business field." The job was too big, the risks and in some cases the certainty of loss on capital investments were too great for private industry to undertake. The Government had to act and, having acted, it will have to protect the public interest by seeing that its investments are not needlessly sacrificed or given away after the war is over.

Private industries operating Government-owned war plants hold purchase options on only half this property, and many of these options will not be taken up. The status of many hundreds of plants will, therefore, remain to be determined. Naturally the Government will want to obtain fair prices if it sells and reasonable returns if it rents its plants. However, the financial stakes involved in methods of disposal are of minor importance compared with the major problems of policy involved. The Government might, for example, hold on to its extensive interests in certain industries and "socialize" them. Or it might, as Mr. Martin warns, use the power given it as owner of important productive facilities to wage unfair competition with private industry.

Since the Government presumably reflects the will of the people, and the people believe in the system of private enterprise, there is good reason to suppose that it will relinquish its war-acquired industrial holdings when the emergency is over. It is not easy to lay down a definite policy in respect of problems of such complicated nature as that of war plant disposal. But it would clear the atmosphere of the vapors of suspicion if Congress and the Administration were to unite in a strong declaration of intention to work with business after the war for the preservation of the system of private enterprise.

Brewster Case

The shock which was caused in Congress by Mrs. Meyer's story in Sunday's Post of the anarchy prevailing in the Brewster Aeronautical Corp. has been followed by prompt action. In the Senate Tuesday, Senator Wheeler delivered a running account of the news article. He then got permission to insert the story in the Congressional Record. In the House, which had been buzzing equally with the Senate over Mrs. Meyer's revelations, the House Naval Affairs Committee swung into action by appointing a subcommittee of investigation. The chairman himself, Representative Vinson, will head it. This was a proper procedure, since in April, 1942, under executive order, the Navy had taken over the Brewster plants and properties, relegating the operating responsibility to managements of its own choice.

The story is a sad sign that as a Nation we are still not backing the attack with our full vigor. Brewster's record of "failure to deliver airplanes in anywhere near the quantity it should," of what Representative Vinson called its "deplorable production," shows that one sector of our home front is gravely deficient. It is deficient because of the chaos in the relations between labor and management. This has left real power in the hands of a labor boss, Tom de Lorenzo, president of UAW-CIO Local 365. Mr. de Lorenzo has built up what the Baruch report on manpower would call "an empire of power," which has been challenged neither by the workers nor by the management. He was enabled to do this by the supineness and incompetence of management. That management, which has long since been superseded, bartered a low-wage scale for the union shop, which put first the workers and then the management in bondage to Mr. de Lorenzo. It was this situation that the Navy inherited. It did little about the matter except to change managements. The last change was in March, when the Navy put in a new president and a new chairman of the board, the latter being none other than Henry J. Kaiser. It was a thankless assignment. And, though this new management has doubled the average monthly output, the improvement has been made from next to nothing, and the chaos in labor-management relations has not been overcome.

Mr. Kaiser, therefore, has decided to devote time he can ill spare from his manifold activities in coming to grips with Brewster anarchy. Previously, he had left everything in the hands of the Navy-appointed president. Now he has put into the plant his West Coast trouble-shooter, Henry Morton. This is the development which should govern the approach of the Vinson Committee. Investigation of the Brewster situation is not so important as support for Mr. Kaiser in his effort to straighten out the mess. That support should not be limited to the House committee, either. Brewster is the Navy's ultimate responsibility, and the Navy, together with the Senate's Navy committee, should also back up Mr. Kaiser. As Mrs. Meyer explained, Mr. de Lorenzo has promised to work with Mr. Kaiser in bringing to an end a situation which was fundamentally the creation of bad management. There are other soft spots in the aircraft industry that might better engage the Vinson Committee's attention. Brewster does not stand at the bottom of the list among the aircraft plants, despite its incompetent management. It is eighteenth out of 27, and there is no Kaiser at hand to clean up the other inadequate performers, as there is in the Brewster case.

Fair Employment

It is a serious loss to the President's Committee on Fair Employment Practice that Msgr. Francis J. Haas has resigned as its chairman. His departure will be felt with particular severity at this time because the committee, re-created only four months ago, had just begun to grapple with its vitally important national problem. It gave promise of helping materially to accelerate the war effort by promoting a fuller utilization of our manpower. And it held out to disadvantaged minority groups for the first time a real hope that the Federal Government would take effective action to end job discrimination against them. Any faltering in the efforts of the FEPC at this time would be genuinely tragic.

Under Monsignor Haas, the FEPC had at long last gotten round to holding hearings on employment discrimination in the railroad industry. The testimony given at these hearings is now under consideration, and the committee should soon be able to report its findings. Hearings into discriminatory practices charged against the Boilermakers and Iron Shipbuilders Union are scheduled for November 15. Locally, there is the problem of our own Capital Transit Co. The FEPC has much important work ahead of it.

President Roosevelt can best insure the continuance of this work by appointing a successor to Monsignor Haas without delay. Another long interregnum such as that which paralyzed and disintegrated the old FEPC might well shatter the faith of minority groups in the will or the capacity of the Government to redress their grievances. They have endured the injustice and indignity of job discrimination with patience only because they looked upon the FEPC as a remedy. This sort of orderly, democratic remecy must not be denied to them.

At The Vatican

The most recent reports concerning the position of the Pope and other residents of Vatican City under the German occupation of Rome were that the papal territory had been placed under something very like a state of siege. German troops, it appeared, had not, as previously reported, actually invaded the Vatican. They had merely erected a machine-gun barricade on the Italian side of St. Peter's Square! Certain Roman cardinals, resident outside the Vatican, were reported under house arrest, but, as far as we know, this has not been fully confirmed.

Now comes a familiar and ominous report, by way of Madrid and London, that not only are the various foreign diplomats accredited to the Vatican burning their papers but that the papal secretariat of state has also destroyed or is destroying certain documents lest they fall into Nazi hands. Presumably, these documents might serve to identify persons within the occupied countries upon whom the Gestapo could be expected to visit an immediate vengeance.

This business of burning documents is not, of course, proof positive that the Germans, before leaving Rome, intend to invade and search the Vatican, to make prisoners of the anti-Axis diplomats there, and even, perhaps, to make a hostage of the Pontiff himself. But it is evidence that those who are in closest touch with the situation at Rome do not consider such things entirely out of the question. There are historical precedents, and there is also the well-known German disposition never to commit their blunders by halves. Finally, there is the calculated propaganda attack on the Vatican by the Nazi radio, which almost certainly has been leading up to something.

We shall soon see. With the westward advance of the British Eighth Army and the northward advance of the American Fifth Army, the moment approaches when Marshal Kesselring and his troops must, to avoid encirclement, evacuate Rome. And as it approaches, the peril of the Pope increases. President Roosevelt has declared that the rescue of the Pontiff is one of the more immediate objects of the present campaign. By now Marshal Kesselring must have the orders which tell him whether he is to permit such a rescue or to forestall it by carrying off the Pontiff as prisoner.

Kos And Corsica

In view of Hitler's desperate need of a victory with which to bolster up home morale and restore the waning faith of Germany's satellites in Germany's military prowess, we can be sure that the Nazis would make a propagandist's Roman holiday of the capture of Kos, should that island actually fall into their hands, which apparently has not yet happened and may not happen. Nor could this development be dismissed as of no importance. The loss of Kos would, of course, be a setback for the Allies. It would probably lead to the loss of Leros and Samnos. These the British occupied together with Kos at the time of the Italian surrender. In the event of Axis capture of these islands, the Allies would be deprived of valuable air and naval bases which, in time, would have served as a springboard for an Allied invasion of the Balkans. Unfortunately, those islands are too remote from the principal Allied centers of air power to be easily defended, particularly if, as events may prove, the Germans are willing to invest a considerable force in the task of seizing them. Through the loss of Leros, Samnos and Kos, the Allied job of conquering the Dodecanese and thus of smashing the barrier of islands barring the water road to Greece and Bulgaria would have to be done over again.

In the meantime, the Nazis have been dislodged from their last foothold on the Island of Corsica. This actual triumph more than offsets the possible loss of Kos. Corsica, which with Sardinia, came into Allied possession some time ago, will provide the Allies with bases from which to intensify the air war on German communications in the Po Valley. These operations are of prime importance in smashing the Nazis' means of waging war. For Italy is an actual war theater, while the Balkans is only potentially one. So German jubilation over the capture of Kos, whether premature or not, doubtless will be tempered by the loss of Corsica, regardless of what Dr. Goebbels says.

RAIN PRAYER

Let the rain come, let its crystal line
Slant to the earth, glass-bright and fine;
Let the rain cut across the bed
Of the dahlias' drowsy wine and red.

Let the rain cut through the woolly mass
Of sulphur heat that clogs the grass;
Let it split the rind of the smothered pear,
And strip the dust from the grapevine's hair.

Let it rip the tight-wound covering
Of hotness, binding the wind's strong wing;
Let its knives tear through the ropes of death
That choke the morning's clean, cool breath.

Let the rain come swiftly and white the heat
With lashes of steel, till in swift retreat
The yellow gods of the drought are gone . . .
Let the rain come soon, and with white blades drawn!

BEATRICE RAW.

America At War

By Selden Menefee

Japanese-Americans

ONE OF the knottiest domestic problems posed by this war is the future of our Japanese-American population. Fortunately the War Relocation Authority, which is responsible for the 110,000 Japanese who were evacuated from the Pacific Coast in the first months of the war, is dealing with the question in a fair and realistic manner.

The evacuation itself was probably inevitable, at a time when military invasion was a possibility. It was carried out by the Western Defense Command with a minimum of injustice, considering the circumstances — which included the uprooting of 70,000 American citizens from their homes, and their enforced segregation in relocation camps.

Once that was done, however, several dangers became apparent: there was no provision for separating the loyal from the disloyal; continued segregation of Japanese-Americans while German and Italian aliens went free was bound to cause bitterness; and a considerable source of badly needed manpower was going to waste.

Releasing Citizens

The WRA saw these dangers. A year ago it set about releasing the American citizens of Japanese descent as rapidly as their loyalty could be established by a painstaking investigation.

As things stand, about half of the 38,000 American citizens of Japanese ancestry who are 18 or over have been released—two-thirds of them on indefinite leave, the remainder on temporary leave. Nearly all of these have gone to places in the Middle West or the Mountain States.

WRA officials hope that many of these will find permanent homes where they are; but they expect only perhaps a quarter of them to stick, with the remainder preferring to return to the West Coast in spite of the danger of prejudice and discrimination there.

From this point on, the job of WRA will become progressively more difficult. By the end of the year, investigations will have been completed and all but an estimated 18,500 will be eligible for release. The hope of WRA is that all those who are eligible will return to normal civilian life, to help with the war effort.

But those who have left the camps so far have been mainly the younger, more footloose "Nisei" (second-generation) group. The older ones, especially those with families, hesitate to leave after what they have heard of anti-Japanese sentiment in the outside world. But by finding places for them ahead of time, WRA hopes to induce them to make the break.

The residual group of 18,500 will at long last be segregated at the Tule Lake (Calif.) Camp. Here will be the 6250 who have expressed a desire to be sent to Japan, or who belong to families whose heads have so decided, as well as others, whose loyalty is open to question, and some 7000 present residents of the camp who will stay on there rather than leave California.

The highest percentage of would-be repatriates is not among Japanese citizens, most of whom are growing old and have lost all desire to leave the land of their adoption. It is rather among the "Kibei" youth—those born here but educated in Japan.

Postwar Descrimination

Only about 3 per cent of the Niseis want to go to Japan, most of these because their families are going or because they are in terror of postwar discrimination over here.

On the loyalty test devised by WRA to sift out dangerous or recalcitrant individuals, about 79.1 per cent of the American citizens expressed unqualified loyalty to this country and foreswore all allegiance to Japan. Many of the others qualified their answers out of fear that if they were deported they would have no citizenship status in either country. Some said "Yes," if we are allowed to return to our homes after the war."

The recent investigation of WRA by a subcommittee of the Dies Committee publicized all sorts of false statements on the Japanese and the relocation camps. Dillon Myer, director of the agency, stood his ground and slugged it out on the basis of the facts, and came out very well indeed. One witness, a former WRA employe named Harold Townsend who had been fired for incompetence and cowardice, made 37 major misstatements of fact in a single day's testimony, according to a carefully documented WRA report.

The clinching point was Myer's unchallenged statement that not a single case of subversive activity had been found among the 18,000-odd Japanese-Americans who had been released. He might have added that Nisei soldiers have acquitted themselves nobly under fire in Africa and Italy. The War Department has shown its confidence in the Niseis by opening the WACS to a limited number of girls from the camps.

After the war, our treatment of the Japanese-Americans will be a real test of our belief in democracy. If we allow racial prejudice to interfere with their constitutional rights as American citizens, we will reflect discredit on the very principles we are fighting this war to preserve.

No Rest This Year

By Barnet Nover

Germany Faces Another Winter

WITH THE COMING of the autumn rains which have transformed the roads of White Russia and the Ukraine into seas of mud, the Red army's great offensive has slowed down almost to a halt.

Over most of its great length the Eastern Front is being stabilized. But the Germans are not likely to find much comfort in that fact. For the fifth winter of war looms ahead and, as they no doubt realize, it is going to be by all odds the worst for them since the struggle began.

IN THE WINTER of 1939-40, after the successful Polish campaign, the German army had no fighting to do. It was able to rest, recuperate and prepare for its next round of aggression. Germany herself went unmolested.

The same was largely true during the winter of 1940-41. Germany was then gorged with the loot of Denmark, Norway, Belgium, the Netherlands and France. The German army enjoyed another vacation. Only the Luftwaffe was busy—with London, Plymouth, Coventry and other British cities as its victims.

There was some bombing of German cities by the RAF during that winter. But it was on a very minor scale, with raids few and far between and relatively little damage done.

THEN CAME the winter of 1941-42, the first winter the German army spent in Russia, the winter in which, for the first time during the present conflict, the Germans got some idea of the price they would ultimately have to pay for Hitler.

In the winter of 1941-42, however, the Germans did manage to retain springboards from which they could launch a new offensive in Russia the following summer.

But that did not prove true last winter, when after the German Sixth Army was destroyed at Stalingrad, the Russians seized the initiative from the enemy and launched an offensive which drove the Germans out of the Caucasus and the Don Valley. The same winter saw the Axis driven out of Egypt and Libya.

THERE IS EVERY reason to believe that when winter comes the Red Army will resume its interrupted offensive. It is the Russians who now hold the springboards. It is they rather than the Germans who are today in possession of the great north-south railways which will enable them, as it previously enabled the enemy, rapidly to concentrate forces at any particular point.

But Russia is only one, if still the major, front that the Germans have to worry about. They are threatened all along that great arc extending from the northern tip of Norway to the eastern border of Bulgaria.

During recent days they have managed by pouring in troops from Crete and Rhodes, to secure a foothold on the Dodecanese Island of Kos. They may be successful in that venture. But the Dodecanese constitute only a tiny sector of a great front.

In Italy the German army is being driven back. With the fall of Corsica the Allies have acquired potential air bases from which they will soon be able to carry out a program of continual harassment of German communication lines in the Po Valley, as well as to bomb cities in the south of the Reich.

In the meantime the bold Anglo-American naval-air raid on shipping off the northern coast of Norway is eloquent of the growing Allied strength in that area.

THERE WILL be no rest for the German army this winter. There will also be no rest for the German people this winter.

From bases in Great Britain, North Africa, Sicily, Sardinia, Corsica and Italy, Allied air power will be able to inflict increasingly heavy damage on German industry, German transportation and German morale.

Last month, despite unfavorable weather, there were Allied raids on some Nazi-held points every day, most nights, and at times, many points in a 24-hour period. And the growing strength of the American Eighth Air Force—which now has four times as many heavy bombers, six times more fighters and four times as many medium bembers as it had on May 1—is indicative of what is in store for Germany during the coming months.

A BUSINESS MAN who arrived in Stockholm this week after a tour of Greater Germany, described the Reich, in an interview with the New York Times correspondent, as a land of unrelieved gloom.

This is not surprising. Victory is a bad psychological preparation for defeat. After three years of almost unbroken victories the Germans, last year, began to suffer the sting of defeat. At first, they could comfort themselves, as Hitler and Goering tried to comfort them, with the recounting of their past triumphs. That trick no longer works.

Now the Germans face the fifth and the worst winter of war. It may prove the last. But that will depend not on what the Allies have succeeding in doing to Germany up to now but what they manage to do to Germany from now on.

From the present vantage point we can see the end of the road in Europe. But how soon we reach it will very likely be determined by how fast we travel during the next few months.

Finland's Case

Finland is engaged in a costly war against a giant neighbor undoubtedly because she was attacked. She is not fighting because of any imperialistic tendencies, nor is she fighting to honor foreign political alliances. Finland is clearly fighting for those ideals common to the Western world. As Finland's war with Russia is distinct from the controversies of the great powers, she is avidly anxious for a peace in conformity with her purely defensive aim.

The Finnish armies are now intrenched well beyond the borders of Finland proper in positions which supplement a natural defense line against attacks from the east. The Finns are anxious to retire their armies within their old national borders as soon as conclusive guaranty against attacks from the east has been received.

Until appropriate international machinery for the maintenance of peace is established, the Finns feel they must adhere to this strategic frontier which offers their only safeguard against another Soviet surprise. The Finns say they would rather die by their guns at this natural defense barrier, where some kind of self-defense is physically possible, than revert to the situation which prevailed after the forced peace treaty of 1940. This peace supplied the Soviets with strategic means of occupying all of Finland at a moment's notice, of cutting the country in half, of occupying the Scandinavian Peninsula up to the Atlantic Coast, of preventing communication with the outside world, as best might suit their whim. The time between the signing of this treaty and the beginning of the present phase of the Russo-Finnish hostilities was one the Finns are not likely to forget. Imagine trying to live for 16 months with the hangman's noose around your neck!

Now we are asking: Are Mr. Roosevelt and Mr. Churchill going to Moscow to support this old-time saber-rattling imperialism or may a really powerful international force be expected which will unfailingly and effectively use the utmost military and economic sanctions to outlaw aggression? Here is a problem that challenges thought. The problem of the tripartite meeting is so much the more baffling, as we know that Premier Stalin has gone on record as opposed to the idea of regional alliances so strongly advocated by Mr. Churchill and officially recommended by the Inter-American Juridical Committee. The idea of regional defensive alliances in a way originated when Finland proposed and Sweden and Norway in principle approved it for the northern countries. The birth of the first regional alliance was prevented by the Soviets. It remains to be seen if Mr. Stalin would approve of an international super police with sufficient military strength to offset the militia of any member country.

President Quezon

President Manuel L. Quezon of the Philippine Commonwealth in his letter to The Post the other day trotted out that old and spavined stalking horse—Philippine independence. Answering Walter Lippmann's column in The Post, in which that eminent columnist stated that unless "a reliable regime of security in the Pacific can be secured, there will be no earthly good of granting Philippine independence," Mr. Quezon countered with the statement that his "political philosophy is still old-fashioned, that of Patrick Henry: Liberty or death."

Indeed, Mr. Quezon had at one time put one over Patrick Henry when he proclaimed to the world that he "would rather have a government run like hell by Filipinos than a government run like heaven by Americans."

Mr. Quezon has desired liberty for the Philippines, but look at what kind of liberty we Filipinos now have: it is slavery under Japan!

The granting of Philippine independence while the Filipinos are under the control of Japan is a poor answer to the Japanese propaganda of giving the Filipinos their independence. At least, the Japanese Goebbels can point out to the Filipinos the fact that when the Philippines needed help in her hour of need the much-promised American help never arrived. Therefore, the better course for the United States Congress to take would be to pass a resolution declaring the intention of the American Government to recognize the independence of the Philippines as soon as the war is won, as it will be won, by the Allies. The Once Over

Those Sixteen-Point Blues

Butter!

Ah, what memories!

It is now Churned Gold, Yellow Wealth, the Golden Memory of Yesterday and the Bright Hope of Tomorrow, but we remember when it was just Butter.

Once we spoke of it as a routine foodstuff; now we speak of it as the pirates of old once spoke of buried pieces of eight.

Once we merely went to the grocery store and said, "Two pounds of your best butter"—just like that—and got it! No back talk, no arguments, no raised eyebrows. Once we wrote "Butter" on the grocery list and thought no more about it. We didn't associate it with prestige, influence, pressure, points or politicians.

There was a time when we even ordered butter over the telephone and met with no derisive laughter. Now if we order it over the telephone our wires will be tapped by FBI, OPA and the neighbors.

Yesterday it was one thing to be found in the icebox at all times, pristine, cold and gleaming like a brick of gold. Today we keep it in the bank.

We can remember when people put the butter dish right out in plain view on the table WITH VISITORS PRESENT!

Once upon a time the waiter made it a point to slip three more butter patties on your restaurant table the moment the original patties began to disappear; now if a waiter could get three patties of butter he would eat them himself.

Do you recall the time when the fellow who cooked up an oyster stew used to flip four or five slabs of butter into it without batting an eye?

Once butter came direct from the cow. Now it has to make all the intermediate stops at OPA stations, Federal commissions, globar war councils and miscellaneous gatherings of Washington lawyers.

You don't get butter from a cow any more; you get it from an administrator.

Butter, lovely butter, what a problem you've turned out to be!

Once Mom slapped big slabs of it on the porterhouse (Porterhouse: a choice cut of steak; see Beef.—Webster Unabridged.) She even put it on fish. And, boy, do you remember how she would slip a quarter of a pound of it into a baked potato! Today it's a capital offense.

She even read recipes which said, "Add four heaping tablespoons of creamery butter and FOLLOWED INSTRUCTIONS! (Without a thought about penalties, too.)

She fried the eggs in butter, put real butter on buttered toast and applied it to Junior's finger for a bad burn. (Never suspecting the day would come when it might bring the police wagon.)

And now SIXTEEN POINTS!

Excess Money

I note with pleasure the contents of Mr. Pusey's column in The Post in which he asks some pertinent questions about what sort of a war we are trying to fight on the home front. His remarks on the subject of "mollycoddling" are to the point; I feel sometimes in the midst of dark thoughts about whether the American people are really at war or only playing at it.

I am no economist, even though I had a major in economics in college. But why do we in this country continue to harp on holding the dike against rise in prices, when by the admission of experts the excess money in the hands of the people this year that they cannot spend will exceed 37 billion dollars? Is not there your chief cause of inflation? Until that huge loose purse is corralled, how could a thousand OPAs hold the dike against inflation that will be so disastrous to those of us in service and to those on fixed incomes or investment income such as schools?

Why is this problem not grappled with in all its nakedness? Clearly we shall suffer as a nation if this excess spending power is not corralled. Why don't we tax ourselves unmercifully more as the British are doing so this whole business shall be put on a business basis, and that pronto? If we don't do it we shall have the whole train of violent raids on the Treasury to contend with come peace and the return to inflation by the 12 or 15 million of us who have left our homes. Happy Dogs

In these days of motors when dogs cannot be allowed to run loose on the roads and endanger their lives and ours, every dog should have the run of an outdoor inclosure and its owner's house, and in addition be allowed to run loose as it chooses for at least an hour every day in some unconfined place, and in its owner's company, where it can do no harm nor come to any. Taxes And Dangerous Money

WHAT IS lacking in the Treasury tax program is a convincing and intelligible explanation of the problem which it is designed to deal with. An explanation which the country and Congress can understand is at this stage much more important than a discussion of the rates and specific proposals. In fact, the program cannot be supported effectively or criticized constructively until there is a general understanding and agreement on what we are trying to do and why.

LIPPMANN

MR. MORGENTHAU'S failure to explain sufficiently is evident in his own figures. He is primarily concerned, of course,—as everyone is concerned—with the fact that the money income of our people is today enormously greater than the civilian goods available for sale at the present level of prices. This excess spending money is, as he says, "dangerous money"—dangerous because it cannot buy more goods but, if spent now, can only raise the prices of goods. The purpose of the Treasury is to protect the nation against the dangers of this dangerous money.

But Mr. Morgenthau's figures show that even after his new taxes are imposed, there will still be an enormous amount of dangerous money lying around loose. Let us look at his figures. In the fiscal year ending next June 1944, the people will, it is estimated, receive an income of 152 billions whereas there will be goods and services for sale worth at present prices only 89 billions. So subtracting 89 from 152, the amount of dangerous money is 63 billions.

Of this amount 21 billions will be drawn off by personal taxes, and war bond sales will have locked up, more or less securely, say another 17 billions. Subtracting 21 plus 17 from 63 still leaves us with 25 billions of dangerous money. So the Treasury is asking for another 10 billions. But that still leaves us with 15 billions of dangerous money. That is still an enormous amount of dangerous money. It is an inflationary deficit nearly seven times as large as the net deficit of the Government in the year before Pearl Harbor.

SO THERE is something missing in Mr. Morgenthau's explanation. He is telling us that he is out to "combat inflation." But he offers us a program which Congress thinks too severe, and yet his program is, statistically, as compared with the supposedly inflationary deficit of the pre-war New Deal much more inflationary.

So the citizen who reads the Treasury statement will ask himself whether this program does really do the job it is supposed to do. Yet the citizen will be still more perplexed when he realizes that though—statistically—we have this enormous inflation, yet in fact the country does not suffer the pernicious consequences of inflation in the form of ever-rising prices.

AN ADEQUATE explanation of why this dangerous money is not now acting dangerously would give us, I think, the main clew to the problem of war finances. The explanation is, evidently, that the American people are not spending all the money they are receiving. It is this fact that they are not spending it on which we must fix our attention. For the central problem of war finance is to find ways and means of persuading the people to continue not to spend their excess income until it is once again economically safe for them to spend it.

What are the means by which non-spending is being induced? First, many things cannot be bought at all, and many others only in limited rationed quantities: in other words we are not spending because we cannot buy the things we should like to spend money on. This leads to saving either in the form of war bonds, or life insurance, or unused bank accounts. Second, we have become conscious of rising taxes, and the fact that they are rising and will continue to rise during the war acts as a powerful reminder against loose, extravagant spending, as a powerful stimulant to saving.

THE COMBINED effect of controlled and rationed goods with continually rising taxes has brought home to us, what theoretically we ought to know anyway, that in wartime we must not spend freely. For this reason the control of the effects of the inflation during the war and for the immediate postwar period demands that we continue to control and ration goods on the one hand, and that on the other we remain conscious of the fact that next year's taxes will be larger than this year's.

The Congressmen who wish to remove the controls of goods and also to stabilize the tax rates will, if they have their way, make an economic chaos.

ON THE financial side it is almost certain that our secret weapon against the effects of inflation has been that our taxes have risen so rapidly during the war. It is the rapidity of the rise, rather than the absolute amount of the taxes, which has had the most far-reaching beneficial effect. That is the reason why another tax bill, jacking up the rates still higher, is so very necessary and so very desirable.

A few figures may indicate the real value of our, by no means unsuccessful, war finance. Take a married man with two dependents and a net income of $3000. In 1941 he paid $58; in the United Kingdom he paid $409. But in 1943 the American pays $326, not counting the postwar refund, and the Briton pays $755. The direct British taxes on the same income are still more than twice as high. But the American's taxes in the two years of war have been multiplied 5½ times, whereas the Briton's have been multiplied less than twice.

THE BRITISH collect more money from a man with this income. But we have been changing his taxpaying habits much faster. This rapid change of their taxpaying habits has proved to be a rather effective way of convincing people to hold on to their money.

The inner purpose of the next fiscal measure must be, therefore, to continue this pressure against free spending. The means for doing this are higher tax rates that are visible to the spender, plus compulsory saving in some form or other, always backed up by the knowledge that as the war continues to draw upon our resources, taxes will continue to rise. For in the last analysis we cannot drain off the whole of the inflationary money. What we can do is to impound it, to freeze it, to make people not want to spend it, until civilian goods can again be produced to match the money.

FINALLY, IT should be said that even after the armistice we cannot for some time return to normal. It will take a long time—some years at least—before the controls of goods and of purchasing power can safely be relaxed. And no one is a true conservator of our economic order who does not have this clearly and constantly in mind.

Senate to Hear Secret Report On War Fronts

By Mary Spargo
Post Staff Writer

The last of five globe-girdling Senators returned yesterday to join in a secret Senate session today at which the three Democrats and two Republicans will air surprisingly similar views on British and Russian policies and the necessity for this country to take a "tougher stand" as to its needs in the war and in the peace to come.

Senator Chandler (Democrat) of Kentucky, last to return from a 45,000-mile air tour of the global fighting fronts of the United States, came loaded for bear—and lions.

In advance of his speech he said he believed the Senate should take the following steps:

1. Throw its influence against the invasion of the western coast of France, which he said would be a sure fire means of "mass murdering" American troops.

More Aid for Generals

2. Demand immediate strengthening of aid to Gen. Joseph Stilwell, American commander in the India-Burma theater; Gen. Claire L. Channault, commander of the Fourteenth Air Force in China and Gen. Douglas MacArthur, commander in the Southwest Pacific.

3. Seek Russian bases by controling lend-lease or other aid to Russia.

Chandler warned that Stilwell and Channault needed great aid immediately, and asserted the British were "lukewarm" in the war against Japan. He said the United States would be in a serious position if it lost its bases in China and had none in Russia either.

The Kentucky Senator called for greater participation by members of the United States Senate in international conferences. He said it would be an excellent thing if a member of the Foreign Relations Committee were to be sent to the forthcoming tripartite conference in Moscow.

Confidence in Hull

At the same time Chandler made it clear that a request for Senate representation at such a conference was not to be interpreted as derogatory to Secretary of State "I have every confidence in Secretary Hull.

Chandler, a member of the Military Affairs Committee, asserted that "we might as well serve notice on the world that we intend to keep some of the strategic bases we have so painfully acquired."

Chandler lashed out at Churchill's suggestion of joint Anglo-American citizenship in the postwar world.

"He put that up to us in England before his Harvard speech," Chandler revealed, and he added:

"What does he mean? Are the British going to give up King and Emperor and vote for our President, or are we going to give up the President and become subjects of the King?"

The other four, who already have talked with the press, are Senators Russell (Democrat) of Georgia, Mead (Democrat) of New York, Brewster (Republican) of Maine, and Lodge (Republican) of Massachusetts.

Despite the admittedly critical attitude on some points toward Great Britain and Russia, of the five senatorial travelers, all called for some sort of realistic international plan to prevent future wars.

Laws Imperil Wage Rights, AFL Warned

By Joseph A. Loftus
Associated Press Staff Writer

Boston, Oct. 6.—L. Metcalfe Walling, Wage and Hour Administrator, told the American Federation of Labor convention today a trend in State legislation is operating to defeat the Fair Labor Standards Act in practice.

Instead of making a frontal attack on the act, its foes have introduced bills which would shorten the period during which a worker may collect the wages of which he has been defrauded, Walling said such legislation passed in four States, Alabama providing that a worker cannot collect after one year on wages illegally withheld, and Oregon dropping the period to six months. The statute of limitations under any other contract runs 6 or 7 years in most States, Walling said.

"You can see," he added, "how it would cut down on the 17 million dollars in restitution we found due this year. Already, in the States where it has been put through, it is operating to mulct workers of their legally earned wages, and to give an unfair competitive advantage to those employers who want to sail close to the wind and take a chance on not getting caught before the time has passed when they can be forced to pay."

Walling said that despite the higher wages paid generally, many instances of failure to pay minimum wages are found. Of the cases in which the 17 million dollars in restitution was agreed to or ordered paid in the last fiscal year, more than a third involved failure to pay minimum wages of 30 to 40 cents.

Joseph A. Padway, AFL counsel, told the delegates that "the greatest calamity that has befallen us" was the passage of legislation regulating unions in a dozen States in the past year or two and similar bills offered elsewhere.

"I say to you," declared Padway, "that unless we are able to thwart the passage of these bills or kill them in the court, fascism has come to the United States."

Negro Plea by Msgr. Haas

Earlier in the day, Msgr. Francis J. Haas, chairman of the President's Fair Employment Practices Committee, made a plea for the admission of Negroes and other minority groups to unions on an equal footing with all other members.

He cautioned that if these minority groups find organized management and organized labor against him "he will in some form revolt." The speaker said the AFL should not want it otherwise, because the AFL itself was born of a spirit of revolt against those who would restrict inalienable rights.

The convention also heard talks by Capt. John R. Perry of the Seabees, and Edward J. Phelan, acting director of the International Labor Office.

Returning Servicemen

Increasing concern among labor leaders about the attitude of returning servicemen was reflected today in resolutions proposed at the AFL convention, notably one which would make an honorble discharge a ticket of admission to unions in lieu of an initiation fee.

Other resolutions proposed vocational training and rehabilitation programs, amendments to State insurance and compensation laws to protect disabled or aging veterans, and a labor press service for servicemen to help thwart any open shop drive which employers may attempt after the war.

Honorable discharge in lieu of initiation fee is proposed by the Santa Cruz, Calif., Central Labor Union in an advisory resolution which says that the armed forces "have been flooded with strongly anti-union propaganda advising them that organized labor is holding up production of materials vital to the prosecution of the war.

As to Initiation Fees

"High initiation fees," the resolution added, "to secure future employment may tend to crystallize this antiunion feeling among war veterans upon their return."

WLB Orders Pittsburgh Strike Ended

Declaring their strike was interferring with the supply of food products for the armed forces, the War Labor Board yesterday ordeed 500 striking bakery and confectionery workers at the D. L. Clark Co. of Pittsburgh, to return to work immediately.

The dispute was certified to the board only a short time earlier by the Labor Department.

The board, in telegrams sent to Sam Wehofei, president of Local No. 12, and Andrew A. Myrup, president of the International Union of Bakery and Confectionery Workers (AFL) said the work stoppage was in violation of labor's no-strike pledge.

"Final determination of the issues in dispute will shortly be made in an orderly and peaceful fashion by the Government through the War Labor Board," the telegram said.

Some N. Y. Milkmen Back

New York, Oct. 6 (AP).—Representatives of the Borden Co. said today that employes who staged a work stoppage here yesterday along with Sheffield Farms Milk Co. men had returned to work this morning and deliveries were being made.

The action followed a War Labor Board directive ordering the milkmen—some of whom have been away from their jobs since Monday—to return to the plants by 9 a. m. today or jeopardize their right to severance pay and other benefits.

Sheffield workers, however, remained absent, and approximately 370,000 families in the metropolitan area again went without their early morning deliveries of milk.

Members of the Milk Wagon Drivers Union, an affiliate of the American Federation of Labor Teamsters Union, started reporting "sick" Monday in protest against a WLB decision, permitting a reduction in milk routemen and a continuation of the skip-a-day delivery plan.

Government Of Cuba Seizes Bacardi Plant

Havana, Oct. 6 (AP).—The Cuban Government today seized the 12-million-dollar distillery and brewery of the Bacardi Co. at Santiago, as a result of the company's failure to raise salaries of more than 1000 employes.

An intervenor, delegated by President Batista on recommendation of the Cubar board of economic warfare, carried out the seizure with an escort of provincial and national police.

It was the second time in three days that an industrial plant has been taken over. Monday the government seized the Tinguaro Mill of the Cuban-American Sugar Co. because the company had failed to repair 1 million dollars of damage done in a fire last January 22, so the mill could operate during the season starting next January .

The sugar company is owned by capital from the United States. The Bacardi Co. has operated for 81 years as an exclusively Cuban company.

The Bacardi office in Havana said the company was the victim of an "outrage" and asserted that the Cuban Government's seizure was illegal and contrary to decisions of the national courts. Bacardi announced new appeals to the Supreme Court, and in anticipation of the seizure placed full-page advertisements in Cuba's Spanish and English-language newspapers to present its case.

Most Naples Art Treasures Survive Fight

By Relman Morin
Associated Press Staff Writer

Naples, October 2 (Delayed.)—World famous art treasures in Naples, with a few tragic exceptions, have safely survived the bombing and fighting around the city, the celebrated scholar, Prof. Amedeo Maiuri, said today.

The National Museum is unscatched except for broken windows and shrapnel hits and priceless volumes which were packed and hidden are believed to be intact.

The worst destruction occurred in the ruins of Pompei, the professor said.

"The newest excavations are irreparably injured," he said. "The Strada Dell' Abbondanza is ruined beyond restoration and the famous house of Marcus Loreius Tibortinus is completely smashed."

The professor said that Herculaneum was untouched by bombs, however. He added that the tragic irony of the bombing of Pompei was that the Germans had never actually encamped inside the famous excavated city. He said that they were only in the vicinity.

Evidence of German Vehicles

What appeared to be unmistakable evidences of German military vehicles and tanks were visible inside the ruins last Wednesday when this Associated Press corespondent was there. However, they may have been made since Maiuri's last visit.

He almost paid with his life in an attempt to devise means of protecting the Pompei excavations. He went there after the first Allied bombs were dropped on German military installations near by hoping to be able to signal the planes away from the actual excavations. While returning to Naples a bomb fragment broke his leg and the famous classicist is still unable to leave his bed.

We found him lying on a cot in a damp, unheated, unlighted corner of the National Museum, where he insisted upon coming during the last three days before the Allied entry into Naples, when severe street fighting developed between Itálians and Germans. He said he feared that the Germans might attempt to pillage the museum before they abandoned the city.

Demanded Hospital Release

Although in great pain and unable to leave his bed, he forced the doctors to discharge him from the hospital and had himself carried into his beloved museum. His wife was trying to heat a little food on a kerosene stove in the corner.

Only a few of the heaviest Greek statues and works of art are actually left in the museum. They are surrounded by sandbags bolstered by wooden scaffolds. The more perishable works were long ago removed to a "secret and sacred" place, the professor declared. He said he did not believe the Germans had found them.

He denied that the famous San Martino Museum had been destroyed. He said that the rumor started when the Germans blew up Castel Sant' Elmo, the Carthusian Monastery adjacent to the museum.

Within Naples itself there was some destruction of priceless historical structures, he said. The seventeenth century church of San Filippo Neri was hit by a bomb. The even more important church of Santa Chiara was totally destroyed. It dated back to the fourteenth century and was the chief Gothic work of its kind in Italy.

Proud of Fighting Italians

Maiuri's eyes filled with tears when he spoke of this.

Despite the damage to important antiquities, however, he said he took the greatest pride in the fight that the Neapolitans put up against the Germans.

"Remember, this is the first Italian city to give them a real battle. I myself from these windows saw boys not yet of 'teen age throwing hand grenades and helping to excavate German mines. They fought in the streets right beside men," he said.

He said that the Germans had posted a notice calling all Italian men born in a certain year to report for labor service. The German commander asked for 30,000, but only 130 obeyed, Maiuri said.

"Tell my colleagues and all art lovers in America that most of our treasures are safe," he said, "and beg them to do something—anything—arrange some kind of an international agreement whereby other antiquities in Italy can be spared."

Columbus Day Order

President Roosevelt yesterday designated October 12 Columbus Day in a proclamation which said it was especially fitting to honor a great Italian at a time "when the Italian people are striving to win back for themselves an honorable peace in the family of nations."

Sharpshooting Sgt. Benko Bags His 16th Zero in Haiphong Raid

By J. Reilly O'Sullivan
Associated Press Staff Writer

United States Fourteenth Air Force Headquarters in China, Oct. 2 (Delayed).—Gray-haired, sharpshooting Technical Sergt. Arthur Benko, 32-year-old rifle champion with a hobby of hunting, is one of the leading, if not the top aerial gunner of the U. S. Army Air Forces, with 16 planes to his credit.

He boosted his score to that total in a busy afternoon Friday (October 1) when from his gun post on a Liberator he bagged seven Zeros in a raid on Haiphong, Indo-China.

Benko, who hails from Bisbee, Ariz., already had shot down nine enemy planes. He nailed four Zeros on a mission to Ichang last May, and later got five on a raid on Hankow.

Haiphong Blasted

He accounted all alone for nearly one-quarter of the 30 Zeros knocked from the skies by the Liberators and their escorts that dumped 50 tone of bombs on Haiphong in one of the heaviest raids of the Far Eastern war. The Japanese swarmed up to wage a 40-minute running battle.

A formation of Zeros, numbering 10 to 15, made the first attack, but our fighters prevented them from coming in on the bombers from the front. Then 30 to 40 Zeros pressed home an attack on the rear bombers.

From his top gun turret in a Liberator, called The Goon, Benko got busy.

"I shot at 19 and 7 of them won't fly any more," he said. "I never worked the turret so fast in my life.

"I did most of my firing upward as they came down from above. One Zero blew up in all four directions, opening up in the middle like a blossom. While I was giving another burst I had a lucky break. A third Zero made a pass and struck into my line of fire. Both went down."

D. C. Sergeant Helps

Sergts. Caspar Chinrelison, Washington, D. C., and Robert Kirk of Alpha, Ill., crew mates of Benko, each shot down two, which were confirmed, making the "Goon's" score 11 for the mission, and 22 in all.

During combat a slug from a Zero's guns ripped through Benko's glass turret and nicked him slightly on the left wrist and neck.

Capt. Sianis Wins New Decoration

The 23-year-old pilot was cited for meritorious achievement while participating in antisubmarine activity as a pilot under hazards of unfavorable weather and attack. Previously he had been awarded the Air Medal for taking part in more than 200 hours of antisubmarine patrol.

The son of Mr. and Mrs. Chris Sianis of the Washington address, Captain Sianis was born in Kansas City, Mo. He enlisted in the Army four years ago and trained in Missouri, Florida, Alabama and California.

Morrison Minimizes Pacific

By the Associated Press

London, October 6.—Agreeing with United States Navy Secretary Frank Knox that the Pacific war holds second place in the minds of Britons, Herbert Morrison, British Home Secretary, said today that this was only natural because of the nearness of the European conflict. He reiterated British determination to fight the war in full force until both Germany and Japan are defeated.

"After all, it was not the Japs who bombed London," Morrison said at a luncheon of the Anglo-American Press Association in a discussion of possible sources of misunderstanding of British-American war problems.

Explains British Feeling

"It is plain," he added, "that the Far Eastern war does not at present loom as larg in the minds of British people as the war in Europe, but that fact has no long-term meaning. It is a very natural state of affairs.

"Europe is 20 miles away; it is where most of our troops from the home country are fighting—or soon will be. And I know you will forgive me for mentioning that the war in Europe has been with us a little longer than the other."

Recalling that Prime Minister Churchill plainly stated the British government's attitude toward the Pacific war, Morrison asserted that "Some Americans, however, think that though the attitude of the government is clear, the point of view of the British citizen is less so. I do not myself share these doubts."

Britain's military record in Burma and Malaya was an "unhappy one," Morrison said, but he added that "we know the failure to train and arm the native people, far from being a sign of imperialist sloth and negligence, was an expression of the best Wilsonian principles."

Murray Urges Auto Workers To Demand Rollback of Prices

By the Associated Press

Buffalo, N. Y., Oct. 6.—CIO President Philip Murray today urged the CIO United Automobile Workers to demand that, "in accordance with congressional commitments, prices must be rolled back" to Sept. 15, 1942, levels.

"Congress," he told the UAW-CIO eighth convention, "has not complied with its commitments to the people under the Economic Stabilization Act. The act has not been administered in accordance with its provisions and, as a result, living costs have soared. No definite effort of any nature calculated to make the act effective has been applied by any administrative agencies in Washington."

Murray declared that in recent months labor, "despite its spirit of complete self-sacrifice, despite its willingness to throw its economic weapons behind the kitchen door for the rest of the war, has not got a square deal."

He recommended mobilization and thorough utilization of manpower "under a voluntary system, not through a panicky national service act," and said a meeting of labor movements from all the United Nations, including the CIO, American Federation of Labor and the railroad brotherhoods, is "essential and necessary."

Earlier, a brief verbal exchange developed among the delegates over the question of opening a "second front" in Europe, but no positive action was taken.

Fred Williams, local 208 Detroit, opened the discussion by declaring that "our delegation in conjunction with many others wants the question of a second front brought on the floor."

Victor Reuther of Detroit, chairman of the resolutions committee, asserted a resolution adopted yesterday expressing confidence in the American and Allied Nations leaders' military judgment was placed before the convention in lieu of three others calling for a "second front."

"We didn't try to conceal the resolution," he asserted. "I told you so yesterday, and the proceedings will show it."

R. J. Thomas, UAW-CIO president, asked the convention if it was willing to reopen the question and a large number of delegates shouted "No." An unidentified delegate accused the resolution committee of failing to "bring a controversial issue before" the convention.

British Destroyer Sinks U-Boat

London, Oct. 6 (AP).—The British destroyer Inconstant sank a German submarine which threatened "an important and valuable convoy" in the Mediterranean near Algiers several weeks ago, the Admiralty disclosed tonight.

After sighting the U-boat, the destroyer moved in between it and a 17,000-ton transport of the convoy and immediately attacked the undersea craft with depth charges.

The U-boat, apparently blown to the surface, appeared about 800 yards from the destroyer with its bow rising 60 feet above the surface but sank, only to emerge again with its bow at a 30-degree angle.

The Inconstant then opened fire "with every gun which could be brought to bear," the communique said, and within half an hour scored three hits, one of which blew away part of the submarine's conning tower. A number of survivors were picked up and taken prisoner.

Roosevelt Gives Four Planes To Government of Yugoslavia

President Roosevelt yesterday personally presented four American-built Liberator heavy bombers to their Yugoslavian combat crews, in impressive ceremonies attending the creation of the first American-trained Yugoslavian air unit.

"These planes," said the President in brief extemporaneous remarks, "will serve a two-fold purpose:

"One, to drop bombs on the common enemy.

"Two, to deliver to the Yugoslavian Patriots, the supplies for which they have waited so long—food, medicine, and yes, arms and ammunition."

To Fly Atlantic

The President sat bare-headed in an open, White House car on the main runway at Bolling Field during the ceremony. He turned the big Consolidated bombers over to the Yugoslavs through Maj. Gen. Barney M. Giles, chief of staff of the Army Air Forces, who in turned formally presented them to the Yugoslavian Ambassador, Constantin Fotitch.

Forty Yougoslavian airmen, temporarily commanded by Maj. M. V. Mishovich, former Yugoslav air attache, then received the planes to fly them across the Atlantic. They will join Maj. Gen. James H. Doolittle's strategic Northwest African Air Force.

President Roosevelt received a 21-gun salute as he entered Bolling Field and drove through lines of soldiers and smart WACS to where the bombers and their new crews were lined up waiting.

Crews Trained Here

All of the Yugoslav pilots are veterans of their Nation's air force and many have seen combat. They and the plane crews received training here in big bomber operations.

When flying from bases in Africa and Italy over Yugoslavia and other parts of Europe, the planes will bear both the American Army Air Force and Yugoslavian Air Force insignia.

Ambassador Fotitch declared that the appearance of the four bombers over his native soil would serve to bring to pass a a centuries-old legend to his "enslaved but unconquered people" of gray falcons bringing tidings of impending freedom of their land.

Committee Studies Resolution Draft

Connally Proposal Debated by Senators; May Be Presented to Full Group Next Week

A proposed draft of a postwar resolution prepared by Chairman Connally (Democrat) of Texas is now under study by a subcommittee of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, with prospects that the full committee may receive the text next week.

Members were reported unable to reach agreement after a two-hour session yesterday on the wording of the resolution, particularly whether or not a phrase guarding the sovereignty of this Nation should be included.

The proposed draft, it was understood, will be sent to the State Department for study. Senator Thomas (Democrat) of Utah said the resolution might reach the Senate in a couple of weeks.

Formal Session Wednesday

The subcommittee will hold a formal session next Wednesday to see if agreement can be reached on the tentative draft now before the members.

The full committee met in executive session yesterday and unanimously agreed to approve the nomination of W. Averell Harriman as Ambassador to Russia. The Senate is expected to receive the nomination in regular order of business later this week. Harriman's nomination was acted on while he was still absent in London.

Meanwhile, another Foreign Relations Subcommittee headed by Senator Thomas of Utah has scheduled a meting November 4, at which Former President Hoover will be asked to aid in devising a plan to feed some of Europe's starving millions now.

Hoover, chairman of the Commission for Relief in Belgium from 1915 to 1918, has been asked to advise the subcommittee on a resolution asking immediate action to avert mass starvation in Belgium, the Netherlands, Czechoslovakia, Norway, Poland, Greece and Yugoslovia.

Nazi Guarantees Asked

The resolution, sponsored jointly by Senators Gillette (Democrat) of Iowa, and Taft (Republican) of Ohio, asks that guarantees that such food sent to invaded countries will not be used for the benefit of the Nazis.

In the preamble the resolution declares that the system of sending food to Greece has worked satisfactory without giving aid to the enemy. It calls for an extension of that system to other countries, with the aid of neutral Switerland and Sweden, operating through the International Red Cross.

Taft told reporters that America has wheat to send, while Sweden has ships to transport it. He noted that Allied control of the Mediterranean might make it easier to send aid to some countries in southeastern Europe.

West Virginia First in Bond Sales, Maryland Second

National leadership for bond sales in the third war loan drive, which officially closed Saturday with 157 per cent of its quota subscribed, was held by West Virginia, according to reports from Washington yesterday, while the District was edged into thirty-ninth place.

Incomplete reports indicated that Maryland was in second place, with 300 million dollars subscribed for 153 per cent of the State's quota. Virginia stood eleventh in the overall listings with 117 million dollars, representing 117 per cent of its quota, sold.

District figures, incomplete because of delayed reports on sales to Federal employes, were given as only 92 million dollars (98 per cent of the 94 million dollar quota) although local officials have reported the quota here oversubscribed by at least $350,000.

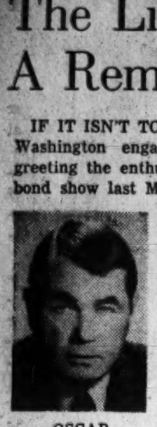
Nelson B. Bell About the Showshops

The Lieutenant Recalls A Remote, Stormy Night

IF IT ISN'T TOO LATE to recall it, the first of many previous Washington engagements recalled by Lieut. Rudy Vallee, in greeting the enthusiastic audience at the "Stars at Midnight" war bond show last Monday night, was the opening of the Shoreham Hotel.



OSCAR HOMOLKA

He had been here numerous times before, but that, nevertheless, was an evening he probably never will forget. Neither will I.

Announced as the piece de resistance of a gala inaugural, with a floor show headlined by Harriet Hoctor, prima ballerina, Rudy and his famous band were supposed to be on hand to furnish music for dancing. To sandwich the local engagement in between his New York commitments, it was necessary to fly his troupe here by plane Planes were not quite so sturdy in those days as they are now.

So, when a violent storm came up shortly after the band's takeoff, it was necessary to put about and fly back to Newark. I recall that after that word was received, the late Amelia Earhart, on whose line Rudy was flying, stepped to the microphone at intervals of minutes and assured the overflow crowd that her ships never failed and Vallee and his boys would arrive in "just a few minutes more."

They finally put in an appearance at 1:30 a. m., set up their stands, played until 2 a. m., and then planed back to New York, bumpy weather or no bumpy weather.

Miss Earhart was right. Her line did get the boys through and that overflow crowd sat tight until they got here. But it was a long wait.

With all due respect to that earlier Rudy Vallee band, the lieutenant has a far better one in the "Lucky 'Leventh" Coast Guard outfit. It is a well balanced organization of skilled musicians, who, with the numerous specialists among them, are capable of putting on a show twice as long as could be accommodated by Monday midnight's tight scheduling.

It was Victor Mature, notwithstanding, who virtually "stole the show." Maybe it was because we had just covered "The Army Play by Play," written a review and made over the theater page, that the genial Mature seemed to stay on a shade too long. It must have been that, since the hand he got on his exit indicated that we were the only one in the house who felt that way. I admire Bo'sun Mature for his amiable willingness to kid himself, as, for example, when in a self-reference he piped up with, "or, as more revoltingly described, 'a beautiful hunk of junk!'"

Passed Up Again?

It is a bit disturbing that Washington does not appear in the most recent announcement of the Theater Guild. What it says is that "The Innocent Voyage," second Guild production of the season, now in rehearsal, will open in Wilmington on Thursday, October 28, and after a three-day engagement there, move on to Philadelphia for a fortnight and then to Baltimore for a week. What goes here, no open time at the National?

The Capital would be particularly interested in this one since it has Oscar Homolka in the leading male role. Mr. Homolka is one of the theater's finest actors, as anyone will testify who saw him "steal" the film version of "Mission to Moscow" in the role of Maxim Litvinoff, then Russian Ambassador to the United States.

Owing to fall temperatures too low for outdoor performances, the "Negro Cavalcade of Music" that was to have been held in Griffith Stadium last night, has been postponed to November 15 at Uline's Arena. The same roster of stars and the identical program planned for last night will be presented under the same auspices and for the same worthy cause.

It was the program's fault. Or perhaps merely that we didn't read far enough—although we would have been equally confused if we had. At any rate, it is not Director Sergt. Harry Goodman, but Conductor Pvt. Max R. Lanner who is wielding that dynamic baton over the splendid all-soldier, pit orchestra that is one of the conspicuous assets of "The Army Play by Play," at the National. Sorry we got them all mixed up in Tuesday's review.

Dots and Dashes

Zack Waters, well-known local thespian, one of the wheelhorses of the Cross Roads Theater this past summer and not unknown to Broadway, phones between trains that he is en route to Milwaukee for a season of stock at the Pabst Theater with a top-grade all-Equity company . . . First two bills, "Susan and God" and "Blind Alley" . . . Come December, he has commitments in New York . . . Then the phone rings again and it's that old Washington orchestra-night club-bowling alley tycoon, Meyer Davis, renewing an urgent invitation to come up to the Big Stem and take a squint at his two hit shows, "The Merry Widow" and "Tomorrow the World" . . . As if we wouldn't like to! . . . "The Army Play by Play" will be represented on the air tonight over WINX by a six-piece band, the Arnaut boys and several other specialists from the cast . . . And this afternoon at 4:30, the entire company is being hosted by Joe Moss at his 400 Club, with the gentlemen (sic) of the drayma desks rung in as excess baggage . . . What's this I hear about the two new usherettes at the Earle—boypower shortage? . . . Now, after 80 years of it, I suppose I'll have to forget how to find my own favorite perch!

Vulgar-Ostentation Note

It's the Auburn Hair and Those Eyes!

MAUREEN O'HARA,

who never fails to cause members of the film colony—and all the visitors, too, of course—to look twice, she's that lovely. One of the busiest actresses in Hollywood, Miss O'Hara next will be seen in RKO-Radio's "The Fallen Sparrow," which has been talked about so long it ought to be bobbing up on the local screen some time soon.

HEDDA HOPPER

Each Has a Whopper!

Hollywood, Calif., Oct. 6.—Each studio is going ahead planning one whopper of a picture for next year. Metro has "Quo Vadis," RKO's will be "The Spanish Main," in Technicolor, with Paul Henreid, George Sanders, Walter Slezak and Maureen O'Hara. They're pretty set up over there about Cary Grant's "Mr. Lucky." It played seven weeks at New York's Music Hall and took in more money than the whole picture cost. Only films having a longer run at the Music Hall were "Mrs. Miniver" and "Random Harvest." Not bad for a company struggling up from third place . . . Tallulah Bankhead may be caught "Once Off Guard" with Edward G. Robinson. Anyway, Nunnally Johnson wants her to co-star in it . . . Paramount's script for "Barn Dance" is whipped into shape. They'll bring the whole company of 65 people from the radio show in Chicago for it, and add two movie names for love interest—Betty Rhodes and Johnny Johnston.

TALLULAH BANKHEAD

Fuss and Fury

More fuss about Gary Cooper playing Rickenbacker. Gary didn't turn it down. He hasn't read the script yet. If he likes it as well as he thinks he's going to, he'll play Rick. Winnie Sheehan is going east the middle of this month to get an O. K. from Rick. . . . Elsa Maxwell, while rushing to catch an eastbound train, was cited for jaywalking in Pasadena. When she returns, she'll not only get a warm welcome from her friends, but chief of police Neil Anderson will be among them. . . . Tuhan Bey has been lent to Metro for "Dragon Seed," and you can expect him to get that boost up the ladder which he didn't get at Universal. . . . Laraine Day, who hasn't worked at Metro for two years, has two more years to go on her contract there. She has been told by the studio they're working out a new deal for her. All Laraine wants is the same deal she's had at other studios.

Clever, These Chinese

Keye Luke had his own way of finding a house. He got into his car, drove to a storage place, waited till an empty van appeared, and followed it to its destination. Then he interviewed the owner of the place that was being cleared, and in 10 minutes' time he was the new occupant. . . . Richard Travis plays in Moss Hart's "Winged Victory" and got a bit in it for his bride, Ann Berkey, who's on her way to New York. She has never acted before. . . . Dorothy Jordan gave birth to her third Caesarian baby. It's a girl. . . . Errol Flynn tossed a party for the Freddie McEvoys. Mrs. McEvoy expects her baby next month. Meanwhile they're searching the town for a suitable place to house it in.

Suits Hubby

When Carole Landis was married to Capt. Thomas C. Wallace in London, she was a brunette. Her studio wants her to go blonde again for "Four Jills and a Jeep." She says no—her husband likes her the way he got her, and if they don't mind, she'd like to remain that way . . . Dinah Shore was so excited about her first broadcast she forgot to take a skirt in the studio. She rehearsed in slacks. When it came time for the performance, there she was with a blouse minus skirt. They finally found a girl in the audience who was willing to give hers up for Dinah's slacks, and the show went on. 'Twas good, too.

We Were Funning

I never had a more appreciative audience than Douglas aircraft workers during their lunch hour. They wanted to know the latest movieland news. The stars they asked about were Mae West, Bing Crosby, Paulette Goddard, Errol Flynn, Charlie Chaplin (they don't like him, either), and Greta Garbo.

Dreyfus Balks at Lifelike Portrayal

Hollywood.—When Jesse L. Lasky began searching for an actor to portray Max Dreyfus, music figure who published many of George Gershwin's works, for Warner Bros.' "Rhapsody in Blue," he wrote Dreyfus assuring him that the final selection would be submitted to him for his approval.

"Dear Jesse," wired back Dreyfus. "I trust you implicitly, but for Lord's sake don't get an actor as ugly as I am or I'll shoot you."

Two Hitchcock Hits at the Little

Two Alfred Hitchcock mystery-melodramas took over the screen of the Little Theater yesterday morning. They are "The Lady Vanishes," Hitchcock's most famous film and a classic of its sort, and "The Girl Was Young," made in the same year (1938), and nearly as chilling an opus as its companion-piece.

"The Lady Vanishes" stars the able and appealing Michael Redgrave, opposite attractive Margaret Lockwood, with Dame May Whitty and Paul Lukas giving strong support.

Reportedly, it was Lukas' performance as the murderous brain surgeon in this film which led to his being chosen to play the "villain" in "Watch on the Rhine," although the versatile actor promptly prevailed upon the producers to change the casting and put him in the hero's role.

The story tells of a gray-haired old lady who befriends a young girl on a train and soon thereafter disappears. Although the train has not stopped, she cannot be found anywhere on it. Not only that, but everyone who saw her with the girl denies having seen her at all, and says that the girl was alone the whole time. She begins to doubt her own sanity until evidence is uncovered that there is really a conspiracy afoot.

"The Girl Was Young" stars Nova Pilbeam, chiefly known as a stage actress in England, in the story of the wild adventures in which a police constable's daughter involves herself when she becomes convinced that a prisoner of her father's is innocent, and tries to help him clear himself of a murder charge.

Newsreels include views of the scuttling of the French navy after the fall of France and of the surrender to the Allies of the Italian Navy, tied together by a commentary on what it meant to the Axis to lose two great navies. Also there are views of the AMG activities in Italy.

Army Show Extends Local Engagement

The engagement of "The Army Play by Play," the all-soldier show now at the National Theater, will be extended through next Sunday, according to announcement made late yesterday by United States Army authorities.

This symposium of five one-act plays, written, directed and acted by enlisted personnel, and interspersed with top-grade specialty acts, has registered so soundly with Washington audiences that no course of action was left open except to continue the attraction through Sunday matinee an night performances to accommodate the overwhelming demand for tickets.

All proceeds from this Army-sponsored production, for which Producer John Golden conceived the idea, go to Army Emergency Relief.

Loose-Leaf Notebook

New York, Oct. 6.

The Aircobra, which is produced by Bell Aircraft, has destroyed countless Nazi tanks on the Russian front. It has earned deep respect from Stalin and his generals. That's why Lawrence Bell, head of Bell Aircraft, was anxious to send a crew of his mechanics and engineers to Russia to inspect the Aircobra's accomplishments and operations, and to show the Soviet mechanics what can be done about repairs, etc. Our State Department, however, refused to issue passports to the Bell Aircraft men . . . Mr. Bell thereupon took a simple, direct measure. He merely wrote a letter to Stalin and sent it via airmail. Stalin replied within two weeks, inviting the men to come. And so they're on their way to Moscow.

VICTOR MATURE

Lawrence Bell reported these facts to Secretary Morgenthau, who decided to capitalize on them. Morgenthau immediately sent a message to Stalin, asking him for a statement in support of the Third War Loan drive. Cordell Hull and the British government had tried to obtain such a statement from Stalin—in vain. But Morgenthau's request, coming on the eve of the departure of the Bell Aircraft group for Russia, was effective. And that's how Stalin came to issue his statement urging the support of the Third War Loan drive.

Heavy Blow With Rock Killed WAC

NAOMI KATHLEEN CHENEY, of Jasper, Ala., a second lieutenant in the Women's Army Corps, whose body was found near a railroad overpass in Sioux Falls, S. Dak.

By the Associated Press

Sioux Falls, S. Dak., Oct. 6.—Pretty WAC Second Lieut. Naomi Kathleen Cheney, found slain here last night in a thicket, died from "multiple fractures of the skull and brain hemorrhages," military authorities said today after an autopsy.

First Lieut. Luther Evans, assistant public relations officer at the Army Air Forces Radio School here, said "the death instrument was apparently a rock or similar instrument used with tremendous force."

Army authorities at the school said they were "wholly without clues" to the slayer. They said the autopsy disclosed no evidence of rape.

The 25-year-old Jasper, Ala., officer, termed by Lieutenant Evans as "one of the most attractive WACS in our camp," disappeared after she left the Army school gate at 9 p. m. Monday, following a visit with a roommate, another WAC officer, ill in the school hospital.

The body was found Tuesday evening by a 10-year-old resident of the of the neighborhood.

Lieutenant Evans said the blow that killed Lieutenant Cheney crushed the entire right side of her face.

Lieutenant Cheney lived about three blocks from the desolate place where the body was found, and her path home would have led within a few hundred feet of the spot.

Episcopalians Ask Equality in Postwar Plans

By the Associated Press

Cleveland, Oct. 6.—A postwar program embodying international collaboration, equality for all nations and races and economic betterment through cooperation of Government and private enterprise was approved late today by the Protestant Episcopal Church.

Clerical and lay delegates to the church's fifty-fourth triennial convention concurred with the House of Bishops in approving the program, recommended by a joint commission on social reconstruction.

The deputies also approved, by a 365 to 153 vote, an action of the House of Bishops raising the retirement age of the presiding bishop from 68 to 70, effective immediately. Approval was voted after a warm debate, during which B. R. Bias of Williamson, W. Va., proposed setting the effective date at December 1, 1943.

Amendment Defeated

The Bias amendment, later defeated, would have prevented retention of the present presiding bishop, the Right Rev. Henry St. George Tucker of Richmond, Va., who is 69, and who would not be eligible for the office after the convention unless the change was approved.

Supporting the postwar program, Dr. Clark G. Keubler of Chicago, a commission member, predicted "violent social upheaval after the war, when people will look for leadership." If the church fails to provide such leadership, Dr. Keubler added, "some other groups in our society will."

Opposition was voiced by James H. Diggs of Oklahoma, who declared the program "expressly provides for a super state—meaning we undertake to enforce on the world our American system." He also assailed the proposal because "it relevates Christ to a subordinate place in the world."

Resolutions On Unity

Earlier the deputies authorized procedure with efforts toward eventual organic unity of the Episcopal and Presbyterian churches, approving without debate resolutions compromising majority and minority reports of a unity commission.

The resolutions, in addition to calling for further negotiations, permit the presiding bishop to make such changes in the commission "as may seem advisable."

The compromise composed differences between majority and minority groups within the commission. A majority report had raised the question whether the church was ready for union, but asserted some progress had been made and recommended efforts be continued. The minority reported unity was impossible until the "issues have been truly met and solved," and urged appointment of a new commission.

Edward Hay Retires From OPA Position

Chester Bowles, general manager of the Office of Price Administration, yesterday announced the retirement of Edward N. Hay, Philadelphia banker, as deputy administrator of OPA's administrative management department.

Glendon J. Mowitt, who joined OPA last month and formerly was executive officer of the Railroad Retirement Board at Chicago, was named successor on Hay's recommendation.

"Mr. Hay deserves the thanks of OPA for a good job well done," Bowles said. "He has contributed a great deal to the effective organization of the agency."

Postwar Church In Norway Seen Freed From State

Osborne I. Hauge, of the Norwegian Information Service, yesterday predicted that the Norwegian Church (the Lutheran, or State Church) would become free and independent after the war.

Hauge addressed the monthly luncheon of the citywide Lutheran Laymen's Fellowship at Schneider's Cafe, near 11th and E sts. nw.

The speaker cited numerous instances in which the Nazis were unable to crack the spirit of the Norwegian Church, even when the bishops and clergy faced death and imprisonment. On one occasion, the Quisling regime ordered the clergy to delete all portions of the common prayerbook referring to the king and government, and ordered such parts not to be read by the pastors in churches. The pastors, however, cleverly solved that problem: They asked the congregations to do the reading of that particular prayer.

WMC Leaders Told To Put Training Plans in Action

Henry E. Treide, War Manpower Commission director of Region IV, yesterday urged WMC officials, who are holding a two-day conference here with him, to take "all necessary steps" to set in motion an adequate war-training program.

Conferring on details of the forthcoming labor stabilization program, which will go into effect October 15, the delegates from the entire region spent most of yesterday in discussion of training facilities to be made available by local United States Employment Service offices.

Although not part of the stabilization plan, the training program is considered by many officials a necessary measure to secure a successful and steady flow of needed labor for the Nation's war effort.

"You bet your life," was Clark's rejoinder when asked if he was optimistic about the taking of Rome. He said he hoped it would be "soon."

Georgi an Indicted In Peonage Case

An indictment charging J. T. Pierce, operator of a roadhouse near Savannah, Ga., with violating the Federal peonage statute on 11 counts was returned yesterday by a Federal grand jury at Augusta, Ga., the Justice Department announced.

Pierce was alleged to have held 11 girls "in a condition of peonage" by compelling them against their will to work as waitresses, hostesses and clerks in a roadhouse 20 miles north of Savannah on Highway No. 80.

Borowy, Brazle Mound Choices for Today

This Morning

With Shirley Povich

New York, Oct. 6.—The Cardinals showed their bounce today. They were a team on the spot, with what could have been a dreary future in this World Series, until they pulled themselves together and slapped down the Yankees in today's contest in Cardinal comeback style.

POVICH

The 4-3 Cardinal victory in the second game could very well be the turning point in this series. Because going into today's game they were in the position of guys strictly up against it. They had just been licked by Spud Chandler, a great pitcher who could start against them twice more in the series, if necessary. Joe Gordon had renewed the threat of the Yankee home-run wallop. The Cards had played a sloppy game in that opener.

Manager Billy Southworth could rely only on the Cardinals' ability to bounce back, as they did last year after losing the opener. Before today's game, he had pitching troubles. He could make a choice only between Morton Cooper and one of his rookies with no series experience, Left-hander Alpha Brazle. Any choice Southworth made could very well have been a bad one.

Cooper had never beaten an American League team in four attempts, and Brazle would bear the burden of every neophyte series pitcher. And then Southworth's troubles were complicated, with news of the death of the father of the Cooper boys. How that would affect Cooper's pitching, if Cooper was his choice, Southworth was left to ponder during the morning hours.

Out of tragedy might have been born the new Cardinal spark. Anyway, when Cooper volunteered to pitch, the Cardinals vowed to win for him in the pregame dressing room meeting. They played better ball today, a lot better. Unlike yesterday, there was nothing slip-shod about this second game of the series. It was fast, and smart and grim, and the Cardinals prevailed.

They beat the Yankees' No. 2 pitcher in Bonham, with a pair of home runs, and now the Cardinals ought to be squared away nicely, even with Chandler available to the Yanks for two more starts. Mort Cooper, too, might start against the Yanks twice more, and in his form of today he is at least a stand-off bet with Chandler. His game today was better than Chandler's series opener.

The Cardinals haven't begun to run the paces yet in the manner that gave the Yankees fits last year, but there's a reason. Yesterday, they were not on base frequently. Today, well, home runs into the stands sort of cut down any club's base-running. But the Yankees are not forgetting that the Cardinals can run when the occasions present themselves.

Joe Gordon has become the key man in the Yankees' batting attack. Tomorrow, with Southworth sending the left-handed Brazle against the Yanks, the second time he has started a southpaw, he will be tempting the wrath of Gordon, who dotes on left-handed pitching. With a southpaw on the mound, Gordon becomes a batting threat. He moves up to fifth place in the batting order against left-handers. Against right-handers, Manager Joe McCarthy frequently drops Gordon to eighth.

Walker Cooper today escaped by the breath of a double play the label of undisputed goat of the series thus far. He put himself solidly in the running for that dubious distinction in the opening game with his wild throwing and his trance-like performance on Lanier's wild pitch, and today he was a culprit again for a few minutes.

With Crosetti on first and none out in the sixth inning, Walker Cooper displayed what could have been a sorry bit of impatience. Crosetti had stolen a base against him the day before. Today, in his eagerness to thwart any stealing attempt by the Yankee shortstop, he reached for Brother Cooper's first pitch to Metheny so quickly that he tipped Metheny's bat. The umpires sent Metheny to first on an interference ruling and now the Yanks had two on and none out. Cooper was looking very bad until Martin grabbed Johnson's grounder for a double play that got the Cardinals out of trouble.

Nick Etten has been pretty useless to the Yankees thus far with no hits in eight times at bat, and this must surely be the worst outfield the Yankees have ever carried into a World Series. Aside from Keller, who has made one hit in each game, Manager Joe McCarthy has been getting no help from his other outfielders. He has had Johnny Lindell, Tuck Stainback and Bud Metheny in there, and their total hits against the Cardinal pitching has been zero.

Outside of Chandler's pitching, the fellow who has been turning in the best job for the Yankees is Rookie Bill Johnson, who has made two important hits in each game. Johnson jolted Morton Cooper out of any ideas of a soft victory today with a two-bagger that led off the ninth, and he has been making plays around third base that saved both Chandler, yesterday, and Bonham, today, from much grief.

FOURTH INNING

CARDINALS—On the second pitch Musial lined a sharp single to center field. W. Cooper sacrificed on the first pitch, Dickey to Etten. Kurowski singled sharply past Bonham's head into center field and Musial scored without even drawing a throw from Stainback. With the count of no strikes and two balls, Sanders lined a home run into the right field lower stands, 350 feet from the plate, as Metheny backed against the wall in a vain effort to catch the ball, and Sanders trotted home behind Kurowski. Litwhiler hit a foul fly into the upper deck of the left field stands but then struck out. Metheny ran far over into the right field corner to make a one-handed catch of Marion's fly.

Three runs, three hits, no errors, none left.

YANKEES—Crosetti, attempting to bunt, popped a single over Sanders' head. Metheny flied deep to Walker. After looking at one ball, Johnson lined a single to center sending Crosetti to third. After waiting out a full count, Keller flied to Walker, and Crosetti scored as Sanders cut off the throw from the outfield. Dickey flied to Litwhiler, who made a running catch near the left field foul line.

FIFTH INNING

CARDINALS—M. Cooper struck out. Klein walked out a walk. With the count two strikes and one ball, Walker bunted and when Bonham was slow going after the ball, the fleet Redbird beat it out for a hit. Klein holding up at second. Musial flied deep to Keller. W. Cooper lined sharply to Gordon, who made a fine catch.

No runs, one hit, no errors, two left.

YANKEES—With count one and one, Etten sent a lazy fly to Musial. Gordon smashed a hard single to center, and when Walker fumbled the ball momentarily for an error Gordon raced safely to second. Walker made a great running catch of Stainback's long fly in left center. Bonham sent a roller to Marion and was thrown out.

CARDINALS—Kurowski struck out. Sanders also struck out. Litwhiler also struck out swinging.

No runs, no hits, no errors, none left.

YANKEES—On the first pitch Crosetti smacked a ground single through short. W. Cooper tipped Metheny's bat on the first pitch and Metheny was awarded first base for interference, the catcher being charged with an error. (Metheny does not get a time at bat on the play.) Johnson grounded into a fast double play, Marion to Klein to Sanders, Crosetti stopping at third. Keller flied to Musial in the right field corner.

SEVENTH INNING

CARDINALS—Marion walked on five pitches. M. Cooper received an ovation as he came to bat. After falling in an attempt to sacrifice and waiting out full count he struck out, but Marion stole second on the play, beating Dickey's throw to Crosetti. Klein was thrown out by Crosetti. Walker grounded to Johnson who threw to Gordon trapping Marion between second and third as Walker reached first on a fielder's choice.

CARDS' WHITEY KUROWSKI PAUSES BETWEEN FIRST AND SECOND, HESITANT TO ADVANCE ON THE HIT METHENY TRIED FOR BUT MISSED. SANDERS ROUNDS FIRST

Rookie Ray Sanders Seals Victory for Cards With Homer and One On; Marion Also Circles

"And I'm catching," said Walker Cooper. "That's the way Dad would want it."

And so they did a job on the Yankees, Morton and Walker with the emphasis on the pitching brother. Because Morton Cooper was on the spot irrespective of the morning's tragedy. He had never beaten an American League team in four attempts. Twice the Yankees knocked him out in last World Series. His reputation as the National League's best pitcher was under a cloud. It hadn't stood up under American League fire.

Cooper outpitched Ernie Bonham from the start. He went into the ninth inning holding the Yankees to four hits and one tainted run. And then he had to fight hard for his victory with the Yankees inviting him to collapse with a sudden two-run outburst in the ninth.

Bill Johnson led off that ninth with a two-bagger into left center. And right away Charley Keller followed with an enormous blast over Left Fielder Litwhiler's head for a three-bagger. This was the challenge to Cooper. The old American League jinx seemed to be working. Morton was not yet out of the woods.

Next Three Went Down

And then Cooper bore down, magnificently. He got rid of Bill Dickey on a soft liner to Klein. Etten grounded softly to Klein and was thrown out at first, Keller scored, but the Cardinals still had a one-run lead and now two were out and none on. Joe Gordon was next up. He had hit a homer the day before. He hit no homer today. He popped up on the first pitch.

It was a high foul behind the plate and then it was for the first time all day that one of the Cooper boys showed the strain. For even a sandlot catcher, Gordon's pop up would have been an easy catch. But Walker Cooper, a great catcher, juggled that ball. It popped out of his mitt, and for a moment the game was not yet over. And then Cooper clutched the ball again, this time holding tightly and the Yankees were licked.

And then the Cardinals, from the field and the dugout, bore down upon the Cooper boys with a concerted rush, to wring their hands, pound their shoulders and say nice things. There was no gayety. It was all affection.

Marion Connected

It was Marty Marion who struck the first blow for the Cardinals. Down in eighth place in the batting order, the Cards found the power to steal traditional Yankee thunder. The game was hitless when Marion stepped to the plate in the third inning as the lead-off batter. The tall, spidery shortstop, with no reputation as a home-run hitter, banged Bonham's first pitch on a low line toward left field. It settled in the front row seats, perilously close to the foul line, and the Cards had a 1-0 lead.

They came back at Bonham for more in the fourth inning and got three more. They started out playing for a single run after Stan Musial led off with a single that whizzed past Bonham's head into centerfield. Walker Cooper laid down a sacrifice, and Whitey Kurowski got Musial home with a single over second base.

Then along came World Series Rookie Ray Sanders. Now was to occur the visible excitement of this World Series game. Sanders drove a long ball toward the 344-foot sign in right field. It looked like a home run, but back drifted Outfielder Bud Metheny. He goth his glove on the ball as he backed into the low wall. Impetus carried Metheny into the seats beyond and the ball plopped from his glove into the laps of the customers. When Metheny came up empty handed, the umpires ruled it a home run, and the Cards had a 4-0 lead.

Crosetti, Johnson Single

Not until the fourth did Cooper give up any kind of a hit. Then the Yankees got a sickly, lonesome run. Frankie Crosetti, trying to push a bunt toward first base, saw it take form as a Texas league single into short right field. Bill Johnson singled to center and moved Crosetti to third with one out. Keller's fly to center got him home, with the help of a wide throw by Harry Walker.

Again in the sixth the Yankees menaced Cooper with Crosetti leading off with a single past Marion. Then they got a break. Metheny accused Walker Cooper of tipping his bat, and Umpire Reardon agreed, giving Metheny his base on catcher's interference. Now the Yanks had two on and none out. But they couldn't score. Marion started a slick double play on Johnson's ground ball and Cooper got rid of Keller on a fly ball to Musial.

Cooper was fast-balling the Yankees today, except when he was throwing slow curves to the left-handers, Keller and Dickey. He was in serious difficulties only in the sixth and the ninth. The real trouble was in his heart today.

Packers Top In Rushing, Bears Passing

Grid Eagles Lead In Defensive Play In National League After Single Contest

By the Associated Press

Chicago, Oct. 6.—If any new proof was needed that this is a totally wacky football season, the first statistics of the National Football League did the trick today. The Chicago Bears, always a potent ground-gaining team, are leading the pro loop in passing, and the aerial-minded Green Bay Packers are ahead in rushing.

The Bears have whipped out a passing show that has netted them 369 yards in two games, for a 184.5-yard average. The Packers have come up with a rushing offense good for 408 yards in a pair of games, or 204 per contest.

But all in all, this intial statistical compilation of the young campaign showed the Bears still are the big guns of pro football.

Mingling 275 yards of gain on the ground with their passing, the Bears have a total offense average of 326.5 yards, to Green Bay's 309 and the Eagles' 300. The Chicago club is first in percentage of completed passes with a .500 rating and is tops in pass defense by allowing its opponents only 66 yards via aerials per game.

The Philadelphia-Pittsburgh entry, operating in only one game so far, holds first honors in total defense, with its opponents getting only 163 yards, first in rushing defense with a 35-yard average for its foes, and first in punting with its kicks averaging 43.6 yards.

Here are the leaders:

Total yards gained per game—Chicago Bears, 326.5; Green Bay, 309.

Yards rushing per game—Green Bay, 204; Phil-Pitt, 202.

Yards passing per game—Chicago Bears, 184.5; Chicago Cards, 155.

Per cent of passes completed—Chicago Bears, .500; Chicago Cards, .483.

Opponents yards gained per game—Phil-Pitt, 163; Detroit, 214.7.

Opponents gains by rushing per game—Phil-Pitt, 35; Detroit, 42.3.

Opponents gains by passing per game—Chicago Bears, 66; Brooklyn, 115.

Punting average — Phil-Pitt, 43.6; Chicago Bears, 38.7.

Schmarr, Former C. U. Star, Plays Tackle for Dodgers

Redskins' Opener to Draw Capacity Crowd; New Trainer Signed; Wilkin to Idle

By Merrell W. Whittlesey
Post Staff Writer

One of Washington's greatest college athletes of the past decade who has been quietly making a football comeback will open against the Redskins Sunday at right tackle for the Brooklyn Dodgers. He was one of Dutch Bergman's best ends at Catholic University and one of the city's all-time college court greats, Hermie Schmarr.

Schmarr, a big, lumbering fellow, whose appearance belied his speed, played three years at end for Bergman when the Redskin mentor was head coach of the Cardinals. On the basketball court he set scoring records which still stand in several eastern gymnasiums and in District records.

Schmarr played class B football with the Wilmington team after leaving Catholic University. He was picked up by the Dodgers, and as it has been several years since he played college ball and has lost his speed, Schmarr was shifted to tackle. He started against the Steagles last week and, according to Bergman, who scouted the game, played his position well.

The Redskins will play before an absolute capacity crowd of 35,540 spectators Sunday, and for the first time in 7 years the opening game will be a sellout 48 hours before the kickoff. All seats are reserved and standing room will not be sold.

The field stands will be com-

Coopers' Mother Listens to Radio As Sons Triumph

By the Associated Press

Kansas City, Oct. 6.—"Dad would have been the proudest man in town tonight."

In those words Mrs. Verne Cooper whose husband died shortly before their sons, Morton and Walker, played in today's World Series, expressed her feelings after hearing the St. Louis Cardinals win.

"I am sure that is what Dad would have wanted them to do," she said.

Mrs. Cooper did not listen to the first part of the game. But after the Cardinals took a 4-1 lead, she moved her chair close to the radio and listened intently until the contest ended.

Mrs. Weible Wins Low Net in Ladies Day at Kenwood

Mrs. Walter L. Weible, president of the District Women's Golf Association, was low net winner in Class A as the Kenwood women's golf committee closed its season yesterday with a special ladies day.

Mrs. Weible scored 96—18, 78, to win by four strokes over Mrs. J. H. Bullock who had 96—14, 82, and Mrs. H. L. Price, 95—12, 83. Mrs. H. W. Bashore was low gross scorer with a 94 while Mrs. Nick Hollander won low putts with 33.

Low net in Class B was won by Mrs. Allan Laing, 100—22, 78, with a second place tie to Mrs. E. C. Atwood, 104—24, 80, and Mrs. G. D. Peterson, 108—28, 80. Mrs. Frank Mirth was low putts winners with 34.

Bucs Sign Youthful Legion Outfield Star

Pittsburgh, Oct. 6 (AP).—The Pittsburgh Pirates announced tonight the signing of Harry Amato, a 17-year-old American Legion junior baseball outfield star, this year at Springfield, Ohio.

The club said Amato, a left-handed hitter and thrower, was signed after one Buc scout who spotted the youth playing sandlot ball in Ohio, and another who saw him at the Legion baseball championships at Miles City, Mont., recommended him independently.

Cards Share Grief With Coopers After Battle; Yankees Not Downhearted

By Charles Dunkley
Associated Press Sports Writer

Yankee Stadium, New York, Oct. 6.—The triumphant St. Louis Cardinals stifled their desire to whoop it up in their dressing room, after beating the New York Yankees, 4 to 3, today, and shared the grief of the Missouri farm-born Cooper brothers over the death of their father.

There was no yipping or yelling or backslapping.

Dr. Harrison Weaver, their trainer, had his rickety old phonograph and a loud speaker going full blast as the Cardinals came trooping in. Stan Musial grabbed a toy tin trombone and began to accompany the blaring jazz tune. But after the first record had been played, Trainer Weaver quickly sensed the feeling of the players and shut the machine off.

Manager Billy Southworth explained that before the game he had given permission to the Cooper Brothers—Big Mort, the victorious right-hand pitcher, and his younger catching brother, Walker—to leave the club at once and return to their home in Independence, Mo., if they wished.

Made Decision Quickly

"It was a tough decision for them to make," Southworth said. "And I left them in a room alone to decide. It didn't take them a minute to make up their minds to stick it out. They told me they believed their father would have wanted it that way. You see, he coached them as kids in high school and mapped out their major league career for them."

Mort Cooper said he experienced no soreness in his right shoulder and that he "feels good" after the victory. He threw fast balls at Joe Gordon, the Yanks' second baseman, and threw fork-balls and screwballs to the left-handed hitters. He was proud of his victory,

Brother Jones Wins 43d Grand National 'Chase at Belmont

7-Year-Old Triumphs by Six Lengths

Talbott Star Takes '43 Jumping Title; Invader Second; Dead Heat for Third

By the Associated Press

Belmont Park, N. Y., Oct. 6.—Staking his claim to the 1943 championship among the country's jumpers, H. E. Talbott's Brother Jones easily defeated 11 rivals in the Forty-third Grand National Steeplechase Handicap, richest such race in America, here this afternoon. The 7-year-old gelded son of Petee-Wrack—Maridel earned the $14,500 first money and a cup in finishing a half dozen lengths clear of Mrs. F. Ambrose Clark's Invader.

Kent Miller's Elkridge, the 1942 champion, and the Rokeby stable's Caddie, the latter an entry with Bank Note, finished in a dead heat for third, a helf length off Invader. The grueling test of "about" 3 miles, covering 19 hedges, was witnessed by a large crowd, which installed the winner a close second choice at $7.70 for $2.

Corrigan and Bavarian, another coupled pair, ruled favorite. The time of the race was 5:53 3-5. Brother Jones, Elkridge, and Iron Shot all carried the top burden of 150 pounds.

Brother Jones went into the race the biggest money winner in the field and emerged more so than ever, his seasonal total now being $28,745, with three triumphs in 10 starts. The veteran recently won Aqueduct's Glendale.

The victor was faultlessly ridden by George Walker, who has just been rejected by his draft board in Richmond, Va., for the second time.

High School Teams Shaky This Weekend

Players Out With Colds, Minor Injuries, Few Squads to Have Regular Line-ups in Play

The midseason bogey of football injuries got to work on the Washington area high school teams early and with a vengeance this year and Western probably will be the only team to take the field in the interhigh series this weekend with starting line-up at full strength.

Western, which meets Eastern in the spot game at Central Stadium Saturday, came out of its Washington-Lee lugh scrap last week without the mauling which has usually marked such across-the-river clashes. Ballard, at left half, who has been one of the mainstays of the Western offensive, was injured slightly in an automobile accident yesterday, but Coach Fred Mulvey expects him to start. Eastern suffered some minor injuries in its Episcopal High game and it is not known just what shape those boys will be in.

Wilson, which, despite its loss to Coolidge in the opener, looks like one of the standouts locally, will go against Tech Friday without Russ Keith at right half. Keith suffered a sprained ankle in the Central game and Charlie Warren at center has a bad knee and will be unable to play. Tech had bad luck in its opener with Western when Emsweller, right half, and Wright, fullback, were injured and neither man will be able to play this week, Wright probably not this season. Coach Duke Jacobs has made quite a few changes in his starting lineup and believes he has strengthened his guard, center and halfback positions.

It isn't a matter of injuries with Coach Artie Boyd's boys at Roosevelt, but Citrenbaum, who did such a neat job of ball carrying against Anacostia is out with a cold and won't be able to start against Central. The Vikings have three men out, Chipouras, end, with a bad knee, Gregory, tackle and Bo Brian in the backfield. Coach John Jankowski is making some changes in the line-up, too, and Panturis will start at left half, Swarts at fullback and Fyanes at right half.

Upstart Coolidge, which upset the dope by decisively defeating Wilson and Tech, has no bed of roses for its game against George Washington High Friday night, for Barry Shields, center and co-captain, will be out and Chick Lang, whom Coach Gil Conn was counting upon to fill end Buck Henry's shoes, isn't well and probably will be unable to play. But George Washington isn't in the best of shape either. Ensley, the end who hurt his knee in the first game, injured it again last week and will be out. So will quarterback Chisolm who hurt his ankle in the first game. Coach Rusty Doran will start Dodge at halfback for the Coolidge game and McGuire at end.

Gonzagan's Injured

Gonzaga, defeated 6-0 by the strong Mt. St. Joseph's team last week, suffered some injuries as well. Tackle Lansdale will be out with torn shoulder muscles and Egan with an injured hip. Center MacGregor is out with a cold and some of the other boys are pretty well bruised. But Coach Bo Richardson is looking forward to meeting the Devitt Prep team at Eastern Stadium at 4 p. m. Saturday because his boys still have the fighting spirit that marked their stern defense against Mt. St. Joe's.

World Series Play by Play

YANKEES—Weatherly batted for Bonham and lifted a pop foul to Sanders in front of the Cardinal dugout. Crosetti was called out on strikes. Klein took Metheny's grounder in back of first and threw him out.

No runs, no hits, no errors, none left.

NINTH INNING

CARDINALS—John Murphy, the Yankee right-handed relief star, who won 13 games and lost four in the regular season, came in to pitch. Murphy served three wide pitches, then got over two called strikes and finally walked Litwhiler. Marion bunted and forced Litwhiler at second; Murphy to Crosetti. M. Cooper sacrificed, Dickey to Etten. Klein bounced to Johnson and beat the throw for a single. Marion moving to third. Walker lined to Stainback.

No runs, one hit, no errors, two left.

YANKEES—Johnson doubled to deep left center. With the count two and two, Keller tripled over Litwhiler's head, scoring Johnson. Dickey lined to Klein. Etten was thrown out by Klein, Keller scoring. Gordon popped foul to W. Cooper.

Sharkey Beats Luttrell in Arena Feature

Babe Sharkey, the Blustery Texan, defeated Cowboy Luttrell, a fraternity brother, after 25 minutes of the feature wrestling match before some 1200 fans at Turner's Arena last night. Sharkey retired Luttrell with a body slam and smother grip after Luttrell had been awarded the match by Referee Tiny Bouque, who reversed his verdict by popular acclaim.

Bouque had given Luttrell the laurel after the Cowboy had pinned Sharkey, but Luttrell was so nasty about the affair that Bouque changed his mind and let them continue until Sharkey finally won. Maybe this wasn't according to Hoyle, but Hoyle was absent and the fans approved.

Until the finish the brawl was very fancy with nothing barred and the paying guests loved it. Had either man been normal he would have been killed, but wrestlers are impervious to the weaknesses of mere mortals.

Excitable Michele Leone beat sinister John Vanski with a back drop and body press after 18 minutes of the semiwindup. Both men were thorough villains, but the Italian was the master of his trade as against a somewhat lesser showing by Vanski.

In only clean match on the card, Maurice La Chappelle won over John Melas with a series of switching tackles (your correspondent isn't quite sure, either, what these are) in 19 minutes. This bout was as clean and as placid as a Sunday afternoon with the old folks, with both men bending over backward, literally, to prove their sportsmanship to the fans.

The card reverted to type in the opener when the masked Blue Streak took the brawl from stigmatic Ed White, the old Alabama football star. The hooded character won with a back breaker after 22 minutes of battle. White was billed as the dubious hero, but he proved too dubious and the man of mystery was awarded the decision. OSCAR ELDER.

Former C. U. Star Plays For Dodgers

pleted by tomorrow night, and the stadium diamond is being sodded. Painters have touched up the dull spots and every possible seating space has been made available, making for the largest opening day crowd since the District has housed the team.

Sammy Baugh wired the Redskin office yesterday he had been assured a seat on a plane from Sweetwater, Tex., leaving today and will be here tomorrow. Baugh left last Friday to visit his wife and newborn son and has been having difficulty making connections for the return trip.

Rymkus at Tackle

Lou Rymkus, the Redskins' last remaining Notre Dame alumnus, with the exception of Bergman, will start at tackle in place of Willie Wilkin, who will be out another week with his leg injury, a holdover from the scrimmage with Navy. Joe Gibson, the big end who came to the Redskins from Cleveland via Brooklyn, is also out for two or three weeks with a severe charley horse, but otherwise the squad is in top shape for its belated opener.

The Dodgers, with a potentially good ball club, but without a point in two league games, will arrive Saturday night. In pro league statistics released yesterday on performances of the young season, the only Dodger near the leaders in any division was Dean McAdams, the University of Washington halfback in his third year of pro ball, who had 17 pass completions out of 36 attempts for 131 yards in two ball games. Brooklyn's top receiver is one of first-year Coach Pete Cathon's rookies from Texas Tech, George Webb.

Sign New Trainer

The Redskins signed a new trainer yesterday, Wilbur Bohm of Washington State, who will replace Red Johnson. Johnson, who nursed the team through the training season after resigning his position at Lafayette when the Leopards gave up football, tendered his resignation as he expects a service call within the next few days.

Bohm has been fathering the athletes at Washington State for 17 years, including Turk Edwards, Dick Farman and Frank Akin of the Redskins. He is expected to report tomorrow.

Borowy Faces Brazle Today In Third Game

which he thought erased his showing against the Yanks a year ago, when he twice was blasted.

Southworth named his gangling left-hander, Alpha Brazle, to face the Yanks in the third game of the series tomorrow. Brazle joined the Cards in mid-July from their Sacramento (Calif.) farm and finished the season with a record of 8 victories and 2 defeats.

Southpaw Confident

The frail-looking blond was happy over Southworth's choice. "I'm gonna beat 'em," he said with a grin. "At least I'm gonna try. I'll do my best. Every one of those fellows is a high-ball hitter. I'll throw my sinker at 'em and whip 'em."

Brazle is a rangy, six-foot-two southpaw, and weighs 175 pounds. He's 28 and will be heading for the Army as soon as the series is concluded.

First Baseman Ray Sanders, who boomed a homer into the lower right field stands in the fourth inning wtih a mate on base, thought Outfielder Bud Metheny had caught the ball as he fell over backwarks into the seats.

"Boy, was I glad when he didn't come up with it," he beamed.

Southworth said that his boys from now on would play the dashing game of which they are capable.

"We had our bad day yesterday," he recalled ruefully.

Joe McCarthy ushered reporters into his private office in the Yankee dressing room, scratched his head a couple of times, announced that Hank Borowy was his pitching choice for the third game and began a philosophical discussion of the breaks of today's contest. The two big events, he decided, were Sanders' homer that gave the Cards their winning runs and Lou Klein's stab of a liner that broke up a Yankee rally in the ninth.

"That homer was the answer," said Joe. "They hit liners and so do we. That's baseball. Klein was in the right position because the play would have been at third."

McCarthy said that everyone on the Yankee bench had thought that Metheny had caught Sanders' homer when he tumbled over the right field wall, but Metheny explained that the ball struck his finger tips and trickled off before he fell.

Most of the Yankees didn't seem to take their defeat too seriously. Tiny Bonham, the losing pitcher, remarked "we scared 'em anyway," and Frank Crosetti grinned in agreement as he passed around a box of cigars.

"Papoose born yesterday in San Francisco," he explained. "A bay; just missed my birthday by one day. He weighed 10 pounds and 4 ounces. He must be as big as that bunt I hit over the first baseman's head today."

LET'S CLEAR THE AIR...

A statement on the subject of postwar International Air Service
by W. H. Coverdale, President, American Export Airlines

WHEN TOMORROW COMES and the war is ended, this nation will need—and quickly—air transport services between our country and practically all of the other nations of the civilized world.

Because we are Americans, we naturally think first of American air transport services flying American-built planes, manned by American crews—services directed and developed by American enterprise—services operated as the finest and swiftest and safest and best of all the air transport services provided by any nation of the world.

But as cooperative citizens of a new world, we do not want more than our share of this global air transport business—but we do feel entitled to our full share!

The planning and preparing for this postwar activity is one of the foremost problems facing this country and the world in general. Like all problems involving international relations, it has been and will continue to be an argumentative subject. At present it is one of the most momentous projects under discussion by governments, by transportation groups, and by business in general, both at home and abroad. As a result, various American air transportation groups from time to time have gone on record in regard to how this government should handle this problem. But there is still confusion.

We of American Export Airlines believe that the following open statement will add to the public understanding, and at the same time clarify our position—in other words, help "clear the air."

WHAT HAS AMERICA TO OFFER?

So far as aviation is concerned, the answer is, America has everything—and in abundance.

—operating knowledge and experience in management of commercial air transport, greater and broader than that possessed by any other nation.

—giant aircraft factories, capable of designing and building the finest, fastest, and best all-around transport airplanes the world has ever known.

—an able and energetic nation of 130,000,000 people, world conscious as a result of the war, willing and capable of producing the products the world will need so badly—eager to exchange its wares in the marts of the world—and ready to travel.

These are the prime requisites necessary to establish American leadership in international air transportation.

Let us take a good look at these assets, with special reference to the "know how" of our American flag air transport companies, both domestic and foreign.

There are 19 United States airlines. Two of these operate in the foreign service and hold CAB certificates of convenience and necessity for overseas air transportation—American Export Airlines is one of these two companies. The seventeen other companies operate in the domestic field and hold CAB certificates for such operation. There are also other business groups with new capital interested in entering this new and rapidly growing industry.

All nineteen airlines are now engaged in aiding the war effort by transporting passengers, cargo, and mail within the country or to all sections of the globe. All of these airlines have been loyally devoting their individual efforts and ambitions to military purposes and the all-important task of winning the war.

Many of the domestic airlines, when the war is over, will want to expand into the international field—as evidenced by the fact that a good many of them already have filed applications for overseas routes.

MONOPOLY OR COMPETITION?

While there may be a general desire on the part of the domestic airlines to enter the overseas field, there are two schools of thought as to how that problem may be met.

One school advocates formation of a single, government-sponsored, monopolistic, international airline, in which all American flag airlines could, if they wished, hold an interest, based on some, as yet unannounced, formula. American Export Airlines does not support this plan.

The other school of thought strongly opposes the placing of all of the development of our international air transportation in the hands of a single American company—a "chosen instrument"—or a monopoly. This school believes in regulated competition consistent with the policies and standards established by the Civil Aeronautics Act. American Export Airlines supports this plan. Furthermore, we do not believe that the alternative to monopoly would be unbridled competition. Far from it!

A definite government policy, firmly and impartially administered, can give the country the proper type of well-regulated competition—in the foreign as well as the domestic field.

AMERICAN EXPORT AIRLINES' POSITION

We are, and always have been, unalterably opposed to the thesis of monopoly. We believe that the fostering of monopoly would almost certainly result in government ownership. We do not believe that the Old World practice of fostering a government airline would result in adequate advancement of American aviation. Our country is just too big for such a system.

Our Company and 16 domestic airlines on May 18th of this year signed a declaration of policy against monopoly, and presented it to the Civil Aeronautics Board.

We strongly support the thesis of competition. By competition we mean that any American flag airline, interested in providing air service beyond our borders and into foreign countries, should have the right to make application to a properly constituted government body, such as the Civil Aeronautics Board. We believe that open hearings should be held by such a body, in accordance with the principles of free enterprise.

The number of companies that would emerge with certificates from such hearings would depend upon the ability of the applicants to qualify, and in addition, upon the judgment of the Civil Aeronautics Board and the President of the United States, as to the number of routes and services required in the public interest.

Such orderly procedure follows the "American way" of developing a new and vital industry. It encourages competition to an extent necessary to assure sound development—and yet regulates it to the degree that destructive "cut throat" competition is eliminated.

It is my earnest belief that the United States will get out of postwar aviation just what its government and the public are willing to put into it. Regulated competition, as opposed to monopoly—combined with private ownership—and with adequate government and public support, will enable United States aviation to secure for America its rightful share of the air commerce of the world in the postwar period.

Qualifications Outlined for Vote Plan

Holman Proposes Five-Year Residence To Keep Transients Away From Polls

By Anne Hagner
Post Staff Writer

A tentative plan to give voting privileges only to those who have lived in the District five or more consecutive years was suggested yesterday by Senator Holman (Republican) of Oregon, amplifying his proposal Monday for a resolution forming a Washington charter commission.

Holman explained that his idea was to eliminate "transients"—duration guests and other temporary residents in the city—from having a voice in the manner in which the District should be governed.

The Oregon Senator's inspiration for granting disenfranchised Washingtonians the right to vote stemmed from the investigation of Gallinger Hospital, for which he served as chairman of a special subcommittee. His observation, he declared, was that unsatisfactory conditions at Gallinger were "only symptoms" of fundamental problems in District administration.

The Federal Diary will not appear today. Jerry Klutz is ill with a cold.

As a result Holman's report on Gallinger, expected to be released today, will include recommendations to bring about reform in local government. In conjunction with his report, he revealed, he plans to introduce a resolution authorizing Washingtonians to determine what type of administration they prefer.

The measure would identify as "bonafide citizen voters" all those persons who have lived in the city for five or more consecutive years, are United States citizens, 21 or over, and who have no other legal residence. Those who are District taxpayers also would be considered fullfledged citizens, he said.

"Registration of these prospective voters would be accomplished by authorization of proper facilities and personnel to handle the job, to be performed at designated public places within certain limits of time," Holman continued. "I feel that if one does not value the franchise sufficiently to exert himself, he probably should not have the right to exercise it.

"Then I would proceed to authorize the formation of a charter commission to formulate a government under which District citizens desire to live. Upon adoption of the charter by the people, it should be submitted to the Congress for its approval."

Holman stated that during and immediately following the Gallinger probe, he invited a small number of his own friends who were long time District residents to make suggestions about his proposed resolution. He described these persons as "prominent in civic, social and philanthropic activities" and added that one has had wide experience in drafting municipal charters. The Senator himself was instrumental in forming the charter for Portland, Oreg., 30 years ago.

"I assure you that I shall be expeditious in this matter," he said. "I believe you will agree that the Gallinger matter has been handled with great speed, and there will be no long delays in the future unless they are caused by circumstances beyond my control."

He emphasized that his plan for the definition of bonafide Capital citizens was "not a dictum" and would serve only as a guide for further thought and a basis for discussion.

Holman also paid tribute to Senators Bushfield and Buck, both Republicans, who served on his subcommittee, for their "long and diligent" work on the Gallinger inquiry. Each is preparing his own report on the hospital, Holman explained, and the final statement to the Senate District Committee may be either individual reports or a consolidation of all three opinions.

Lions Club, chairman of the 1943 drive.

Calling on Washingtonians to make to the fund "that final costly free will offering which will express our brotherhood," Jennings led a series of broadcast appeals for donations to the District quota of $4,800,000. The program climaxed locally the opening of the National War Fund by President Roosevelt Tuesday night.

Three-Fold Purpose

"The occasion is piled high with the difficulty of meeting the urgent needs of those we would serve on three fronts—our servicemen, the suffering people of the United Nations and those who look to us in our own community," said Jennings, as he told of the three-fold purpose which the fund must fulfill this year.

The fund was seen as "the inspired and social expression of the way of life for which we and our Allies are fighting the enemies of civilization," by Rabbi Solomon Metz of Adas Israel Congregation. He added, "I know that every American who understands the issues involved in this global struggle will consider it a joyous and sacred privilege to do his part in making the campaign a resounding success."

Labor's Support

Indorsement and pledges of fullest cooperation in the fund by Washington's churches was given by the Rev. Mr. Rustin, while Fred Walker of the AFL Central Labor Union offered the support of organized labor.

Also speaking on the radio program was Msgr. Lawrence J. Shehan of St. Patrick's Church, who urged, "In the spirit of charity, let all of us make good this one practical opportunity of fulfilling our duty by contributing generously—more generously than ever before—to the National Community War Fund drive."

Europe." The message said:

"We have chosen a day that follows immediately upon the most solemn holy day of the Jewish calendar, namely the Day of Atonement, to show our compassion for a peple so sorely harassed and endlessly persecuted, and to dedicate ourselves to the task long awaiting the Christian churches—the task of eradicating antisemitism and thereby offering more than mere passive tolerance to our Jewish brethren."

The pastors of some 600 Protestant churches, to whom the message was addressed, will echo in their Sunday sermons the theme of "action to save the Jews."

Bishop Cannon called upon Congress to "face the issue" and to pass a bill immediately to take all possible measures to insure the salvation of as many Jews as can be delivered "from the hands of the Nazi murderers."

Claiming to represent 3 million American Jews, the delegation of rabbis marched from Union Station to the Capitol, where congressional leaders, headed by Wallace, received them.

Amidst prayers and sobs, Grand Rabbi Eliezer Silver, copresident of the Union of Orthodox Rabbis, read a petition to the Vice President, which was later also presented at the White House. Delivered in Hebrew by Rabbi Silver, the petition was translated and asked, in seven points, for "immediate and practical measures of rescue and use of all possible means to end the murders committed by Nazi criminals."

The procession went from the Capitol to Lincoln Memorial, where, on the steps of the "symbol of liberation," a special memorial service was held.

Jewish Services Scheduled For Yom Kippur Tomorrow

By Robert Tate Allan
Post Church Editor

The plaintive chant of the ancient "Kol Nidre" (All Vows) prayer will pervade Jewish holy places tomorrow at sunset, when Yom Kippur (Day of Atonement), Judaism's most sacred occasion, begins throughout the world.

Jewish tradition stresses Yom Kippur as essentially a day for self-examination, calling the Jew in judgment before the bar of his own conscience. Its central theme is that of repentance for wrongs done by the individual, and for the determination on his part to avoid sin wherever possible.

Traditionally, the day is marked by special prayers and the abstinence from food and drink from eventide to eventide. The fast's purpose is to turn man's thoughts from temporal to the spiritual things. Yom Kippur climaxes the ten days' period of penitence that began with Rosh Hashana, the Jewish New Year 5704.

Dr. Julius Morgenstern, president of Cincinnati's Hebrew Union College, again will be high holy day guest of the Washington Hebrew (Reformed) Congregation, whose overflow services will take place in First Congregation Church, 10th and G sts nw.

Dr. Morgenstern will speak tomorrow at 8 p. m. at First Church, while Rabbi Norman Gerstenfeld is preaching at the same hour at the Temple, 822 8th st. nw., of which he is spiritual leader. Dr. Morgenstern will preach Saturday at 10:30 a. m. at the Temple, and Rabbi Gerstenfeld at the same hour at First Church. Rabbi Gerstenfeld will speak at the Yiskor (memorial) services Saturday at 4 p. m. at the Temple.

Holy Day services at Adas Israel Synagogue, 6th and I sts. nw., will be tomorrow at 6:30 p. m. and Saturday at 8 and 11 a. m. Rabbi Solomon Metz, spiritual leader, will preach. His Saturday theme will be "The Quest for Atonement." Albert Liff, a member of the Adas Israel congregation, will have the honor of blowing the final blast of the ram's horn Saturday, signalizing the end of the current holy period.

Yom Kippur services for Jewish men and women in uniform will take place tomorrow at 8 p. m. and Saturday at 10 a. m. at the Jewish Community Center, under the auspices of the Army and Navy Committee of the Jewish Welfare Board.

Holy services will take place at B'nai Jacob Temple, 2504 Naylor rd. ne., tomorrow at 6:45 p. m. and Saturday at 8 and 11 a. m., the latter being the Yiskor (memorial) rites. Rabbi Morris L. Blair will preach.

Cantor Abraham Matts of Canada will chant the Kol Nidre and conduct Yom Kippur services tomorrow at 6:15 p. m. at B'nai Israel Synagogue, 14th and Emerson sts. nw., where Rabbi Henry Segal, spiritual leader of the congregation, will preach then on "We Have Turned Away." There will be services throughout Saturday, beginning at 7:30 a. m. Rabbi Segal will speak at the Yiskor (memorial services) at 11:30 a. m. on "In the Valley of the Shadow of Death." The Neilah (closing service) will be at 5:50 p. m. Saturday, when Rabbi Segal will discuss "May It Be Thy Will That I Will Sin No More."

Rabbi Harry Silverstone, spiritual leader of the Tifereth Israel Congregation, 14th and Euclid sts. nw., will speak tomorrow at 6:30 p. m. on "Song of Victory!" and Saturday at 10:30 a. m. on "Memories." Another service will be Saturday at 7:30 a. m. Cantor Charles Intrater will conduct services.

The Arlington Jewish Community Center, led by Rabbi Samuel H. Berkowitz, has been invited to hold its Yom Kippur services in the community room of the Clarendon Methodist Church tomorrow at 6 p. m. and Saturday at 9 a. m.

Teachers Unpaid Here For Months

Individuals Sound Threats of Strike; Payments Promised 'SometimeNextWeek'

Washington's 3200 teachers have gone payless since early summer, it was disclosed last night, when it was learned the September 30 checks had not been distributed.

Checks were expected October 4, since teachers ordinarily are paid the 2d of the month, or the first Monday thereafter. However, teachers had been informed they would be late this fall, and yesterday Acting Superintendent of Schools Robert L. Haycock announced they would not be ready before Monday.

The delay, he said, was caused by computing and checking the new withholding-tax deductions and a lack of bookkeeping machines.

Meanwhile, Haycock announced at a Board of Education meeting yesterday that the District's teachers already had bought $340,400 worth of bonds during the Third War Loan Drive, although none had received pay check since June. He said arrangements had been made to allow purchases made after the October checks are available to count in the drive.

Last fall the auditor's office asked teachers' indulgence when checks were delayed. It was said the wartime turnover with corresponding payroll changes had held them up. Teachers also experienced a payless Easter, when payroll changes in line with the teacher bonus were made.

Some of the more militant and disgruntled said yesterday a strike threat was in the making and that unless payment was made soon "anything could happen."

Principals Get Money

Indignant, the teachers yesterday said principals were paid as far back as last Saturday. According to reports, some of the newer teachers are broke and without funds and are borrowing from better-financed teachers, some of whom are married, and have other income, in order to live.

The lack of bookkeeping machines was to be eliminated, it was learned. The District Commissioners were said to be willing to purchase four of the machines "to expedite payroll payments."

Complaining teachers, who said a strike threat was "in the making," made it clear that they did not blame Haycock, superintendent of education.

The "strike threat," it was reported, was being considered by an individual group of teachers and not by the union of teachers, which it was reported, "has been dormant for so long."

District Court Empanels Two Grand Juries

A Federal grand jury was empaneled yesterday for the fall term of District Court. An additional grand jury was ordered by Chief Justice Edward C. Eicher to conduct an investigation into an alleged seditious conspiracy.

The additional grand jury to be chosen October 25, is to hear the Justice Department case against the alleged conspiracy to undermine the morale of the armed forces. Previously 33 persons were indicted for it, but the Justice Department indicated it will seek reindictments of many of the persons already named as well as to present new evidence against others.

The regular grand jury chosen yesterday has as its foreman, Harold M. Collson, 42, merchandise manger at Woodward & Lothrop. He resides at 2722 Connecticut ave. nw.

The other jurymen are:

Benjamin H. Babcock, 53, of 61 Franklin st. ne.; John H. Barnes, jr., 55, of 867 Van Buren st. nw.; Mrs. Corine H. Brooks, 37, of 1661 Crescent pl. nw.; Charles B. $17,500 Is Sought For Contract Breach Ware Cattell, 3609 Military rd. nw., sued the American Association for the Advancement of Science yesterday, asking District Court to award him $17,500 under terms of an employment contract.

Catell states he was hired on January 17, for a 4-year period at $5000 a year to edit the Scientific Monthly. He claims that since July 13, the association has failed to pay him and states that he is no longer employed by them.

Student Control Called Laboratory

Student government is a laboratory enabling men and women later to take part in national affairs with understanding, Dr. Cloyd H. Marvin, president of George Washington University, said last night at the first student convocation of the university's 123d year at Lisner Auditorium.

Approximately 1500 students and faculty members were present. A procession of the faculty in cap and gown preceded brief remarks by Charles Daugherty, president of the student body, and Dean William C. Johnston of the Junior College. Music was provided by an ensemble from the National Symphony Orchestra. Invocation and benediction was given by the Rev. Dr. Sellwyn Kenneth Cockrell.

Col. John Ayling Of Washington Killed Overseas

Col. John G. Ayling, 50, Army Air Corps, was killed in the Mediterranean theater of war, his wife, who lives at the Kennedy-Warren Apartments, has learned from the War Department.

A veteran of the last war, Colonel Ayling held five aviation ratings, including those of pilot, observer, dirigible pilot, balloon observer and seaplane pilot. When he rejoined the Army shortly after Pearl Harbor, he was stationed in Washington.

In April, 1942, Colonel Ayling went overseas with the Eighth Air Force. He later was transferred to African headquarters with whom he served at the time of his death.

A native of Syracuse, N. Y., Colonel Ayling was known as an outstanding golfer and won several trophies. He was active in the advertising field in New York City before coming here.

D. C. Woman Will Test Reno Divorce in U. S. Appeals Court

The United States Court of Appeals will soon be called upon to decide whether a Reno divorce is automatically valid throughout the Nation, it was indicated yesterday.

The question, in another case, was decided in part by the United States Supreme Court which declared that a divorce obtained legally in one State must be given full faith and credit in all others.

Attorneys for Mrs. Ruth D. Evans, 3519 35th st. nw., maintain that Donald P. Evans, 52, a $6820-a-year Bureau of the Budget executive, obtained his divorce from her fraudulently. Evans has since remarried.

Maintenance Suit Dismissed

Justice Daniel W. O'Donoghue of District Court yesterday refused to consider the question of fraud and acted on other grounds in dismissing the maintenance suit of Mrs. Evans against Evans, whom she maintains is still legally married to her.

Justice O'Donoghue declared that the question of fraud should be argued in Nevada and not in other States since if there is any fraud in the divorce, it was committed there. Attorney David Hart represents Evans.

Attorneys Jean Boardman and William Lichtenberg, representing Mrs. Evans, contend that Evans went to Nevada not with the purpose of making his residence there—a requisite for divorce suits in that State—but merely to obtain a divorce there. The attorneys declare that taking a divorce under such conditions is a fraud. Steps were taken late yesterday to appeal the case.

Married 17 Years

The Evans married in 1921, and parted in 1938. They have a 20-year-old daughter.

In deciding against Evans, Justice O'Donoghue cited the possibility of a man marrying in one State, divorcing in a second and remarrying in a third. He said if the State courts disagree, the second marriage might be considered bigamous in one place and legal in another, and the children legitimate in one State and bastards in another.

Senate Group to Tour Slums Proposed for Reclamation

A Senate District housing subcommittee headed by Senator Burton (Republican) of Ohio will make an inspection tour at 10 a. m. Saturday of slum areas proposed for reclamation, accompanied by John Ihlder, head of the National Capital Housing Authority.

The decision to make the trip around five housing and four commercial developments came after Ihlder explained to the committee, at an investigation which he requested, that the properties are deteriorating because Congress last year reduced maintenance funds to $12,000 annually.

The residential sites are L st. se. between 12th and 13th, V st. nw. between 4th and 5th, K st. sw. between 6th and 7th sts., the Williston Apartments on W. st. nw. between 2d and 4th sts., and St. Mary's Court Apartments on 24th st. nw. between G and H sts.

Also on the subcommittee are Senators McCarran (Democrat) of Nevada, Tydings (Democrat) of Maryland and Capper (Republican) of Kansas. Ihlder told Burton the proposed itinerary was so lengthy another trip in the near future might be advisable.

Another District subcommittee will meet at 10 a. m. tomorrow for public hearings on two bills regarding insurance regulations. One amends the Fire and Casualty Act, providing that in lieu of revoking licenses of brokers, the superintendent of insurance may order maximum fines of $200 for infractions of law.

The second, concerning "regulation of certain insurance rates," would organize a rating bureau to keep a record of all rates, schedules and proceedings, through which firms would file all transactions.

Cavalcade Postponed

Called off because of cold weather and insufficient ticket sales, the Cavalcade of Negro Music which was to have been presented at Griffith Stadium last night will be played at Uline Arena on November 15. The same artists, including Lucky Millinder, the Southernaires and Billy Eckstein, will appear to benefit the Howard Park nursery fund. Refunds for last night's show may be obtained wherever the tickets were bought.

Mrs. Walter Finley Ill

Mrs. Walter Finley, 75, who has been active in Red Cross work, including the Gray Ladies, is critically ill at Walter Reed Hospital, following an operation, it was learned yesterday. He home is at 2704 Ontario rd. nw. Mrs. Finley's sons, Maj. Gen. Thomas D. Finley of Camp Carson, Colo., and Lieut. Col. James R. Finley of Carmel, Calif., are with her.

City News in Brief

'Security' Rent Asked

"Security clauses" in rent leases are being introduced into the Washington area in nearby Virginia and Maryland, but District rent control officials are encountering "no difficulties" along these lines and don't anticipate any, they said yesterday.

These clauses require a month's advance payment of rent to cover damage or injury when the tenant moves out, with the understanding that money will be returned when the tenant moves out if none is found to exist.

Entomologists to Meet

The Entomological Society of Washington will meet today at 8 p. m. in the National Museum, 10th st. and Constitution ave. nw. Dr. H. H. Shepard of the War Food Administration will give an illustrated talk on "Fumigation of Cereals and Cereal Products." and J. I. Mary Haworth's Mail

Stunned by Conviction That Father-Draft Will Take Her Husband, Mother of Two Children Asks: How Can We Live on $72 a Month; Sees No Hope

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: I have a problem which must be facing many other women, too, right now. How can I solve it? And what are the others doing? With the father-draft a certainty, my husband and I must make some plans for me and our two children,—Ellen, aged 3½; and Bobbie, aged 14 months. We think and think; and worry and worry; but still we have nothing practical worked out. To begin with, there is no source of outside aid. Our relatives are few, and for various reasons,—al. good ones,—are unable to help. We get along on a small salary, so we are not used to plenty. But how could I manage on $72 a month?

The plainest type of living quarters (I do not insist on indoor plumbing) rents at $30 a month. Food would run at least $30 more. That leaves $12 for everything else. We wouldn't dare need a doctor! I am a college graduate and have one year of special post-graduate training, which should fit me for something. I could not stay on here,—in this small town of one thousand population,—and try to work; for I could not secure adequate care for the children. Even if I found someone to stay with them, I could not get a job that paid enough to pay for such help.

I hate to think of what living conditions I would find if I went to a defense center, in order to secure day-nursery care for the children and a job for me. And what would happen if I or one of the children became ill? Do you know what I should do? I don't. I would like to know how other women are facing this problem.

WORRIED MOTHER.

Picture Isn't Nearly As Dark as She Paints

DEAR W. M.: The state of mind you are bringing to the possibility that your husband may be drafted,—an attitude of being licked before you start to try to row your own canoe,—is the greatest of all hazards you have to overcome. And the way to overcome it is to take as your motto the proverb, "Where there's a will, there's a way;"—and then, IF the day should come when your husband is inducted, just go smoothly into action with full confidence that you are going to make out all right.

But in the meantime, to give you a breather in which to recover your poise, I should like to submit a few reasonable reassurances for your immediate consideration. To begin, a sweeping, all-inclusive "father draft" is by no means a certainty, as yet. At present, there are approximately 10 million men in the Armed Forces,—seven and a half millions in the Army, and the remainder distributed between the Navy, Coast Guard and Marines. The tentative goal for a maximum striking force is currently fixed at ten million, eight hundred thousand men,—which means that approximately eight hundred thousand men are yet to be mustered in. And my news sources on the Selective Service front are satisfied that this quota can be, and will be, filled without drawing indiscriminately on the "father-classification" of able-bodied, draft-age men.

Facts Should Allay Her Nervous Panic

For instance, according to estimate of Gen. Lewis B. Hershey, Chief of Selective Service, only one father in every six will have been called for examination within the year; and of that number, only about one-half will have been accepted. Which means that your husband has only one-chance-in-12 to go. Furthermore, local draft boards are giving careful consideration to family security; and granting deferment to fathers in cases where induction manifestly would work undue hardship on dependents. And, just in the event your husband should go, the financial aspect of the situation is not quite so dark as you think. As this is being written, the House Military Affairs Committee is acting favorably on legislation,—launched in the Senate months ago,—to increase soldiers' pay-allotments approximately 15 per cent, to wives with children. The base allotment to a wife with one child would be $68, under the latest provisions; and $11 for each additional child. All of which ought to allay your nervous panic somewhat.

Now for one practical suggestion on "What to do?"—if you should eventually be required to pinch-hit in your husband's absence for the duration. The idea I am about to suggest has been successfully adopted by certain refugee English mothers, of the educated class,—who found themselves obliged to earn a living for themselves and their children in this vicinity. And doubtless the plan has sprung up spontaneously in many parts of America, in village and city, where resourceful young mothers have needed to meet a comparable emergency. The idea is for two young mothers of similar background, with small fry of contemporary age, to club together in a two-family household "for the duration,"—with one volunteering to act as housekeeper and child's nurse, and the other volunteering to act as group wage-earner. Naturally, the "assignment to detail,"—one to the home and the other to business,—is based on native aptitude. The woman best qualified to make the best salary in business takes that job;—and the homemaker's contribution is recognized as being of equal (or perhaps greater intangible) value, in the cooperative arrangement.

Try Two-Family Plan If Emergency Compels

By drawing upon either your college-background connections, through letters of inquiry to old friends or circular appeals through sorority circles; or by advertising in the "Personal" columns of newspapers in the areas where you would consider making your "duration" home, as well as in newspapers in this city and neighboring big cities, you should be able to promote that type of arrangement,—IF and WHEN it becomes more clearly apparent that you must "face the problem" of being a Spartan war-wife.

Miss Haworth will be glad to help you in solving your problems. Write her in care of The Post Woman's Page.

Lunch Box blues are certainly no happy experience. If you carried your lunch to school as a child you know an appealing noon-meal not only helped your spirits but also your report card.

It is impossible for many children to come home for the noon meal. Of course, there is the school lunch service, but still each mother should plan box lunches for their youngsters which will have home-like character.

The growing child's lunch should be considered of equal importance with breakfast and dinner. Lunch must supplement those two meals to make a perfect day's diet, rich in minerals, vitamins and energy producing foods.

You can make lunch for school children a daily adventure if you pack delicious and varied food in an attractive box. Little extra surprises tucked into the corner may include homemade cookies, a favorite fruit, or dates and raisins if available. Not only include one-third of the day's needs but always strive to have variety in texture, color and flavors.

The following is a menu suggested for the child's school lunch:

Cottage Cheese and Vegetable Sandwich
Deviled Egg Sandwich
Ripe Olives Apples
Creamy Rice Pudding
Milk in Thermos Bottle

The rice pudding can be carried in glass custard cup in which it is baked. Milk from thermos bottle can be poured onto the pudding. The following is a recipe for making the pudding. You can make six individual custards and then use the remaining ones for home meals.

CHEAMY RICE PUDDING

Combine 4 cups milk ¼ cup unwashed rice and ½ teaspoon salt in top of a double boiler and cook over hot water until rice is tender, stirring occasionally. Beat 2 eggs slightly and add a part of the hot rice mixture, stirring to blend. Add egg-rice mixture to the remaining rice in double boiler. Add 1 cup washed seedless raisins, 1 teaspoon vanilla (optional) and ¼ teaspoon nutmeg. Stir well and pour into a well-buttered 1½-quart casserole. Place in pan of hot water and bake in a moderate

There will be no lunch box blues for school kiddies if they are provided with a well-balanced lunch as pictured here. The recipe for the creamy rice pudding is given on this page. With milk in the thermos bottle, deviled egg filling between whole wheat bread slices, a big red apple and celery for munching, you can be sure there will be no midafternoon hunger pangs. This happy boy is about to nip a juicy apple and bite into the crisp graham crackers. Plan surprises for the noon meal such as peanut butter cookies, dates, raisins, grapes, carrot sticks, cauliflower flowerlets, a favorite kind of candy or any of the foods which will vary the menus from day to day over (350 degrees F.) for 45 to 60 minutes, or until a clean knife inserted in the center comes out clean. Stir rice a few times, inserting spoon near edge of dish without disturbing top brown skin. For individual puddings, pour into individual custard cups and bake in a pan of hot water. Serves 6.

Peanut butter cookies are not only appealing, but they are packed with good nutrition Try making them with oven-popped rice cereal as given in the following recipe:

PEANUT BUTTER COOKIES

Crush 4 cups oven-popped rice cereal into fine crumbs. Cream 1-3 cup shortening and ¾ cup peanut buter together. Add ½ cup brown sugar gradually, creaming thoroughly. Add ¾ cup dark corn sirup gradually, beat well. Beat 1 egg. Sift 1 cup flour, ½ teaspoon soda, 2 tablespoons baking powder and ¼ teaspoon salt together. Stir into creamed mixture; add oven-popped rice cereal and blend thoroughly. Form into 1-inch balls and place on a lightly greased baking sheet. Flatten with fork dipped in flour to make criss-cross pattern. Bake in moderately hot oven, (375 degrees F.) 8 to 10 minutes. Yield: 3½ dozen cookies (2¾ inches in diameter).

Market Report

That tall thistle-like herb, the artichoke, has arrived at the fresh fruit and vegetable marts. You should be able to find it this morning, according to the War Food Administration scouts who found the following products on yesterday morning's wholesale market.

Plentiful—Sweet potatoes, white potatoes, squash, tomatoes, snap beans, califlower, kale, collards, mustard greens, spinach, celery, Hanover salad, beets, turnips, rutabaga, onions, apples, cantaloupes, avocados, limes, lemons, honeydew melons and Western grapes.

Moderate—Broccoli, cabbage, chicory, escarole, eggplant, carrots, mushrooms, parsnips, parsley, lettuce, radishes and sweet peppers.

Lunch-Box Vitamins

Lunch boxes marching off to war plants are wisely prepared by Mrs. Homemaker. War workers delight in lunchtime if the lunch box is chockful of tempting foods. Enriched flour and enriched bread make possible interesting food combinations. The clever homemaker takes advantage of their goodness and makes the lunch box both exciting and nourishing.

Women Now Harvesting Crops

By Adelaide Kerr

The California orange grower shifted his hat to the back of his head and gestured toward his well-filled crates.

"People say women can't do this work," he said with a grin. "Who harvested my oranges—12 acres of 'em? The run-of-the-mine, bridge-playing women of Lindsay, that's who. They liked me and I liked them. And when my next crop is ready I am going to have them again."

In that fruit grower's words lies a large part of the solution of America's food production problem, says Mrs. Minnie Fisher Cunningham, information specialist of the Department of Agriculture and chairman of the agricultural committee of the National YWCA. Mrs. Cunningham, who has just completed a six-week checkup tour through the West, told me recently in New York:

"Women will form the greater part of the crop corps of three and a half million workers which the Department of Agriculture plans to recruit to produce the country's 1943 food crops.

"All the evidence on the West Coast is that boys from 15 up are going to be absorbed by industry during their vacation period. The schools are already giving them training.

So it's up to the women. The Manpower Commission says there are in the United States 4,400,000 women under 45, who have no paid jobs and no children under 16. No other country at war has that pool of unemployed labor. These women are chiefly housewives. They will just have to get going."

Referring to the new Agriculture Labor Administration, headed by W. H. Darrow, Mrs. Cunningham said one of his four associates would be a woman, Mrs. Julian Friant, whom she believed was chosen "in recognition of the fact that most of the harvesting will have to be done by women and girls."

Mrs. Cunningham, a farm-bred Texan, who owns and operates a 1200-acre timber and cotton ranch near Houston, scoffs at the idea that women can't do farm work.

"As far as I am concerned it is to laugh when I hear such talk," she said. "From the time I was 12 until I was 16 I milked 11 cows twice a day and brought in the milk. I took care of it in the dairy and churned. Now I run the ranch with the help of five tenant farmers. The main objection to women's working on farms seems to come from Washington, where they don't raise crops. But the farmers whom I have talked to say the women can do it."

"Farm women all over the United States carried a big farm load in 1942. Lots of town women helped harvest crops. The Di Georgio Ranch in Southern California has two camps of 100 women each doing farm work—producing and harvesting fruits and vegetables. The AWVS operated women's farm camps in the West last year. In Hastings, Minn., when an apple grower feared he would lose his crop, the OCD rounded up 10 workers, all of them mothers of school children. With the help of two men they harvested 9000 bushels of apples during school hours. These are isolated incidents but they point the way and they can be multiplied by thousands.

THE GENTLER SEX

Keeping Up With Congress

By Malcina Lindsay

(A resolution for any woman who doesn't think the country should be "turned over to the politicians.")

I resolve to write during the present session of Congress at least one letter to a Senator or a Representative expressing my views on some important legislation. I will do this—

Because whether or not I have a vote, I do have a voice, and it is my obligation as a member of a democracy to assert that voice.

Because with so many men absent in war service, it is my special responsibility to take a part in government at home.

Because one of the causes contributing to Rome's decline was the fact that men citizens were away in battle so much of the time and women were either so politically inept or so engrossed in their personal affairs that they let the control of the farms and the government get into the hands of usurers and politicians.

Because the Fascist virus, as Herbert L. Matthews points out in the recent book, "The Fruits of Fascism," developed in a political vacuum caused by the Italian people's indifference to political affairs.

Because the German people have successively been under the heels of the Pressian militarists and the Nazis, and precipitated two tragic wars on themselves and on the world, due to their long contiued failure to take any interest or hand in governing themselves.

Because Congress at this session will deal with matters of tremendous importance, matters vitally affecting my life and the lives of those who come after me.

Because its action on peace plans and this Nation's postwar relations with other countries will make it an instrument of destiny in the world, and because I must necessarily share the responsibility for whatever action it takes.

Because I have no right to remain silent and disinterested now and sit back later and say complacently, "Congress was to blame!"

Because if everybody thought, "I am only one and no one will pay any attention to what I say," we would cease to have representative government.

Because members of Congress who take courageous, unselfish, enlightened stands — often against personal interest—need the encouragement and approval of citizens who understand and appreciate what they are doing; and because the bolstering of a man's confidence stimulates his creative power.

Because members of Congress who are undecided on momentous issues may be helped in making up their minds by the response from citizens.

Because in a time of war when the executive branch of the government must be necessarily dominant, the legislative branch should be strengthened—and my interest in it may held in a small way to do this.

Because in the controversial issues to be decided in this session Congress will receive tons of form and rubber stamp letters from pressure groups and special interests, and because a single independent letter from a conscientious citizen will have just that much more meaning.

Because throughout the Nation the uninformed, the misinformed, the prejudiced, and the ignorant, egged on by demagogues, will be expressing themselves to Congress, and because a letter from me, if dictated by conscientious thought and honest conviction, may help to tilt the scales on the side of reason.

Because I myself need the practice and the discipline of participating in government.

Because by writing a letter to Congress I will be sharing its perplexities and its burdens—instead of standing aloof as a carping, critical onlooker—and because my own heart and mind will be enlarged by the experience and I will feel more thoroughly a part of my Nation, and know in fuller measure the blessing of being a free speaking citizen of a democracy.

Your Baby and Mine

By Myrtle Meyer Eldred

No matter how often mothers are reminded that teething is a natural process and should be no more upsetting to the child than adding length to bones or fat to pad them, a mother invariably states, "He doesn't sleep so well and I think it's his teeth," or "He's been so cranky and I think his teeth are bothering him."

The safest course is to forget teeth and try to find the real villain somewhere else. For it should be taken for granted that if the baby gets all the nourishment to provide for his body needs, his teeth will appear at stated intervals without signs or symptoms of their coming. This means, that in addition to good food, the child will get sufficient vitamin D in some form by which aid the minerals in the diet can be stored economically in bones, teeth and nervous system.

The times at which teeth first appear vary from five to about nine months, with nothing to worry about in either case. Only when teeth are unusually late in appearing should one be suspicious that the diet is at fault. Instead of blaming teeth for the child's unhappy disposition, or his inability to sleep, better shoot one's corrective arrows at the diet and ignore teeth.

When the child has shown with each tooth a consistent pattern of fever, sleeplessness, crossness and lack of appetite, one must assume that the whole diet program is in need of alteration and that it is because of the extra straw of teeth that the faultiness of the program shows up. It may be a poor choice of menu, insufficient food or lack of Vitamin D, one or the other, but it is because of these that the child's behavior is dramatic, not because of teeth being cut.

It is probable that almost any child might, for a day or so, sleep more fitfully or cry more easily, but the mother seldom sees the meaning of this until after the teeth are in. It is then that she may consider the past day or two significant. Anything more persistent or significant in the way of behavior should not be blamed on teeth but on a diet that is failing to provide the materials for the uneventful development of the whole body, teeth included.

Applesauce Cake A Delicious Cake

This is the apple season so prepare them in many tempting ways. An applesauce cake is delicious. It has fine keeping qualities and is ideal for packing in lunch boxes. The recipe for this cake follows:

APPLESAUCE CAKE

Sift 2 cups flour, measure, sift again with 2 teaspoons soda, 1 teaspoon cinnamon, ½ teaspoon cloves, 1 teaspoon nutmeg, and 1 teaspoon salt. Cream 1-3 cup shortening, gradually add ½ cup corn sirup and ¼ cup honey, mixing thoroughly. Add one unbeaten egg. Add 1 cup seedless raisins and ½ cup chopped walnut meats. Combine thoroughly. Add small amounts of flour and applesauce alternately; beat well. Bake in well greased baking pan in moderate oven, 375 degrees, about 30 minutes, or until done. Serves 12-16.

Your Figure, Madame!

By Ida Jean Kain

Most tall girls do mind going with short men, but quite often, later on, they introduce their husbands and they are short men.

So Peg Newton, New York stylist to tall women, is not sure about the role height plays in romance. She designs for women of 5 feet 8 inches, and on up. Two of her favorite customers tower 6 feet 4 inches. Tower is the word. The average height for men over the country is 5 feet 8. But in this section of the country, the average is probably slightly less. You can see what the stratospheric ladies are up against.

But there is one point on which Miss Newton is not only sure but what she herself calls "rabid" and that is posture. "Tall women were meant to wear clothes beautifully," she maintains. "But by the way she carries herself, a girl can make a mediocre frock look like a million dollars or ruin a 'creation.'" She says poor posture in a tall person is much worse than in a shorty—probably because there is so much of her to be wrong. At any rate, that is something for you tall girls all over the country to bear in mind.

Slumping doesn't make you any shorter. In fact, Miss Newton says the first thing you have to do is say, "Heck, I'm tall and I'm never going to be any shorter, and I'll be proud of my height." Then this stylist goes on, you have to get some good strong muscles through your shoulders. "It seems to be harder for a tall girl to stand erect. She needs to be stronger."

All those tips on managing your height to best advantage doesn't come from someone who doesn't know what it is to be tall. Miss Newton is 5 feet 10 inches tall. She got into the business of dressing tall women for the simple reason that she couldn't find clothes to fit her. The skirts and sleeves never seemed to reach. And she urges good posture and daily exercise because she knows what they will do for you. She has a morning workout she never skips. One of her exercises is new to me. Here it is:

Stand erect, feet parallel but slightly apart, right arm straight up overhead. With the left hand, clasp the right wrist. The left elbow should be bent a trifle out to side. Now, with right hand, describe a wide circle, over to one side, down in front, and back up to the other side. But do it by rotating at the trunk. Throughout the circling, keep arms in that same position. Miss Newton says she got it from a model and that "it does about everything—including taking the fat off the back of the hips." She also likes stretching exercises and exercises to strengthen the abdominal muscles.

Toppings Still Possible

Icings on generous round cookies need not be fond memories. Dates, figs, or raisins ground with nut meats and mixed with a trifle lemon juice and hot water, for spreading, make a luscious icing. Children delight in spreading fruit jellies and jams on cookies. Honey drizzled over cookies is another welcome treat.

About Washington . . .

PERSONALLY, I DON'T care whether Mr. and Mrs. Harry Hopkins ever move out of the White House, but it was my story first that they would—or rather, that they had taken a lease on the house at 3340 N Street—and I don't intend to be stuck with it.

Mrs. Hopkins

That's why I was more than slightly surprised at luncheon the other day when a Capital matron said that Mrs. Harold Walker, who owns the house in question, was trying to sell same at a price around $22,000. "But I thought the Hopkinses had leased that house," somebody observed.

"They have. And if Mrs. Walker doesn't sell it, they'll move in soon."

All of which made the mystery even more so. But here are the facts: The Hopkinses have agreed to take the place . . . but Mrs. Walker, being of a mind to sell it, has been trying to lease another of her houses to them. Meanwhile, a real estate agent showed the N Street place to a prospective buyer, who made an offer. But, it seems, the Hopkinses won't give up the house; so-o-o, as matters now stand, they're still on the verge of moving there. Whether they ever will is anybody's guess.

All of which brings to mind a cab-driver's quip the other day when I asked to be taken to the White House.

"Oh, you mean that two-family flat . . . where the Roosevelts and Hopkinses live?" he asked.

CENTER OF ATTENTION at a recent party was Wing Commander Guy P. Gibson, 25-year-old RAF veteran, whom Premier Winston Churchill calls "the dam-buster." Handsome, pink-cheeked and looking like a 'teen-age schoolboy, Wing Commander Gibson is the hero who won the coveted crimson badge of the Victoria Cross last May after he led the sensational air raids that destroyed the Meohne and Eder dams in the Ruhr.

He had been in Washington exactly two hours when he arrived at the farewell fete given by Air Vice Marshal George Victor Walsh in honor of Wing Commander and Mrs. John Norton. In a brief bit of teacup talk, Wing Commander Gibson told me he would be glad when he was called back to the fighting front. "One gets a feeling, you know," he said significantly.

At the same party where Wing Commander Gibson put in an appearance, the question of "Which is Welsh, and which is Walsh?" made the rounds time and again. Host, as I mentioned before, was Air Vice Marshal Walsh; among the guests was Air Marshal Sir William L. Welsh, who heads the RAF delegation here; and since they were similarly attired and are of similar build, some of the Nortons' friends who hadn't met either before were a bit confused as to which was which.

It was along toward the end of the party that I finally got them straight. Somebody mentioned that the Air Vice Marshal Walsh was a bachelor, and that Air Marshal Welsh's wife was an outstanding member of Britain's Women's Auxiliary Air Force. A few moments later, I heard Air Marshal Welsh telling a circle of friends that his wife had moved up a notch in the WAAFS. Fact is, Lady Ruth Welsh, who now has the title of air commandant, recently replaced Mrs. K. J. Trefusis Forbes as head of the organization.

LIFE THESE DAYS for pretty Mrs. Claude Pepper is just one ship-launching after another. In the past month, she has smashed a traditional bottle of champagne across the proud prow of two ships—the S. S. Dr. Sully at St. Johns River, Fla., and the S. S. Richard Lewis Humphrey at Tampa . . . and she has a couple of pretty jeweled bracelets to prove it.

Mrs. Pepper

Some time this month she will be off to Panama City, Fla., to serve as sponsor for yet another ship, the S. S. Mary Ball, which will be launched there soon with fitting fanfare.

Has she always been lucky enough to break the bottle on the first swing? She has. "When I swing, I swing with a will," she said the other day. "It's bad luck not to smash that bottle . . . and I'm afraid the men who build the boat, as well as the crew, would never forgive me if I didn't."

Fighting Men 'Out There' Want Mail

"Please write to them—every day if possible."

This was the plea of Lieut. Richard Hunter Dulany Randolph, USNR, who has recently arrived at Grafton, near Upperville, Va., for a two weeks' leave from active duty in the Pacific. His request on behalf of all his fellow soldiers and sailors came as the answer to the question, "What do the boys in the service want for Christmas?" posed at a recent dinner party given in his honor by Col. and Mrs. John C. Butler at their home, Kelvedon Farm, near Rectortown.

"It is not what you send them that counts so much but the fact that you thought to send something," continued Lieutenant Randolph. "I wish that I could tell every mother, father, sister, brother and friend of a serviceman that letters from home are what those boys want most of all—they long for them and need them.

To his friends gathered to talk with him at the gay dinner party, the young Navy officer went on, "It is so disappointing when the mail comes in and we have no letters." The smallest thing that goes on at home is of interest when you are 'out there.' The home-State postmark thrills you; the thought of the postmaster 'back home' who handled the letter and of the carrier who took it from the postoffice warms your heart."

Guests at the dinner party were Mr. and Mrs. Taylor Scott Hardin, Mr. and Mrs. Frank C. Littleton, jr., Mr. and Mrs. Duval Tyler, Dr. and Mrs. Archibald Cary Randolph, Mrs. Ferdinand Chatard 4th, Mrs. Anthony Wilson, Mrs. Mary Elizabeth Whitney, Mrs. Warren W. Whitside, jr., Mrs. Robert F. Turner, Mrs. Charles Sabin, Miss Betty Lyon, Miss "Tiny" Williams, Capt. John Pons, Lieut. Selden Heatley, William F. Hitt, James Wiley, Prosser Tabb and several others.

Uruguay Sends Four New Attaches

Diplomats come and diplomats go, but for one single embassy to have acquired as many as four new members at a time is—to say the least—unusual. Such is the case, however, of the Embassy of Uruguay that has just added not only a new Counselor, Eduardo de Arteaga, but three junior members of its staff.

Juan Felipe Yriart has been appointed First Secretary. This young diplomat started his career as Attache to the Legation of Uruguay in London in 1939. He has spent the last three years in Montevideo, where he was attached to the Ministry of Foreign Affairs in the Office of Political Economy. He accompanied Dr. Carl Guani, then Minister of Foreign Affairs of Uruguay and now Vice President of the republic, during his trip to the United States and Canada in February of this year.

Hugo Garcia, the new Financial Attache, is not a newcomer to Washington. In 1941 he was here on an official mission to study econmic and financial questions and worked in connection with the WPB and BEW and other Government agencies. This is his first diplomatic post, as it is the first also of Washington P. Bermudez, new Commercial Attache. Senor Bermudez also has been in Washington during last year as delegate of the ANCAP, a Uruguayan government agency for the administration of fuels and alcohol.

The three young diplomats, who have arrived within the last month, agreed, at a recent interview at the Pan American Union, that they liked the city so much during their previous visits here, they have "come back for more."

Virginia Myrick Becomes Bride Of Lieut. Erle Marshall Stacy

Caroline Fairfax Robertson Is Wed to Lieut. Patrick F. Sammon in New York

Two Washington girls became brides of servicemen in ceremonies of yesterday.

The Grace Episcopal Church in Silver Spring was the setting for the marriage of Miss Virginia K. Myrick to Lieut. Erle Marshall Stacy. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James F. Fullilove of Silver Spring and Lieutenant Stacy is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur A. Stacy of Montgomery Hill.

Officiating at the 7:30 service was the Rev. Walter W. Gale. Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a gown of white satin and lace trimmed with bands of seed pearls. Her fingertip length veil was held by an heirloom coronet of rose point lace and she carried a bouquet of orchids and stephanotis.

Matron of honor was the bride's sister, Mrs. William J. Nichols, who wore a pink lace and net gown and carried pink and white flowers. Miss Bette Ann Crockett was maid of honor and Miss Mildred Stacy the bridesmaid. Both wore pink net ensembles with juliet caps of lace and carried bronze and white bouquets.

William A. Stacy served as best man and ushers were George Gibble and Todd Cochran. A reception followed the ceremony at the home of the bride's parents.

Following a short wedding trip, the couple will make their home in Cudahy, Wis. Both the bride and bridegroom are graduates of the University of Maryland.

Sammon—Robertson

The wedding of Miss Caroline Fairfax Robertson and Lieut. Patrick Francis Sammon, jr., took place in St. George's Episcopal Church in New York.

Song Slated For Broadcast

Friends of Capt. William H. Smith, United States Navy, and Mrs. Smith have a date with their radios for 7:30 Friday night, when "Let's Go," a song written by the Smiths, will be broadcast on a coast-to-coast network.

Anne Favinger To Be Bride

Mrs. Charles Luff Favinger of Waban, Mass., has announced the engagement of her daughter, Anne, to Robert M. Gary, U. S. Army, son of Comdr. and Mrs. Howland R. Gary of Alexandria, formerly of Wellesley Hills, Mass.

Senora de Espil Is Grandmother For Second Time

Taking a bow for the second time in her role as grandmother is Senora de Espil, wife of the Argentine Ambassador, who still has the distinction of being the youngest-looking grandmother in town.

It's a girl—the second—for Lieut. Randall Hagner and Mrs. Hagner, the former Miss Louise Stillwell, daughter of Senora de Espil. The baby was born almost two weeks ago and, with her mother, is now at their home on Waterside Drive. When the newest member of the family is christened she will be named Marguerite Colton Hagner, for her paternal grandmother, Mrs. Randall Hagner.

It is hoped that the Duchess of Kent will be godmother—if only by proxy—to the baby son of Capt. Count Stefan Zamoyski, Assistant Military Attache of the Polish Embassy, and Countess Zamoyska, born on Friday, October 1. Both Count and Countess Zamoyski lived in London before coming to this country. They have a little girl, now 3 years old, who, strangely enough, knows no word of her own language, but speaks English and French with all the fluency of one of her tender age. Countess Zamoyska was before her marriage the Princess Czartoryska.

Kathryn Hunter Becomes Bride Of Capt. Gill

Making her home temporarily with her parents is Mrs. Edwin H. Gill, who before her marriage on October 4 was Miss Kathryn Ann Hunter, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Burton L. Hunter.

Her marriage to Captain Gill, United States Army, took place at 10:30 in the Church of St. Columba with the Rev. R. A. Mengers officiating. Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a gown of white lace and tulle veil held by a satin juliet cap. Her only attendant was Miss Monica Brockhurst, and Joseph Himmelheber served as best man.

Following the ceremony a small reception took place at the home of the bride's parents. Captain Gill, who has recently returned from overseas duty, has continued to a new station in this country and expects to rejoin his bride in Washington shortly.

Phantom Card Party

For 18 years the Board of Managers of the Episcopal Church Home has held an annual card party for the benefit of this home for the aged for the diocese of Washington. This year the board and its president, Mrs. William Channing Johnson, decided, in view of the many war activities, to hold a phantom card party for the cause on October 30.

First started in 1924, the project for this unique home was one close to the heart of Bishop Freeman, who saw it grow from the first frame house to a group of five houses and a memorial chapel, recently built for the use of the household. The home is unique in many ways, notably in a special unit for the use of married couples. The home is at 3315 Wisconsin ave.

The vision of Mrs. William Channing Johnson, first to see the urgent need for the home, has, through her faithful work and that of devoted committees from every Episcopal church in the diocese, been brought to successful realization. Tables for the phantom card party are $3, one seat is 75 cents. Subscriptions should be sent to Miss Anne B. Moore, 2940 Upton st., n.w.

The patronesses include leading women from every church in the diocese, Mrs. John L. Houghteling, Mrs. William Crozier, Mrs. H. Rozier Dulaney, Mrs. Charles S. Hamilton, Mrs. Edward E. Gann and Mrs. George A. Randolph, among others

'15 Offender's Hopes Stirred For Pardon

Henry J. Smith, 49, who is now in Occoquan workhouse serving a 10-month sentence for something he did 28 years ago, told his lawyer yesterday newspaper reports of his case had given him hope President Roosevelt may intervent and grant executive clemency.

But it appears two weeks will elapse before the President even sees the recommendations of the pardon attorney in the case. Harold J. Hawken, Smith's attorney, said yesterday he will see Smith Sunday in Occoquan to sign the petition for executive clemency. Then the petition will be presented to Pardon Attorney Daniel Lyons for action. Hawken said Lyons had assured him the case will be speeded up as much as possible.

Smith was just 21 in 1915 when he took a joyride in someone else's automobile. En route to Baltimore he approached a barricade near a railroad crossing and saw a policeman. Smith jumped from the car, was arrested and sentenced to 10 month's imprisonment.

After serving five weeks in Occoquan, he escaped in an automobile belonging to a prison clerk. In 1917, he joined the Army, rose to the rank of medical sergeant under an assumed name when he confessed his identity to the Army. They did nothing except to substitute his real name for his assumed name. He received his soldier's bonus under his real name and since that time has never attempted to hide his identity.

He worked for the District Government for more than six years as a truck driver and cement mixer operator. Since his first brush with the law he has only one spot on his record. Ten years ago, he was arrested for disorderly conduct.

On September 25, Smith was in a bar-room where, a soldier lost his wallet. Smith was arrested, fingerprinted but no charges were placed against him. His fingerprints were checked, however, and he was sent back to finish his term.

From Occoquan, he wrote one of his two sons, "as you know, my wife died 10 weeks ago, and I started drinking. I couldn't stop, I guess, and that's why I'm here."

Marauder Raids Driving German Air Force Inland

By the Associated Press

At a United States Medium Bomber Station in Britain, Oct. 6.—The chief of the new American Marauder force in Britain said today the heavy pounding these craft have been giving Germany's major air bases in France and the Low Countries is sapping much of the strength out of the German air force and driving it deeper inland.

The leader of this new force, which has teamed up with RAF Spitfires to give the Allies a powerful new bombing arm for beating an invasion path across Europe, is Col. Samuel Anderson of Greensboro, N. C.

In an interview reviewing the first two and one-half months of activity of the B-26's in this theater, Colonel Anderson said the Nazis already had been forced to avacuate a large number of key fighter bases in western France, and service had been disrupted at many others serving as main springboards for defense against Allied heavy bombers.

While the exact number of fields knocked out of operation cannot be told for military reasons, Colonel Anderson said "the efficiency of the German operational units has been appreciably lowered by our steady bombing which is keeping them on the run."

Cafe Operator Fined $75 on Sanitation Charge

Judge Thomas D. Quinn in Municipal Court fined a restaurant operator $75 yesterday when found guilty of having decomposed meat in his establishment while a second restaurateur, accused of what inspectors described as a "very severe violation" was allowed to forfeit $50 collateral and escape trial.

James James of 1134 14th st. nw., was found guilty of the possession of decomposed pork chops, unfit for human consumption, in a refrigerator. He pleaded not guilty to the offense.

Paul Papazian of 1228 N st. nw., was allowed to forfeit when he failed to appear to answer charges of having stagnant water in a fountain, dirty floors, counters and shelves, and vermin scurrying over food and utensils.

Invasion Plans Reflected by Navy Vessel Changes

By the Associated Press

Preparations for new invasions of enemy-held shores are being pushed by the Navy even at the expense of production of some larger types of vessels.

This became apparent yesterday with disclosure that the already gigantic program for production of amphibious craft has been enlarged again.

The new increase for landing craft is to come in part from diversion of construction capacity from destroyer escorts, swift, hard-hitting antisubmarine ships.

Naval experts said, however, that the destroyer escort program is far ahead of what was promised months ago when it was disclosed that literally scores of the vessels—somewhat smaller than destroyers, equally deadly, but much cheaper—were being turned out by the Nation's shipyards.
